				I believe you have to have had an FM-3 for three years before you apply for an FM-2. Even if you get your FM-3 abroad you still have to register your residence within 30 days of arrival in Mexico and show much of the same documentation - not all. You don't have to present a letter from your local police department again. When I objected to having to show proof of income to the local migra, they said it was for their files not immigration files in Mexico City where the consulate had sent the original proof. So it wasn't the same as re-applying for an FM-3 although the paper work was repetitive. In any case, you can only re-new an FM-3 in your place of residence in Mexico. So every year you will have to

It was blamed on an Acapulco car thief ring. The problem with popular cars, here and in the States, is that they are also the most commonly stolen. I just read that 20% of all cars stolen in Mexico City later are used by drug gangs for shoot outs. (Or maybe it's the other way around with 20% of the cars abandoned by narcos being traced back to vehicles reported stolen in Mexico City.) We usually visit during January, so I am unsure of what to expect weather wise during June. Is an air conditioned room needed? We are fine with just fans in January, but I wasn't sure if it cooled down at night in June. Also, does it typically rain every day? Do the showers last the whole day or are they brief? I am from Texas, so I I have a Haier Chest Freezer I brought here from the US and used one year when I only had a small refrig. I have since bought a big refrig and don't need the freezer anymore. Have the manuel with it and it's in good condition. I need $150USD (firm) for it. I checked at local stores and small freezers are running over $400. This is a good buy for someone. If interested, please let me know It does not typically rain in June, though it can. The actual rainy season normally runs from mid July to mid to late October and even then it does not rain every day. No daily monsoon at 4 pm. It will be humid in June and it doesn't cool down much at night that time of year but if you are from south Texas it won't be all that much different here. I asked about the Dr. in case I ever needed a doctor for home visit. Yesterday, an acquaintance asked about getting a doctor to go to the house. I called the doctor at 3:30 p.m. and he said that he would be at the address of the person at 5:00 p.m. He was given the address, cross streets, land marks, and instructions on how to get there. Plus he had my phone number. He never arrived and never called. I expect such a thing from a Hello all I'm looking for a small apartment/condo with kitchen "(one or 2 bedroom) or a small house, part of a house, coach house type, whatever, for two to three weeks for January-February 2009. I'd like to pay around $500 a week. I don't need luxury, just clean, and on a quiet bay with a swimmable (waves ok, but need sand) beach very close, but please not in Santa Cruz. If anyone has something like this please let me know. Also is this a reasonable price for a Sewer treatment is on the other side of the highway. The engineer working on the new andador at the laguna del tule in Villa Obregon told me that part of the project includes stopping the sewage from over 40 dwellings that were dumping into the laguna. They were laying new sewer pipe along the streets near the laguna. Poco a poco they are cleaning things up. They hauled out many truckloads of debris which they scooped out of the laguna--some organic, some They are also installing EcoSan bathrooms in Villa Obregon and Jaluco. Initially around 20 but hope for more with success of the first and further funding. The waste from these bathrooms will be picked up much like your garbage - as a municipal service. It will be processed at the water treatment plant on the other side of the highway. I haven't been out to the treatment plant because I was told We need a place to stay for two adults in Barra the last two weeks in Feb.	80

13981	12	BonnieGibson	MUSIC IN BARRA	Barra has more music than ever this year. I am honored that in the face of there being so much free music around that so many fans have continued to populate my dates at Sea Master - Wed. nights early -- 7 pm. til 9 pm. As far as I know I am still the only one offering JAzz. We also play vintage rock tunes, very special pop like Carole King, Sam Cooke, etc., some blues, and I can't resist (I did grow up in Calgary) the occasional country tune, so there is a lot of variety. Last week we had an amazing session that included the welcome home of my usual guitar whizz MARCO, Paul from Alaska on hand drum, the ridiculously wild and fun ne, kid on the block Eli CP (San Francisco) and a the very accomplished Sunny,clear and mid 60s here in Sin City. Our flight out on Southwest Airlines was nice, smooth air and a great view from 40,000 feet of El Paso, White Sands(which are really gypsum) the Grand Canyon and surrounding areas. Vegas is as nuts as ever, more building going on everywhere it seems. I don't see how they could possibly need more casinos or hotels but the building goes on 24 hours per day. Paula is out here working, buying gizmos for her store. Me, I cruise the strip and enjoy the show as tourists gawk and waste money. We are at Treasure Island this time, right across from the Venetian where one of Paula's shows is going on. I have to admit that the interior of the Venetian is pretty neat, I believe that sites like this are the place to begin exposing the kind of corruption which you are implying is a fact of life in our beloved Puerto. Practices and traditions that rob our hosts of their human rights are easier to achieve in the dark. We should use the power of the internet and our tradition of free speech to shed light in the hope of change for the better. I often read posts that imply this Hello just got down here and am loving it. Bought some acrylic painting supplies to use and was wondering if anyone had an easel I could buy or borrow. Or where I could purchase supplies to build one? Staying in Melaque Thank You Ronaldo yup.. your description and a look at photos in Wikipedia makes this identification by Canadiantourist apt. Very cool creature... Just another weird phenomena occurring here this winter, what with fog, red tides, wind storms, earthquakes, Paco asked me to post this because he forgot his password. He wants everyone to know that he has returned from Guadalajara and is living back in his pueblo natal Barra de Navidad. He is an experienced Spanish and English teacher and is available for Spanish lessons for all levels of Spanish students. Paco is very fluent in English for any explaining you might need and as a native Spanish speaker his Spanish is pretty darned good too. Paco can be reached at 045-314- I love VWs but realistically they are just a big headache where ever you are. I was part of the VW cult for years until I was rescued. 				NYC Mayor Compares Threat of Global Warming to Terrorism UNITED NATIONS — While he acknowledged that scientists are unable to predict its consequences, Mayor Bloomberg yesterday compared the scourge of global warming to the threat of terrorism and the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. Although it is a "long-term" fight, he said, reducing gas emissions may save the life of "everybody" on the planet, the same way that fighting terrorism and its proliferation saves lives in shorter terms. Addressing a U.N. climate change conference, the mayor also announced a new plan to reduce the use of tropical hardwoods by New York City and told delegates that the city

Like the mechanic scene, not everyone treats the mechanic well, so not everyone gets good work. Some people from up north can be rude and expect their work to be priority AND cheap. You can't have both. Don't blame the mechanic. Blame the irate client. So it would be a better idea to actually talk to the victim and judge their story for yourself. 14165	12	billgilbert	Re: earthquake	Back in Michigan after two great weeks in PE. We came home to about 15 inches of new snow which all came just before we got back. This year's PE highlights included a one-day trip to Finca Las Nieves. It is an organic coffee plantation up in the mountains (about a 2 hour trip to get there). Worth the trip! Arrangements can be made at the Santa Fe ... just ask at the desk. The other nice event was the Flamenco guitarist and 3 dancers who appeared for 2 nights at Villa Sol. Gina (who is more than just the information goddess for many PE visitors) got us onto that and it was a very enjoyable evening. The rest was Hey Rudy sorry to disagree but your off base there a bit. Your right that the ATM is the best way to get cash but that is provided it hasnt run out of money. This does happen frequently.Also some times the system is down for awhile. It is also your best exchange rate and right on about the service charge being the same no matter what amount you take out. The best thing to do is have Canadian Travellers Cheques(if Canadian cheques better exchange than cash, or US TC's if American) as a back up in case it is out of money or you could go hungry for a day or two until they refill the machine. Don't bother with paying the exchange to get US cheques or cash if your Canadian. Canadian exchange rate I know many will think this petty, and I suppose it is, but...in the interest of the integrity of the English language, here goes. 1. Your is a possessive pronoun, simply, it stands for a person and comes before a noun. Eg. Is that YOUR car?, Your ideas are excellent. Where can we find your restaurant? Your, in this case can stand for the 2nd person singular, or the 2nd person plural. 2. You're is a contraction of the pronoun YOU plus the verb ARE (be). Eg. You are an excellent surfer can be contracted to You're an excellent surfer. This example uses the pronoun 'you' for the 2nd person singular. You're a great group of surfers. This example uses the pronoun YOU to refer to the 2nd person plural of Now we need a Spanish tip of the day in such depth	80

But you are only a five hour drive from Arroyo Lissa and six hours from Anton Lizardo. Don't you miss the monster-big coral formations with the associated critters? You're in a corner of Paradise, but there are other paradises as well and the Paraiso Olmeca beckons awfully seductively when those waves Boca is definately south of Tenacatita beach, it is the beach area immediately south of the headland that is south of Blue Bay Village. You say that you are north of Tenacatita Bay so were that the case you are probably near El Tecuan or even Arroyo Seco. I don't honestly know which Ejido they fall in. Could be the Ejido of Rebalsito but it could also be Aguacaliente or Miguel Hidalgo, or you could be in the Ejido of Arroyo Seco. I really don't know the Ejido boundaries, they don't necessarily follow the towns. Most of West Melaque for example, including the north trailer park and the wrecked hotel plus - as an added bonus - all of Cuastecomate are in the Ejido of Emiliano Zapata, the township/settlement So Lencho and John you would probably agree that anytime is a good time to be in Puerto? I Don't know how much has changed since I worked for Developer in Nayarit 8 years ago, But communal or Ejido lands cannot be bought or sold. They are for mexican citizens to occupy and posesion can be transferred for financial consideration to another mexican citizen, but that is all, an act of posesion, no title. I have read and heard that there are ways to convert to private title, but as far as I know that is not permitted at the top level mexican constitution, local ejidos will tell you anything is possible but they do not supercede national law.	362
14349	12	Hayduke	Re: Joke of the week	Like I said this is eight year old experience and from my dealings with the ejido in Sayulita and Nayarit state government. Talk to people down at the point for I had the worst dining experience of my life last night at Guadua and didn't even eat. We were celebrating an anniversary with 10 other friends and decided to go for the sunset sitting. The first problem was asking for separate checks. After much disscusion, the owner granted our request reluctantly. Once everyone was seated we were told they were out of roast beef and chicken. Since this about 25% of their menu, selection was very limited. The appetizers were terrible. Shrimp was too sweet. Nothing looked good to me, so I decided to just drink beer. Everyone else ordered. An hour later 4 meals came out. My wife's pasta was cold and looked like egg noodles with a little cheese. She ate half of it and Cewjalw, Imago sums it up perfectly above. Just a few other thoughts based on my own research and experiences. 1) There is a boundary line somewhere at the end of Zicatella beach where property North of the line is Private Property and South of the line is Common Land. A Notario can easily refer to the relevant map and look for prior deeds if there is any doubt. 2) The transfer procedure for Private Property although different from the US/Canada ultimately ends with you receiving a draft deed from the Notario, paying taxes based on market value or a specified local authority set of tables and obtaining a final deed. On an ongoing basis you pay your local taxes same as everyone else and you don't worry. 3) big ditto on Sativa, we had a great meal there and enjoyed meeting the brother and sister who run it. Settled for a couple pizza slices last night after a late lunch but had the pleasure of reccomending it a party of ten or so gathered outside ponderng whether to dine there, up the stairs they went to a undoubtedly great meal and time. It is the kind of thing that can spell the end of a restaurant. I've met the three owners of the restaurant and the seemed to be very savvy and are probably also aware of the power of the internet. I get really tired of hearing the patronizing words.. relax and be patient when service is poor. I usually am relaxed and patient when I arrive at a restaurant, but poor service and rude behavior can put a quick end to that. A The final week of Puerto Blues has arrived. So far it has been amazing and don't know how much better it can be but with Gwyn Ashton from the UK, Sugar Ray Norcia from the US and Enrico Crivellaro from Italy - to say nothing of Mike, Paul and Gene - they will probably blow the roof off the Belmar. I'll probably just get into town and go get a room at the Pacifico or San Rafael or something similar, but thought it These are not my apartments I am just posting this as a favour to a friend who does not like to write in English. On Filipinas Street in downtown Barra de Navidad just off of Veracruz the main street into town from the highway there are now 6 one bedroom and one studio apartment available for rent. Two of the apartments were rented last year the rest are new this year and have been for rent since December 1007. The larger one bedroom suites are $600 USD per month, $200 USD per week, the smaller one bedroom suites are $500 USD per month, $200 USD per week and the one studio apartment is $400 USD per month, $150 per week. 				I was tagged in Guadalajara this same time back in '92. It was our last foreign port in 6 weeks before heading back to the states the next day. We had traveled to some very shaddey places. 11 countries in South and Central America. Our Hotel was beautiful. It was part of a huge shopping mall. It was easy to get distracted while checking in by watching the indoor ice skating rink from the hotel lobby. The hotel was similar to one in Portland. Except for the uzies I felt at home. The lobby had several uzi armed guards. It was the 1st time in 6 weeks I had actually felt comfortable with my surroundings. I removed my fanny pack and set it on my luggage while signing for the rooms. The bags were at my feet. Hi Elke: Would be interested in hearing how your border crossing went with all your stuff. I want to bring in bath & kitchen fixtures but just found out that that all the major brands are made in China. Most these fixtures are available at Home Depot and I just learned that a Home Depot just opened in PV. I'd probably be better off buying this stuff at a Mexico Home Depot, provided they have similar Titan, Dont forget to drop by the State Police office and have a certified copy that youre not buying an auto on the stolen list. 				I can't really say much about the prison cell thing Zummie, never having been incarcerated I don't really know what a prison cell looks like - apart from what I have seen in the movies. Based on my somewhat limited prison movie knowledge (not my favorite genre does anyone actually WATCH that TV show Prison Break?) I can assure everyone that these apartments DO NOT have metal bunk beds and they have a separate toilet, sink and shower in the bathroom! None of that combined metal toilet/sink in the cell with a giant shower room down the hall stuff we see in prison movies - no siree Bob - this is a proper bathroom and one for each suite too! That shot of the room on the roof is a brown waves and a really bad smell to go with them.... We have eaten there twice in the past two weeks and both times came away raving about the delicious food and the very friendly service. If having to wait a little for your meal is not your cup of tea perhaps you should not travel in Mexico where this is a fairly common occurrence. Sorry they ran out of beer and food that night because of course a restaurant should do neither but I don't feel that they deserve such a negative slam as they are just starting up and unless you represent their competition, such bad reviews are unfair. We thoroughly enjoyed Tried new La Buena Vida Restaurant on the Rinconada last night. First, the staff couldn't be more accommodating. 				Hola all: Just a quick post - we were out today on the Omega, and our crew got a radio call from Valentino...appears he caught a whale. Well, to our surprise when we reached him ... he had caught a whale. It seems the poor thing had it's tail all caught up in a fishing net, and the net snagged Valentino's line. To give him full credit, he was doing all he could to safely release his line, but unfortunately, I don't think there is anything anyone could do for the poor whale. I am coming in July for about two weeks this year. I have found loads of info on the net and in travel books. Can anyone let me know what to do and where to stay. I want a great bed and a great view. I am very adventurous and can travel Thanks to everyone for making the Cisco's Amigos 2nd Annual Cribbage Tournament a huge success. 				I think back in the days when you could eat in Mexican restaurants for less than half of what a similar restaurant would cost you north of the border; comments like "chill", & "after all it IS Mexico", were justified. PE still has some pretty reasonable restaurants at reasonable prices, especially compared to Huatulco. But when you start getting into restaurants that are so expensive that they cater to gringo or DF tourists because the locals can't afford them, they damned well should reflect the quality the prices are representative of. I expect lackadaisical service in a greasy spoon where cervezas are $15 pesos. But when I'm being charged 50-70p for a glass of mediocre wine in a pretentious restaurant with I just want to confirm that there is a crew of blue uniformed, flak jacketed, ski masked special police here in town ... they are probably part of Felipe Calderon's new "gestapo law," anti-drug crusade. I received a special visit from said crew on Friday night. There were about ten of them and they did help themselves to my things while doling out a bit of handcuff violence. Apparently As a naive Canuck, I find it difficult to understand why Glencho feels the need to 'pack' while in Melaque. After many years here, it seems very odd to me that someone might want to have the equipment to shoot Mexicans because they fire a few guns (very few) at midnight on New Years Eve... But, of course, idiot that I am....I can't understand their Timothy McVie, or how George Bush got his job either. Americans really do confuse me. Am I to assume that a handy thermonuclear device would be a desirable "Right to Bear Arms" item for Americans that might desire to visit, or retire in some Eastern European

Everybody loved their plate, the service, the cachet....or style and the situation. We arrived early 5pm and at 8 it was full so we left our table so other persons could enjoy. We will Frogfart, sometimes 'where there's smoke, there's only smoke'. And the fire is created by a bunch of folks who spend less than 20 days a year here, then return to their plush lives. " We really criticized those food joints in puerto this year!! yehooo." Meanwhile, the young family and friends running the food place, has these repercussions all year long. I would suggest keeping the negative comments to a minimum. And things like "we'll never go back" shouldn't be said. I'll be eating and enjoying my time there all year, if they are outta beer at times, so what. Offer to drive them to the store and buy beer. Or just talk to the owner, personally, and he'll offer to 'make it up to you' by offering a meal on the house.	1

				Thanks Frogfart, I couldn't have said it better myself. Brad is a good friend of mine but I have no affiliations with any restaurants here in Puerto, I had a terrible dining experience and wanted people to know about it. Actually, I had a fatty piece of pork the other night at The Split. I didn't say anything but Brad had noticed I left food on my plate and asked what the problem was. He was very sorry and offered me a free meal the next time. I really appreciate his concern and know everyone there does their best to please all of their customers. 14703	5	tomzap	Re: Photos from Flying Adven	It does seem like the New York Times shot themselves in the foot on this. You have to not lose sight of the fact that this was a newspaper story and not a campaign point by either a Republican nor a Democratic campaign (at least that I have read but I have not looked deeply). Maybe it has become a campaign story after the story ran but the newspaper is the one who should maybe not have run it, it seems now. David Brooks does a pretty good job of defending McCain but why does he say at the end of the editorial "Maybe Obama can start this campaign over." Didn't the New York Times run the story about the lobbyist djland, you can go with the skydivers and ask to go with them in the plane without jumping. Last jenuary they were asking 350 pesos for extra passenger I wouldn't think that the Ejido would have any connection with the Municipal office of the Delagado in V.O. but I could be wrong. Please post information on this event if you know any more about it, such as where there current office is, or One more thought on the bulldozing: has anyone heard info on who bought that ken, come on now are you serious? i just today read an article where your "socially evolved" mexico has a practice, in the southern state of chiapas, of throwing honduran and salvadoran immigrants off of trains if they do not have sufficient bribes for the mexican police. often limbs are lost and these people die. and the really interesting thing is these immigrants don't even wish to stay in mexico but are heading to the "socially unevolved" US and Canada. So, my question is if the US and Canada are so socially backward why is there such an influx of immigration to there borders? Feelings based logic just doesn't wash. You mentioned healthcare, i'm assuming your a proponent of national FF,I need not trash the trash by now we all know that what I said was correct and that I will always warn others about nancye. 14719	15	bobm	Re: Purchasing and renting of	The situation at each condo is somewhat different. There are state laws on condos which all have to follow and Colima's seem fairly good but difficult for a seasonal gringo to evaluate. Each Condo Association then has its own set of rules that can't conflict with the state laws but can have a huge range of interpretations, restrictions and requirements with more or less consistent enforcement. Be sure and get a copy of the condo rules before you buy, or have good discussions with existing owners. 				I keep asking this question of the anti-climate change crowd, but have never gotten an answer: Do you really believe that unbridled release of hydrocarbons & other noxious gasses into the atmosphere has had ZERO effect on our planet's climate? It is certainly up for debate just HOW MUCH effect spewing limitless greenhouse gases into the atmosphere has; and whether or not the effect of same is superseded by the changes in climate owing to sunspots, axis shifts, Let's clarify a few things for the cerebrally challenged. I count AT LEAST four bad reviews in this thread on Guada. I think it is admirable that Diego has taken note, & I truly hope that he responds to these complaints. But for Jeff to suggest that it was, "one bad meal..." is absolutely ridiculous. And to further suggest that it is completely justifiable for HIM to complain OVER AND OVER AND OVER AGAIN about the rude treatment he received from Nancye while all the while admonishing others for the EXACT same kinds of warnings & complaints about SEPARATE INCIDENTS at Guada, is hypocritical beyond belief. But in all fairness, it's what we've come to expect from someone who believes only what where are we talking about. where was the site of the ejido office. thanks

				For what it's worth, I've been eating at Guadua off and on since it opened, and I've never had a bad meal there. (I obviously wasn't there the night the cook didn't show up.) However, there is a degree of inattentiveness by management evident in two complaints which management has repeatedly received: 1. You can't run a high-end boutique restaurant and provide flimsy, cheap paper napkins. Quality paper dinner napkins, yes, but cloth napkins would be more fitting. 2. You can't keep telling the customers that you don't have any wine, or have only limited wine, because "the shipment hasn't arrived from Mexico City."

				When someone rents an apartment, or whatever dwelling, they have paid for certain rights. Understand so far? The Real estate practice has a law to follow. Still with me? I took realty in college, and I know for a fact the right to have "water" is one of the major ones. Privacy is also a right you pay for and hold as a renter if you didn't know. 				I probably shouldn't keep this going but I feel the need to explain a little further. Eric, we indeed had a reservation for 12 people. Showed up early and we even ordered a special celebration cake. I didn't eat because there wasn't anything on the menu I wanted but still ended up paying 250 pesos for beers and a bowl of cold egg noodles that my wife only ate half of. I've been coming to Mexico for 30 years, I know the drill. I could have forgiven everything that happened that night but for the fact that we had to be lectured by the young waitress. Luckily she wasn't talking directly to me or there would have been real trouble. She was very condescending and impolite. I do give Deigo credit for posting here and believe I'm curious about the lack of green iguanas in the Huatulco area. Were they never common to this region, or have they been hunted for food to the point of becoming scarce? I have seen a black iguana (apparently not a true iguana) near La Crucecita and lots of small lizards, but never the green iguana. Although I think they are now a protected species, are they still being used as a food?

				Chris, changing ownership of the foreign plated vehicle has nothing to do with your FM3 or Mexican government. Ownership and title transfer is a function of whatever US State the vehicle is registered in. So your first step would be to do that--have the title transferred to your name. For you to have that vehicle in Mexico legally is, of course, linked to your FM3 or FMT. As Sparks says you can only do that at the border, you bring the car in and it is linked to your migratory document. There is no way for you to legally transfer ownership of a foreign plated vehicle & keep it in the country without going back across the border. By	34

I sold my Mexican Plated Mazda this past November to a Canadian woman who owns a home here but never stays here over 180 days so enters Mexico on a Tourist visa each year and there was no problem. If this is a state agency I would hardly give it much weight. In the past year I have seen a few people have to leave because of water infections. The Colotepec sewer project was never completed. And now we have dozens and dozens x 10 more homes with poop going under Zicatela beach from Lazaro etc... The newspapers cited the beaches near Punta Colorado as the most polluted. They will print anything to get people here but the people are not stupid. Like a local As we were sitting at the playa (west end of Melaque) this afternoon enjoying a refresca, we noticed what seemed to be some reddish/brown areas in the water. Has anyone else seen this today or heard of the area being affected by a red tide these past couple of days? I experienced one here last year, icky water and Anyone have any recommendations on hotels that take pets near San Luis Potosi, or Matehuala (between SLP and Saltillo), or Saltillo???? In the nineteen years that I have been going to Melaque and Barra, I would say that Froy is one of the nicest guys I have met. I have watched him grow up, learn good English (or Canadian Eh as he calls it) practise waitering and learn the restaurant business after several seasons in Ottawa, ONT. He does joke all the time and keeps us laughing, which is part of the fun when visiting his establishments. He also makes fun of himself and laughs when we poke fun at him. You obviously did not understand his humour, and that's ok as everyone is different. You can't expect 100% of people to think the same things are funny. I took my 6'5", 250 lb son-in-law, in Froy's restaurant to see if he still had large, We paid $390 pesos for two of us and when we got to the taxi found another passenger who had paid $390 pesos as well. To bad we didn't get together before we hit the taxi stand. Then coming back we paid $300 pesos and were told that the extra $90 was charged at the airport because of federal taxes and such. I don't recall ever seeing credit used and we always try and save enough The red tide has been here for about 3 weeks now. It was thicker just out of the harbor entrance to Barra early last week. Went out Saturday and it is still thick. The prop wash looks like it is just full of dirt. Once we got past El Viejo the red left but the water is really dirty and cold. Fishing has moved out to about 20-25 miles due to the water condition. We registered 68 in the lagoon behind Barra which I have never seen. We fished the bottom at Bajo del Cien and the baits came back up frozen so I guess it is even colder down deeper. That was not the And I thought those fish were blind mullet in the lineup? 				Just observing the ocean will provide a clear answer...we are definately having an very negative impact on our ecoshpere. Warmer, cooler, to me that is a mute point (we simply don't have enough data, need a sample of at least a few million years of weather data to understand the patterns). A Can you, possibly Nan, tell me approximately how much it is to register a small car with Mexican plates, into my name, and where do I go please? Also, where Sorry I am not Nan, but I can help a bit with this: To register a car it costs about $1000 pesos. However the exact price depends on the year. This also dictates the cost of your 'tenencia'. Models from '98 and before now don't pay this whereas newer ones do. To put plates on an imported car, from the states say, it costs about $3000 - $4000pesos as you have to pay for a whole load of extra things such as emissions tests, special stickers, etc For the driving liscence you have to go to Autlan. 				Hey Lencho. I have been coming to Puerto Escondido for well over 30 years. I could go anywhere in the world but I keep coming back. Sometimes I feel like I'm in rut or that I am missing something. Maybe I am but I don't seem to care. In the past (10-20) years ago I would think about going someplace else but could never figure out where I would enjoy myself like I do in Puerto. Sure, Puerto has its problems. Right now it may have more problem than in the past but it is growing very fast. I hope the people figure it out. As I get ready to do the trip again this year my problem is that I can't seem to get it together to go someplace else... again. Lencho, you obviously live in Puerto Escondido and A 'machucón' is a bruise, but for baseball fans it is also an infield chop. This one led to a misplay in veracruz yesterday: Con uno fuera, Soriano, quien se fue de 3-3, y Urias dieron hits, Serna conectó machucón por el pitcher donde éste hizo mal tiro a segunda para que anotara Soriano y luego Garabito con sencillo metió otra. 				Hi KR, I agree that you shouldn't buy a place on the basis of photos, but I should say that the 5 places in Puerto I have seen in 'net photos and in person match pretty much exactly - I saw the properties with Rick before I saw the photos on the internet. (In fact when we got home I wondered why I'd bothered to take pics of the properties since they pretty much matched the internet ones.) I'm usually more concerned with what I can't see in person or in photos - wiring, plumbing, structural problems etc! Your point about location is a good one - prime importance along with structural/mechanical and title. May I ask, what appeals about being outside of town? Do you need a car, where you are? I have really I think many vistors think the same as PB! Living full time presents differnet challenges (Info1 vents them often), but visiting is still a pleasure and I suspect did all see the fog this morning... wow that was alot of fog.... Vamu would we have to return the truck to you- here in Puerto? and what would the cost be per day or maybe a week? Thanks for the response

Also the Aharo computer store at the entrance to Same building as Immigration, 5th or 4th floor, don't recall which now. Fishing is normally good in late October zummie as long as the stormy season has passed and it usually ends for good by around the 22nd of the month. Some of the best dorado fishing I have had down here has been in September and October. Most of the restaurants in Barra are open in October because we don't have that many seasonal businesses over here they are mostly family owned concerns that stay open year around. Peters is fighting in court against a law that sought to end a pilot project allowing Mexican trucks greater access to U.S. roads. The North American Free Trade Agreement gave Mexican trucks the access beginning in 1995. But the U.S. only opened the roads to a few trucks when the pilot program began last September. Long-standing opposition from labor and safety groups I have plenty of reservations from foreigners for April and into the middle of May for my tours and I even have some for the Casa de Marco http://www.casademarco.com which I will be taking over the management of March 25th. April and May won't be as busy as February, Christmas or Semanas Santa and Pascua but it looks like business will be pretty strong which is great. When I first came here and even when I started Sea to Sierra back in 2003 the foreign tourist season was only Christmas to a week before Easter. I asked several people and always the same o same o. They are super big tortillas tough etc..... but the origen? Years before any gringos dreamed of one they were made in Tlalixtac de Cabrera. AT that time Tlalixtaca or just plain Tlalixtac. A small village between El Tule and Oaxaca City. The village to this day is responsible for most of the tlayudas. Although in modern times the production has branched out into the smaller villages in the Central Valley area. Including Ocotlan, Etla, Tlacolula etc. The women many years ago that brought them to Oaxaca City were know as the "tlayudas" and through the course of time I would highly recommend Barbara Schaffer.	1131

				Coming to the end of a ten day visit to Puerto and I'd like to comment on a few of the restaurants. One reason I return to Mexico over and over again is the great and varied cuisine. One of the attractions of Puerto for me is the wide variety of good places to eat. Hadn't been back in two years and noticed so many new places. Anyway we started with Junto al Mar, excellent atmosphere, great shrimp but everything else was pretty lackluster..new ownership we heard. Tried El Jardin which was fine. We always visit La Paradilla Mixteca on Avenida Oaxaca for tacos, tlayudas and basic grilled meat. Very consistent and ridiculously cheap. Four of us ate for 200 pesos and we were stuffed. Try the

				NEW YORK (AP) - Eliot Spitzer knew how to catch bad guys by following the money. As attorney general, he once broke up a call-girl ring and locked up 18 people on corruption, money-laundering and prostitution charges. . As New York attorney general, Spitzer was also familiar with how to bust up a prostitution ring. Spitzer proudly announced on April 8, 2004, that authorities had arrested 18 people on promoting prostitution and related charges—including money laundering and falsifying business records—in an investigation of escort services in New York. "This was a sophisticated and lucrative operation with a multitiered management structure," Spitzer said at the time. "It was, however, nothing more than a prostitution ring, and now its owners and operators will be the tucker in the olde ireland is a bit ragged but you might find something in

				We are pleased to announce our group has been admitted to Rotary International. We are now an official Rotary Club. Please come join the fun and put something back into our community. This Saturday, from 3 pm to 6 pm, is our first annual Chili and Salsa Cookoff. Lots of chili and salsa to sample at the Jardin in Barra de Navidad. Beer will be served by our own "Jungle John" and Margaritas served by Barra's own infamous "Tequila Larry". Did I mention that

We just returned from another great week in paradise. I fished with Tomas from Hotel Barra first on Saturday. We hit the red tide at 20 miles with plumes within a few feet of surface. The jack crevalle attack was in full swing on edges. We trolled edges with triple of large jacks making total of 7 boated in hour. Picked up one more at 5 miles and ran in to give five to staff at Hotel Barra. Also fished with Tomas and Checke from staff at Hotel along coast on Tuesday. Landed a sierra mackrel on lure I brought and Cocol hooked on another jig I brought and Checkie landed African Pompano.	447

If you are not familiar with this type of accommodations, you drive into a garage and push a button to close the garage door which is your way of locking up since you DO NOT get a room key. If you are taking the cuota from Guadalajara and take the highway towards I feel amiss in not recommending Cabanas Accali sooner. But catching up with things at home after three months in Mexico have precluded that. Nevertheless, we highly recommend them, having spent five weeks there in late January and February. Their location is ideal, about two hundred yards past the Santa Fe, down Zicatela. Accordingly, one has access to the waves of Zicatela and easy walking distance to the calmer Playa Marinero. A further ten-minute walk along the beach takes you to the Adoquin. There are sixteen cabanas, some of bamboo and wood construction, others of brick. Some have air conditioning and remodeled tile baths. All have mosquito nets. Centering the compound is a small swimming pool and outdoor shower. There is a poolside palapa bar that Oh Oh. As I recall Giselle of Bistro I know this topic has been discussed over and over, but I just received a piece of information I need to check out. I have been informed that, as of 1 January, a non-Mexican citizen will be considered to be a resident for the capital gains exemption on the sale of a residence only if the seller has an FM2. I know that an FM2 or an FM3 were used in the past as factors in determining residency. It would certainly make sense if that were the case because since there is no limit on the number of days per year that a person holding an FM3 can reside outside of Mexican territory an FM3 doesn't really provide any sort of proof of actual residency in Mexico. For example; I obtained my Mexican citizenship under the old rules by living in Mexico on an FM3 for 5 years but to make the residency requirement I still had to prove that I was actually living in Mexico during that time. To do that they checked the immigration stamps in my FM3 and my Canadian passport that showed my entrance and exit dates into and out of	142

All sales involving foreigners that I have been made aware of in the past 7 months have required an FM2. (I have lived north of Puerto Vallarta for 12 years and have know of over 30 sales.) 5. 				Nan raises a good point. Assuming that a Notario makes a mistake (e.g., calculates the capital tax too low -- or not at all), will that mistake then follow the property with the new owner bearing a potential tax obligation arising from the sale? Does Hacienda ever followup on calculations? I would think the bank trust would have some interest in adding some certainty to the system. I agree with Buzzardwest that I do not begrudge the Mexican government from collecting as much tax as it can in these transactions. The problem is a lack of predictability. When I went to renew my IMSS coverage in Manzanillo on February 22 this year, the clerk told me I was a month early, to come back in March. He showed me on the computer screen that the termino/expiry date was March 31 even though my Appointment book said February 28. I was told renewal was not possible ahead of time. Monday morning, yesterday March 23, I went in again. The same clerk told me I was too late. He looked at the computer information, talked to the supervisor and then told me I could not renew. 15917	5 jarhead	Re: Jarhead's Trip Report Par	I saw the post on jumpers being injured the other day in Puerto. Why doesn't someone simply go down to the Arco Iris and chat with the skydivers to find out the real story. Over the last four years I have hung around the jumpers and gone up in the Twin Otter 20 times with that fun loving group. Skydivers and their pilots are always fun to be around, thrill seekers are always good company. Low flying is not that dangerous, especially in a Twin Otter, a world class airplane. When Dennis was filming Jarhead Gets High in January 2007 I felt safe skimming Zicatelas waves as low as 10 feet above the water. Having Wacko Jacko, a real world class pilot at the controls made it THE A Ticket ride in Hi Folks: I am planning on relocating to the area full time. Sixty Four, (64) retired, single no children, non smoker. I shall be in the area looking for accommodations, locations in May of 2008. I have 4 horses that I plan on bring with me after my search trip. Does any one have any info. on small farms in the area with a small casita that may be available for rent, lease or sale. I may even house sit for a few months. I prefer to rent or lease until I have had time to fully explore the area. That is unless I fall in love with some location/Casita/Farm. Size casita 1200 sq. ft. would be about 3-4 hectares, doesn't need to be near the beach, but have good pasture/hay/forage available for my horses (arabians) the beginning of the ending of puerto escondido as I knew it. The beginning of a new punta diamante in acapulco style. So, But so sad for all who failed in love "4. All sales involving foreigners that I have been made aware of in the past 7 months have required an FM2." You mean in order to qualify for the exemption?" Yes, that is what I meant in reference to this thread on capital gains 'exemptions.' "How much is the capital gains tax on real estate property? I've heard reports of from 2% to 33%?????" 33% from my understanding. When a notario signs off on a property transaction, it is final. Notarios are appointed for life and have the final say on property. I would sort of compare them to a combination of county records clerk, title insurance, lawyer, judge and jury in the USA. When a notario signs off, he is protecting all interests of buyer, seller, and ".....my horses (arabians) they are like my kids if I had any that I knew about." A word of caution, not all livestock adjust well to our coastal tropical Gracias for the information. These are Arabians so I am hoping that they will adjust to the heat and other critters. I have had them many years and if I don't care for them in a manor that I am comfortable with I will be distressed. Plus What "stats" are you looking for? There aren't any statistics for house or land for sale or for sales, nor for scams. Things do not work here as in the States or Canada. There are no general listings either so you may have to work with Just came from Sergios. 15949	6	Gri-lango	Re: Whereabouts of Chicago	Calderon is planning a 227 billion peso proposal to improve water service nationwide and institute a conservation system to have water for future generations. This proposal will also include waste treatment systems. For example Mexico City consumption is an incredible 350 liters per person per day. The capital and 58 surrounding municipalities use 5 cubic meters per second far more than the amount replenished in local aquifers. Wasteful consumption coupled with a water system that loses 50%of the water flowing through its pipes.Then there is the talk of refining irrigation systems that are antiquated in Hispanic is correct about La Huerta, like the Tomatlan area there is lots of good pasture land up there with plenty of water. The municipio of Cuautitlan next to it is real horse and ranch country too with plenty of water. You should definitely come here to the Costalegre and have a look around too though. It is a nice area to live in and with irrigation you could grow pasture here. There seems to be plenty of ground water in most rural areas and as long as there is power to the land it is no problem to pump it. I have been surprised when out in the back country to see power lines in places where one would not expect them so that the farmers and ranchers can pump water. I have also seen a few windmills for I rented a car from Alamo on line for 108.00 per week and got a tiny little Hyundai...brand new. I have full coverage on my Alaska Air miles Master Card so phoned them first to make sure they would cover everything and they said yes and to waive all insurance. The girl at the counter tried to tell me it was mandatory and I just said no! Then she shrugged and we got on with it. After one week we decided we wanted to upgrade for a road trip and so I went on line and rented a jetta for 188 for the week and went and traded the car at the airport. The jetta was beat up with a broken windshield and a missing hub cap and letters off the name. This suited us just fine because we put on 2000 km does anybody asked to the skydivers? I did. During the week there were couple of problem with parachutes. Both were released and opened the reserve one.	680

				You say you are looking at buying in Barra but you don't say what kind of title the land is currently held under. Much of the land in Barra has been regularized and if that is the case with the land you are looking at then you would have no need of a presta nombre because you can hold the escrituras in your own name with a bank trust. Something to consider in this case, the government doesn't look favorably on foreigners using presta nombres to avoid paying the bank trust fees so if that is what you are doing keep it under your hat. If you are buying ejido land that is different, that you can not hold in your own name with a bank trust. I have friends who have presta nombres for ejido land that they "own". A seller may reduce his price if he can close in less than 30 days. 2. Assuming that I acquire the property using a presta nombre my plan is to retire in a couple of years and live Dryhouse, you would be well advised to read my post again and notice I wrote "own" in double quotes! You are certainly not telling ME anything I don't already know and what friends of mine choose to do with their money is entirely their business not mine. As I stated in my post I have no idea how these agreements with the presta nombres would hold up in court. The first line on any Ejido land title documents I have seen is the signer declaring that he/she is a Mexican citizen. All of these friends had the agreements with their presta nombres drawn by up by Mexican attorneys that the friends consulted with and subsequently hired to do the agreement but that does not mean that they would hold up in court.	1099

16073	12	sparks	Re: Buying Land using a Nom	It can be done in your name without owning property. I bought my car out here 4 years ago before I even had my FM3. The way I did it was with a rent contract and a utility bill. The rental contract can be bought in a stationary shop and then you fill it in yourself. This along with the id of the owner (who in my case was a friend's mother) went and registered the car in my name. Then the following year I changed the registered address to Melaque so i didn't have to go to Guadalajara for my tenencia & refrendo each year. Now this was in Guadalajara so I don't know if it was easier there than here but that is how i did it. Of course I'm particularly intrigued by the "InParadise" screen name. It brings to mind the metaphor about Adam in the "Garden of Eden." The rule was, enjoy all it's splendor but "DON'T TOUCH THE FRUIT!" The principle of law in that example was" ABSOLUTE" whereas the rules of "ownership" (note the quotes, thank you Nan) are a little bit more confusing as long as you remember that a foreigner cannot own land in the restricted zone, 50km of the coast of Mexico. Even with a fido comiso, provided for by the Mexican Constitution, the national title, escreturo, is held by a bank, only in trust. Best start is looking on the internet at the listings for each realtor, bearing in mind that they probably have more properties than they show. The realtor gets his or her money from the buyer after the sale has taken place. The realtor does not have to do the due diligence part of the transaction (getting the paper that shows there is no lien on the property or taxes due, plus determining that the seller is the legal owner of the land), that occurs when you are in the process of getting Dixie Due to Mexican slander laws it would be unwise to call some one a bad or dishonest land hustler. 				No surprise, FAA found to be too cozy with regulated airlines on safety problems. Don't expect healthy cabin air to be a priority either... WASHINGTON — Government officials have blocked enforcement of safety rules at major airlines for years because they have a cozy relationship with the companies, according to the testimony of U.S. inspectors who will appear before Congress Thursday. The testimony alleges for the first time that inspectors have been pressured by Federal Aviation Administration officials to change findings or to soft-pedal enforcement actions for several of the nation's largest airlines, including Northwest, United and Continental. The controversy over the FAA's Good Afternoon from Huatulco -- It has been our fortunate experience to connect with several local families in the Huatulco area who are joint participants with us in the securing and distribution of basic school supplies and sporting goods to outlying schools. In previous years, we purchased all of the supplies in USA and brought them down in an extra suitcase. However, this year our local contacts assisted us in purchasing the school supplies locally (with a substantial discount) thus saving us the difficulty of an extra heavy suitcase, AND we spent the funds in the local economy. I should also mention that the local families assisted in the purchase of the goods and the selection of the schools. Finally, I Be very careful who you use to book hotel reservations. I was recently taken advantage of by 'Small Town Ventures Mexico'. While I did get the reservation requested I paid twice as much to the accomodation consultant Bob Moody than Hi Victor: We could meet at "the red lobster" say 1 pm any day this week Eric In Puerto You don't need no stinkin reservations. ok but whats the reason for not using Geko Reality or lighthouse or Blue horizon Just to say you wouldnt use them is ok for you.. but if your giving an opinion let us know why, its like saying you use Wendy's but dont go to Mcdonalds but no Cool post! Its amazing how well things are recieved in the mountain areas. Silversard has to be a regular reader knowing to put up his shield to protect himslf from ING repercussions. Ive taken a few things to those out of the way places and its fun. I asked one group of kids if many gringos came into their town and they stared up at me and said they had never seen one! I gotta kick out of that. Definitely worth the trip just to see their expression to the question. Good to have you back Charlie. Lupe and I were in Huatulco for two weeks in January, but never got to see you or Rose. Spent time with Rafa, Suzi, Gustavo and MaryEllena. Hope to see you next time there, could be in August (HOT!) My dear LT: I was not sure your post was is festive manner. Unfortunately there are some posters on this phorum with very bad attitude (one of the reasons I quit posting two or three years ago). Specially those who have different nicks. If the post had been posted by, for example, Chicago Frank, I would have understood the joke and replied with another one, because I know his style. Unfortunattely I don't know who are you (I guess you are here in Huatulco or in Mexico at least). Probably we've seen each other several times on the streets of Huatulco. My apologies for not understanding your joke. Believe me, I'm one of the pesrsons with best humor sense in Huatulco. If you don't want to dive with me, sorry for deal directly. in the modern age of communication there is NO need for agents... the burgers suck!!! phipsy... et al You question warrants an answer if for no other reason than clarification. Actually you asked only a half question. You did not ask why I would use certain realtors You only asked why not use others. I will answer both questions..... The reason I would use Coco or Zicatela and not use Gecko Realty or Lighthouse Properties or Blue Horizon is because of the fact it was my opinion solely based on my experiences with these realtors. And my opinion of their knowledge of real estate and their integrity. To use your analogy... If you ask 10 people where to get a good burger and 8 say McDonalds and 2 say Sorry HTO, but what the heck are you trying to say? what does the gestapo, or this Austrian dude have to do with Silversard returning to HUX? Is this an inside Charlie, Maybe it is Jamon Serano? Inspiring stuff Silversard. I truly hope the jokesters don't pollute this thread, it is Eric - We have a Mexican friend who is also interested. It did not take the natural swells here well at all. and running at any speed was quite bumpy and wet. The boat was great for water skiing in the bay and local cruising. We also spent about an hour talking with Vicki, his partner who handles the legal stuff and she explained how everything worked. 				Hi Mollica, 1.- Mosquitos are certainly present in June. In my experience though, they mainly bother me around sunset. There are, of course, places where they are more abundant during the day and evening, like the golf course for example. In general nothing a bit of mosquito spray or a fan can't handle. 2.- There are 36 beaches here, many are swimmable, others less. Have a look at our website for more info about the beaches. The foam is not a problem, it's on your way: I like the expression. Some body told me that in mazunte two years ago. Browned Hair with a special tattoo in her arm. I felt in love with Mazunte

Mosquitoes: Basically in June could be starting the rainy season (normally at the end of the month). They show up close to the sunset, and depends on the area. However, they are not really a problem. A good repellent it's enough to keep them away. Beach Swimming. There are almost 40 beaches. Some are like swimming pools, some other are more challenging. Tangolunda bay (the beach front of the big hotels) is fine to swim in average, but if a strong wind or a period of strong surge arises (it happens every four weeks for three or four days) it becomes dangerous. Our guide, Esteban Reyes, suggested we visit one that he had not seen himself even though he has guided people for years in the Huatulco area. So we went to El Granadillo and saw the largest waterfall we have ever been able to get "up close and personal" with. In fact, we were able to get right in the center of it by going through a small tunnel at its side. I had VERY mixed feelings about doing so because I have been told it is dangerous to actually get directly under falls because of objects that may be floating down a river, soooo I What do you mean?	142

I haven't bought anything yet, but my wife likes their "wacky" approach. A good sense of humor is an often It's illegal to use a prestanombre (paying a Mexican to put the land you buy in his name and then lease it back to you), but it is a common practice. Most people I know who buy land this way are not concerned about inheritance issues. With a fideicomiso you must name an heir. If the heir is not Mexican, he/she has the option of renewing the fideicomiso for another 50 years in his/her name or of selling the property. Ultimately, all land in Mexico belongs to the government. That's in the constitution. Even in the U.S. it works that way. The U.S. supreme court just ruled that a city can use it's power of eminent domain to buy land for commercial purposes (a shopping center that will pay more taxes Well..... I think that Imago's (VERY legitimate) point is that discovering, or establishing, a linear "history" of any particular property's sale (s), is simply a means of documenting the real legal owner of that acreage/parcel, who then has the (potentially problem-free) 'right' to actually sell that property. In this regard, it's sort of the MX version of standard Norteño escrow/title-search..... errrr..... Right???? And while approaches like, "I'm sure if someone wants the land we'll figure it out, even if we have to use a prestanombre", may (or may NOT) be a legitimate means of discovering actual "LEGAL" ownership (hence the sales rights of a property), I would be a bit hesitant to invest in lands devoid of proper Thank you I know where that is I will stop in, Also I love chicken Boy Hi everybody, i want to let you know that Cafe Dublin is now open from 10 am and we are gonna have the champions league, olympics and more, come and We have 6 beachfront condos available at Sirena de Fuego on Playa del Coco - up the beach from Playa Grande near the Grand Bay Resort and Barra de Navidad. The Environmental Protection Agency published a 588-page examination of the issues surrounding greenhouse gases but refused to adopt its staff's finding that such gases could cause disastrous flooding and drought and affect food and water supplies. The White House Rina, I am pretty sure that crocs are like any wild animals, it is never a good idea to feed them as it conditions them to think of humans as a food source. If you don't want to eat the fish that you catch either practice catch & release (no KR makes a very important point in distinguishing between land that has been mapped and divided into lots that are recognized by the State and/or Federal gov't and communal lots. (An Acta de Posesion on a communal lot is a one page document which names the owners of the contiguous properties. An escritura (deed) tells you the lot number etc. and not your neighbor's names.) Strictly speaking "ejido" property, while communal, is not the same as much of the communal property in Oaxaca state. Ejidos are land that was given to landless farmworkers in the 1920s as part of land-reform legislation after the large haciendas were broken up. It is relatively easy to privatize ejido land. The only thing I can report back, KR, is that there are more police patrols in the form of truck with 6 policeman which passes my house every day or two. Now that Bacocho has pretty much emptied out with all the snowbirds gone back I think that if you can afford it in the first place, you can afford to rebuild. 16610	5 Farkem	Re: What Global Warming? 2	Melting Causes Lake in Chile to Empty SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) - Melting ice in southern Chile caused a glacial lake to swell and then empty suddenly, sending a "tsunami" rolling through a river, a scientist said Thursday. No one was injured in the remote region. Glacier scientist Gino Casassa said the melting of the Colonia glacier, which he blamed on rising world temperatures, filled the Cachet Lake and increased pressure on the ice sheet. The water bored a 5-mile tunnel through the glacier and finally emptied into the Baker River on April 6. "The remarkable thing is that the mass of water moved against the current of the river," Casassa told The Associated Press by telephone from the Center for Nips and moors. First the nips, 2 quetions? They decided to let it go till the next time I was in the area 2 weeks ago and walked thru the complex. They should have the palm trees in by now (check this for me) and although they are getting close, with some units ready for furniture and appliances and millwork complete, others are almost at that stage. The owners were on site and pushing hard. The attitude is do it right as it will be the 5 star resort. I was actually very impressed with the complex. The last update was for completion by May 1st, however I must second EXACTLY what Phipsy said. I apologize if this is not informative LT, please google "Moors". The term commonly refers to dark skinned north Africans, & predates Islam. Using the term interchangeably with Wahabis, Saudis, ragtops, & Arabs just shows what an ignorant, bigoted fool you are. You might as well say that the gringo settlers in Texas wanting to keep their chattel of N slaves who were outlawed by the wetback government; urged president Polk to first try to buy & annex Mexican land, & then when the offer was refused, to declare war & then illegally occupy another sovereign country much the same as president Bush has in Iraq. Usually I love watching you & Eric Hi Juby, Thanks for the reply, a 5 star resort.....Wow!!! Is it kind of a high rating for that complex as it does not have any restuarants and/or room for one Unless they plan to have a few and also Life guards at the pool and on the beaches. I guess the common grilling area for everyone to use is considered 5 star I agree the beach is nice but not spectacular as a 5 star resort would have. also it is to under developed. Needs shopping and many restaurants. which I think will destroy the peace. also the roads get washed out every winter so getting there during the prime tourist season is not that enjoyable. and nothin across the street of playa Grand seems to be buildable. some areas look like a dumping Just in case some are confused by this post - I was a tad. Playa Grande development is on Playa de Cocos over on the other side of the Isla Navidad golf course so is not part of the Grand Bay / Isla Navidad property that this thread was initially about. I'm sure that they will finish Playa Grande, things just take a bit longer down here sometimes and as far as I know they do plan a restaurant and catering department but I don't imagine that they would open that prior to finishing the complex, not a lot of walk in traffic out there just yet.	680

When I say 5 star, I would include very clean premises, exceptional pool, food, tennis,service, etc. Based on the actual floor plans and specifications etc, this will be a very nice complex. As to opinions, we are all certainly entitled to have and never change them, if we wish. However, we do not get to have a different set of facts. To claim that our war with Mexico was "an honorable war declared by two neighboring countries disputing territorial rights" flies in the face of the historical record as presented in numerous scholarly works, printed by mainstream, reputable, fact--checking publishers and To, hopefully, answer KR's question as to the difference between an "acta de posesión" and an "escritura." An "acta" is as close as you can get to a title on ejido or communal land. The acta shows the land's boundaries and the name of the person who is in possession of the land. The person who has this document can sign it over to another person. I believe that in most cases the law requires that if it is transferred to person who is not a member of the ejido or community, it must first be offered for sale within the community. Actas de posesión cannot be used to show ownership of the land for the purposes of getting a fideicomiso.	142

Just mop, or hose then sweep wet. A power washer may actually break the surface of the brick, causing eventual disintegration. That outer shell on the cooked barro is the protection against the tiles breaking down. Salt air and or water mist will destroy all barro tiles in time, 5-10 years to replace all if not sealed well on beach homes. The trick is very thin mixtures. We apply it first before the grout goes in, then as you grout either with cement or other, the tiles wont stain one bit. Just sponge clean as they grout. By MERY GALANTERNICK and ALEXEI BARRIONUEVO Published: April 15, 2008 RIO DE JANEIRO — Heavy rains over the past month have created a fertile breeding ground for mosquitoes carrying the dengue fever virus, deepening a crisis that has claimed at least 80 lives in Rio State. The dengue strain ravaging this tropical city is now believed to be stronger and more lethal than the virus responsible for an epidemic in 2002, considered the worst in recent history in Brazil, according to Dr. Jacob Kligerman, health secretary for the city. The spreading epidemic has shown no signs of slowing. Since January, 75,399 people have been infected in Rio State, health officials say. The mortality rate is

Ten drops in a litre of water has been shown to kill giardia in 2.5 minutes. Brand names (as Penny noted) are microdyn or Bacdyn. 2. Failing access to them, what do you do? I stick by my original note - a good blob of chlorine in warm water for ten minutes. Chlorine is NOT a first choice, as you note, as it does a poor job compared to the alternatives. 			Not so with this SIM because it has never been used, once activated the number will expire if not used or if no credit is added to it for 180 days but this SIM was never activated when I bought the phone because the gal knew I was putting my old SIM in it. She didn't even have the number that it will have. She told me that she will set that up if and when I decide to use the chip. Also the 180 day thing seems to be flexible. Pelos mislaid his cel that has his the number on our business card for over 180 days and I talked TelCel into reactivating the number when we found the phone. It was not a big deal because they had not re-issued the number, we'd had the number for about three years at that point. I actually killed by a longliner...what a waste

The report released by the National Defense University raises fresh doubts about President Bush's projections of a U.S. victory in Iraq just a week after Bush announced that he was suspending U.S. troop reductions. The report carries considerable weight because it was written by Joseph Collins, a former senior Pentagon official, and Hello....I am wanting to retire to the Barra area soon but I have some questions about some of the costs of medications that I need during the 2 year waiting period that the IMSS has for pre-existing conditions. The water truck comes by and sells you 5 gal. bottles of water. Your own Solar chargers or wind generators can provide electricity. The La Playa trailer park in the center of town I believe runs at about $ 500.00 (Dollars) a month with hookups, but it is quite close according to friends who stayed there. 17313	15	altajoe	Re: SIM cards and WIFI in Ma	Thanks for the insight. Any thoughts about Movistar? I can get a SIM on EBAY fairly inexpensively. It would allow me to et the number before I leave the US I dunno. I've lived just a few hours from PE and not been threatened, despite being an old, fat, slow-moving target. I've avoided spending much time in PE, but a threat to my physical safety was not on the horizon as far as my reasons were concerned; it had more to do with the pervasive smell of raw sewage in so many parts of the town. By and large, the 2 groups hang out in different parts of town and have very different experiences of Puerto. Obviously, nobody goes to the Split Coconut looking for trouble. (Except one time when there were words exchanged between two women.) The same cannot be said for Casa Babylon or BarFly, but hey, they are literally miles apart. Chapala does not attract young, international travelers. What I love is the mix of people here - ages, nationalities, backgrounds. Puerto is not Lake Chapala and it isn't I think that Movistar is the one that Telcel recently acquired a bunch of stock or something like that and their coverage is about the same as Telcel.	158

Nan you are always spot on. Look forward to any reports. Alaska Air has changed schedules and now takes two days to return and some incoming overnights also. Still hope I think the point is that tourism and retirement communities in Mexico (and elsewhere) have an environmental cost that previously had not been factored into the economic effect. For example, typically, foreigners consume more electricity per capita than Mexicans. Does this mean that Mexico will have to increase its energy output or will energy prices rise or both? Same with water. In many places, including Mexico, people are starting to measure the benefit of a golf course in terms of attracting foreign capital with the environmental and economic cost of diverting water from agriculture. A few years ago, the First answer for me is any month I can get offshore. LOL Cocol was saying November is one of best with tuna, dorado and billfish available. I have only fished Feb and March. 				Villas Razed by Spain Stun Foreigners as Housing Slump Deepens By Sharon Smyth April 30 (Bloomberg) -- Leo Levett-Smith and his wife, Jean, thought they did everything right when they bought their retirement home in Spain. They used a registered real estate agent, a Spanish notary and obtained their mortgage through one of country's largest savings banks. Then in January they received a demolition order saying the house had been built without a permit. ``We really believed we had taken all the necessary precautions," says Levett-Smith, a 65-

Of course in the wealthy countries, birth control should be illegal. Abortion very illegal. Maybe with this type of affirmative action, the world can get back on balance before it's over run with even more poverty and suffering. 17568	5	Eric S.	Re: What Global Warming? 2	On the news this morning there was a reported shark attack at Trocones Beach which is 20 miles north of Ixtapa and on the same coast as Barra and Melaque . It was reported that that shark was a grey shark and the victim bled to death . Shark attacks are not a common occurence in any area, there are normally less than a hundred attacks worldwide each year and of these less than 10 are fatal. The last attack in Mexico reported to the ISAF was in Nayarit and was about 60 years ago. If you think of how many people and hours are spent in the water 100 attacks a year is not bad considering we are in their habitat. 17585	15	Nan	Re: Looking for a Chiropractor	Thanks Nan! You are such a wealth of information--should have thought to ask I can see a world wide analysis of governments. Where the governments that are not able to sustain a functioning country, to a certain level of health standard 'by themselves' would be taken over by other countries that are able to save the living. And in extreme cases, mandatory limits to children. 1 boy, and 1 girl per woman. The many weak countries just get taken over by the more enabled ones. But then there's countries with big armies who still have their people in extreme poverty. A difficult situation to say the least. In those cases, they would be the last to deal with. First apply the system to easier countries like Nicaragua for example. North Korea would be tempted to get their system together, or the ff%&$%& moron in the gringo white house already is playing god and look FF stated, "I'm not a critic; I just want to know who's gonna play God." 17607	12	ScottM	Stingrays ?	Hi Nan and Dan...Always enjoy your great responses to Tomzap enquiries. Your recent comments to the 'Shark Attack' thing brought up something much more realistic for our little stretch of paradise: How to properly treat a stingray stab. Zillions of 'home-brew' and 'old wives tales' about fast treatment for a stingray encounter abound, but what are the facts ? I've heard stories of boiling water poured on the site, peeing on it(!), or various concoctions of beach plants brewed up and dumped on the wound. Even had a lady victim tell me that all the voodoo type stuff failed, until she simply took a couple of Ibuprofen tablets, and I went over to check the surf and see the new development called 'Calechosa Bay'. The surf was pretty good and three structures are barely started in the development. Rest of the story on the web link [img]http://sparks-mexico.com/costalegre/calechosa/slides/surf-calechosa2.JPG[/img]	338
17608	12	sparks	Surfing Calechosa	[img]http://sparks-mexico.com/costalegre/calechosa/slides/surf-Hi Scott, Well peeing on it won't do much, that is for jelly fish stings to help neutralise the venom. Whilst stingrays do have some venom it is not a large amount. Hot water with some disinfectant solution as hot as you can bear is a good start as it takes away the pain to some extent. You also need to wash out the wound and if there are any parts of the stinger left in remove them with tweezers. Afterwards you need to keep an eye out to make sure the wound doesn't become infected (signs of pus, swelling, redness, etc that won't go away). If this happens then go see a doctor/ centro de salud for some antibiotics. As a slight aside, if you are snorkelling or diving then there are signs Alfonso, Julianne and David - the Fors Project - will be playing at Marcello's on the Rinconada- tonight Thursday, Guadua - Friday, Sativa - Saturday and Buena Vida. again on the Rinconada on Sunday. That continent should be divided up into about 10-20 new countries. A little U.S. over there, a little Switzerland, a little Italy, England and so forth. Those crooked African governments don't even care about their own people. Some politicians have to get some better ideas about how to deal with the sad state of places like that. Of course their all afraid of being considered wrong or going outside the box. If the politicians don't go outside the box soon, change may not occur at all. 17633	12	sparks	Re: Surfing Calechosa	Recently there was a shark attack and fatality up the coast in Troncones (Ixtapa). A fine young man lost his life while surfing the shore break there. On another board (ZihuaRob's) this has been the hot topic for the last several days. Many of the flatlanders from the US are scared and seem to think they will be next if they venture into the ocean. My condolences to the family and friends of this young man. However, the odds of being invited to lunch with a local shark are minute by comparison with the everyday risks we all take in life. Getting on the airplane to reach Mexico, riding in a Mexican taxi, surfing the Zicatela shore they have eaten all the sharks around puerto. i saw sharks hiding the baloney in a bay inside the reef near sigatoka on vidi vanu? but another got chased from the same reef right in front of a holiday camp/hotel. good waves, never a crowd. "I would never worry about a shark in The Barra, Melaque area. But sting rays are in the bay...." I wouldn't "worry" but they are there. About 4 years ago, on my second visit to Melaque, I saw a shark, probably 30 meters out in front of Bungalows Orientales, not sure how big it was but the dorsal fin had to be about 2 feet out of the water as it was easily twice the size of the heads of a few people who were splashing about, 5-10 meters out. It didn't look to be interested It would be naive to think there were no sharks in the area, I can easily believe your sighting. I was in Manzanillo last summer and saw a 4m whale shark only a couple of hundred metres from the shore. And a fisherman where we work with the turtle conservation project caught a 3m bull shark on a rod and line from the shore. Both cases within 2hours of here. Also whilst I was working in South Africa on a great white research programme they showed us a picture of a beach in Natal that had shark nets (I know this is a long way from here). It was an aerial shot and there were thousands of swimmers in the water and a bit further out you could see the lines of the nets. However in amongst the swimmers and surfers there were half a dozen decent sized sharks and nobody This is a bit short notice but I was just told about it. This Saturday there will be a Mexican night at Cadillac Ranch hosted by CECYTEJ. It is to help them raise funds to go to a national competition. The entrance cover is $100pesos and includes food (buffet I think) but not drinks. It also includes performances by the dance team of some traditional folklorique dancing. There are restaurants there, furniture stores, a bathing suit shop, English library (open a few hours a week, a neighborhood store, internet cafe, etc. I don't know what you mean by things to do. Most of the evening music places are on Playa Zicatela during the months of Jan./February, beach front open air bars, palapas etc. But, hey, it's only a 20 pesos taxi fare to Villa Mozart. We aren't talking "break the bank" prices here. There are also musical happenings in Bococho, such as at Brad's place and the beach club of Villas del Sol, as wellas various places on La Rinconada from time to time, but not EVERY night. Your the upper class, the crema, the real deal, a man among mice. LOL I will go on to say, that the worlds SOCIAL problems deserve more attention than the global warming issue. If your leader Al Gore would spend the same amount of time and effort looking for cures to the social issues, like 40 people a month being murdered in Chicago, or the severe gang and drug problems occurring in every large american city, he would be a more worthy man than he is at the moment. (In my opinon.) But the global warming issue, is more profitable! So why worry about the STARVING people of today. There's no profit there. Your criticism is Thanks again, sounds great. Will try and find a way to get there from Winnipeg and we will be there in Jan/Feb. Looking foward to being there again! I never forgot being there in the 80's, it was really something. The night life doesn't interest us too much unless there are a few good blues places or music to listen FF said "Look at how much more "productive" South Africa was." Well, I can say that South Africa has some of the worlds finest surfers, they obviously grew up in a stable environment, and are achieving world class recognition. That means making money from a sport, which wasn't possible before. Should I list all the names of the great achievers? The Idea of colonialization in Africa would work, if they divide the rest of the place up, as I stated, to worthy countries. Save your criticism for your wives' evening wear. LOL Positive people could turn the rest of Africa into a paradise of wildlife reservations with inland and coastal communities and cities designed and built with a style that would rival India and We're keeping our eyes open. Todays surf was really fun, but the idea of a man eater on the loose is scary. They say a swimmer disappeared two days before the shark attacked the surfer in Troncones. They thought the swimmer drowned, but now it looks as if the shark had a human, then came back for another. Your right about the lightning drifter, I tell my local friends to get out when the lightning starts hitting in the afternoons. They usually don't, but I do. Once at the point a lightning bolt struck the bushes right at the edge of the water as we we're Villa Mozart, excellent choice, located in Rinconada actually, near Bacocho, and just a 1 minute walk to the Carrizalillo steps which take you down to a fun thing to do, which is hanging out and swimming the very calm waters on that beach. 				I bet artificial reefs could help out very much in poverty stricken areas. The surfers would congregate and then the towns would prosper. The fish life would multiply as would coral possibly in many areas. Surfing would be the attraction and it wouldn't cost much to do. I know ff thinks colonizing doesn't work, I guess he's never been to puerto. It looks like it's working here just fine. This simple and clean idea is being applied in different areas of the world, but at a very slow pace. It should be something very high on the to do list for every poverty stricken coastline around the world. The best reef designs would make the best waves.

17663	5	frogfart	Re: What Global Warming? 2	The only known shark attack in the Puerto area, according to local fishermen, occurred some 40-45 years ago near Santa Elena, when a territorial hammerhead "tasted" an oyster diver. I've personally encountered hammerheads on Zicatela while surfing, feeding at the end of a big Bit different from the Kayak site but geared towards our area I have all of the airlines flying into Manzanillo and where they hub from here - click on the header to go to the airline's site. for scheduled flights http://www.seatosierra.com/where/tra_a1.html and here for charters http://www.seatosierra.com/where/tra_a2.html Sunquest had a flight from Calgary (YYC) to Puerto Vallarta (PVR) all of last winter but not to ZLO. I'm cleaning the trolls off the zap page. Hows that David? I think it's time to pull your head out of your "source" and open your eyes. It's worthless to try to change anything here if you have to wrestle with local government. They won't even turn on the street lamps on the Rinconada due to "unpaid electric bills". I certainly won't waste my time paying the city bills. The topic is global warming, not 'Eric's' next move'. Why are you always stuck on me? Cough up "Shark attacks are not a common occurence in any area, there are normally less than a hundred attacks worldwide each year and of these less than 10 are fatal." Those are very encouraging statistics, on the other hand they do not comfort you if you are one of the hundred attacked. I wonder if sharks are unable to attack a herd like so many land-based predators, who get confused by masses and cannot decide which one in the herd/swarm to attack. If that is the case then Not sure I would agree with that due to that fatal shark attack in San Diego last week. Rumored to be a great white shark, it attacked a swimmer in a group In San Diego the last time it happened before last week was in the 1950's. Your chances are better of being hit by lightning or winning a lottery than being bit by a shark. In Mexico they are fished and eaten so heavily by the locals your chances are even less. Last year we were out about 20 miles and came upon a piece of driftwood surrounded by small (3') maco sharks. I don't ever fish for I have heard stories that going back 30 - 40 years the areas around Chalacatepec, Majahuas, Chamela, Perula and a few more were so full of sharks that in heavy seas they washed ashore!! I have seen some decent sized hammerheads (male of 2m and female 3m), 2.5m bull shark and whale shark of about 4m all in this area. But as you say Zummie they do like to eat shark in Mexico so numbers have dropped a fair bit. As for attacking or not herd-type groups, it depends on the species. If you have seen the BBC Blue Planet series you see sharks attacking schools of sardines. Other species like threshers and makos are also fish hunters that will attack schools, yet most documented attacks on pinnepedes (seals, sea-lions, etc) are on solitary animals that are	122

Besides the usual fireworks and celebrating there was another element that made that day in 1978 such a standout. I was watching fireworks from my top floor balcony at Roca Mar, room 14 about 2100. A huge fire suddenly erupted far down toward Maranio, it was a bar burning. I ran down and joined the spectators as the place burned to the ground. A wooden and bambo structure burns very quickly and the whole thing was ashes in 5 minutes it seemed. A ring of infantry troops from the garrison were laughing and shouting	7

Heard good reports when it was needed too. On their website is an 800 number good in Canada and the USA. You can call them for a quote. The insurance is actually by Mapvre which a lot of the others also use but charge more for. My car is valued between $ 10,000.00 and $ 14,999.00 and for complete coverage for the period of 6 months it was US$ 2.08.65 last October. That is the premium for that value range. 				Scott, This is based on past experience but I will share what I know about flying Alberta/Manzanillo. (We moved from Edmonton to Manzanillo early this year. Prior to that, we made the trip twice per year.) Note: We found that Christmas season was not popular for flights Canada/Mexico. Significant discounts might be found by waiting until closer to your travel dates. The only direct flights were through Air Transat. They very seldom discount the flights - the best prices we saw were about $600 tax-in during this past Christmas / New Year season. The flights were not discounted until 7 - 10 days before flight date. Even the one & two stop regular flights are over $1000. What we did: booked last minute (10 hrs You can talk about how bad it is or you can do your part to make it better. 				I thought I would relate this experience that happened at playa tenacatita on the Sunday before cinco de mayo. We rented a car from the hotel la Senarina in Barra {very reasonable at $35 a day for 100 kilometers $45 unlimited} spent the afternoon at tenacatita with the crowd celebrating the holiday. It was a great day of food , sun, and people watching. When we went to start the car, we realized that the lights got left on.Battery dead, My first thoUght was the fellows who patrol the beach on a quad and a pick up. Don't know what branch of police or civic protection thet're with, but they were sympathetic and loaned me their jumper cables, but explained they couldn't leave their posts patrolling the area. fantastic idea,,,if i ever bus it again which i have done in the past..i will definitely do a oaxaca lay-over for even possibly 2 days....the 14hrs from mexico city to huatulco were no fun because you cant really sleep in the seats and somebody always has a radio on or the fold down video sets on....and on a 14hr trip the toilets are a mess....then when you get to huatulco you feel like a zombie

18281	6	Snickers	Re: The Barcelo Resort.....	Out of Winnipeg they have the prices for all the hotels as of Sunday, May 18th. Signature seems to be carrying the Barcelo again as well as Dreams, Crown, etc. Surprisingly, the prices are just a little less than we paid this time last year. The notion that a 12-inch sewer main is adequate to carry off Zicatela's sewage is again evident in the work now being done near the Santa Fe. We've suffered a month of torn-up roads for this worthless project. A 12-inch sewer main won't serve ONE of the major hotels on Zicatela -- and there are several hotels big enough to max out that tiny sewer line every day. It is practically worthless given the huge task it faces during the four months of high season, when every toilet on Zicatela is being flushed many times each day. If this is the skill level of the "professional hydraulic engineers" who planned this project, it's just as stupid as attach a pic of Harrison and forward as private message.	713

Some of the key factors that made our project successful were these: I build and design custom homes for a living. We developed our own plans. The Libra sub trade who did all the major work was excellent. We got digital photos as the project progressed. We made one visit to review the basic concrete construction. We were there for the finishing details. Our expectations were reasonable. As I am usually on the other end of these relationships as a contractor it was interesting to operate as the client . Thanks for I have seen the Acapulco discharge 48inch and 60inch pipe that run a kilometer into the bays waiting for incoming tides. the worst area is Puerto Marquez this is of course an opinion as I haven't looked where all the other discharge pipes are located. there 2 60inchers that head out to the bay at PM if you will notice there are no big hotels in this area of the coast.Howard Hughes did the Mayan Princess at least a mile south of there. The big development is Punta Diamante. meaning I will be in the area from June 7-23 and I love cribbage. So let me know Everyone has their own oppinion about where to stay that's for sure. That is also a very good thing because if everyone loved the same place, it would be very difficult to book that one place. I have now stayed at the Crown and the Barcelo and next would like to try Dreams. I know there are alot of people that seem to love Las Brisas but the ONLY people I have met that said they did not like Huatulco were people that have stayed at Las Brisas...to me...that speaks I don't know anything about lessons on Wednesday!! I thought it was going to be a tournament and it was last Wednesday!!! No-one showed up except me so The CEA (State Water Commision) announced yesterday the contruction of 2 Sewage treatment plants. Exact location isnt clear but they target Zicatela to I was gonna be there next Wednesday but if it's cancelled I'll be there anyway. Read on Tripadvisor a review of Las Brisas that there was a death on the beach at the resort and medical care didn't arrive for approx. 20 minutes. Was reported that personel didn't have the proper equipment and the oxygen didn't work. Not sure if it was resort staff doing rescue or in town emergency medical team.	1532

The other option is the not so far away Colotepec River there has to be an ingress of water as well as an egress. I haven't heard if the treatment is chemical or the old tried and true turd cookers. The ocean can deal with an over flow easier than the aquifer where most of the agua potable comes from, shallow wells very close to the river. The biggest trick is to keep rain or storm water out of the equation so the treatment facility isn't unudated past their projected capacity. Then how about an emergency back-up "Anywhere"? So much to contribute as usual LT. Flooding tends to occur in the same old places, like floodplains and and ravines. In oceanside communities, that means near the ocean. If it is placed at a higher elevation then there will need to be more sewage lift stations and those will be located near sea level in order to catch the inflow from the most customers. I worked installing new sewer systems in the states for 4 years. Most sewer mainlines are 8 inch gravity systems the slope is dialed in by laser this is necessary too much slope and you separate the solids from the liquid and suffer a stoppage so the flow is very critical in this style of system. There is usually a manhole every block unless the line is traversing undeveloped property then 800 to 1000 feet is not out of line for manholes. The manholes allow for numerous lines to attach to the system up to 3 additional in each manhole which have flow lines in the bottom which direct the effluent in the direction of the pump station. Most systems are One surfer was killed last week and another attacked yesterday in an unprecedented surge of shark attacks. Later I deep I've got crabs in my sink not rabbits in my batteries. A nice young lady from the Health Dept. was just here to inspect my "pilas" she said. I thought it odd that they would be interested in my batteries but what the hay, I let her in and it didn't take long to realize she was interested in making sure there were no mosquito breeding areas. I gave her the tour and we noticed a light colored critter darting under the laundry room sink. I asked her what it was and she said "cangrejo" for some reason I thought "rabbit" so I stooped down to see the little bunny myself.	80

				To add a few more facts to opinions, there are more and more people in the sea each year. There used to be hardly anyone in the sea. Also, humans are fishing heavily, which leaves alot less food for the sharks. The currents can change at any time, like they are now, and the sharks will follow the cold water and food chain to areas where people are swimming, kayaking, surfing, water skiing, sailing, wake boarding, kite surfing, wind surfing, spear fishing, and scuba diving or heaven forbid riding those big yellow bananas! Then we have the 'save the sharks' movement, like we need a million sharks to survive forever. Are they that important in those numbers? Add all that up, and you get many more shark timoteo- In regards to Sparks good info: Copies from a US bank is fine but you need proof the account is yours 1 - A letter from the bank 2 - Original statements 3 - A voided check with the same account number In regards to #2 - You are able to provide on-line bank statements as long as it printed Your Name, Your Account Number, AND the Bank's Logo. If one swam up next to me or my loved one, I'd be tempted to freak too. Common sense and statistics agree that sharks are fished at an approximately equal rate to their prey, so as our oceans are over-fished, I would argue sharks are over-fished also. And yes, there are more people, and more people in the water, so that makes the odds even lower that you'll get nibbled or attacked. Most scientists agree that shark attacks are not on the rise, as the reported rates per year have been fairly constant over the last 50 years (even as water sports have expanded exponentially over the past 5 decades (surfing, scuba, boogie, kite boarding, water skiing, etc. . .)). Why is We are hoping to buy a home in Puerto one day, and today I came across the website for Vivo Resorts. 				Thanks so much everyone for the feedback about the Mex. corp route. My husband was interested in checking this out, because we already own a Canadian co. with various investments including property here in Alberta, and we would rather use company $ than personal. But from what you are saying it sounds like the hassle is only worth it if we are looking to go beyond just owning a home we rent out part of the time, which I think is all we are thinking of for now. We still have kids in school so can't spend large chunks of time in Puerto but our kids go to spanish bilingual school so we were thinking of renting to other families at the school who would like a Puerto holiday while attending the
18581	5	Sooz	Re: foreigners purchasing pro	Does Puerto have excess paint, or do people use every last drop? We own a company that recycles paint - actually it takes old latex paint in cans, sorts and filters it, remixes it, and ends up with a range of 14 colours, and it's great paint - provides great coverage as it has less liquid than even premium paints on the market. Can be used as a colorant in cement too - not if it's structural though. If anyone in Puerto was interested in doing this we'd come in a shot and show them how to set it up. It's not a hugely complicated or expensive thing. Don't know how they dispose of paint there, or as I said if they have excess paint there, but in Canada it's been considered hazardous waste and buried, dumped	1653

				Mexicans believe drug gangs winning war with gov't REUTERS Reuters US Online Report World News Jun 01, 2008 13:40 EST MEXICO CITY (Reuters) - A majority of Mexicans believe violent drug gangs are winning a war with President Felipe Calderon's government after one of the worst months on record for killings, Reforma newspaper reported on Sunday. According to a poll by the newspaper, 53 percent of Mexicans think that drug traffickers hold the upper hand against government forces which are trying to clamp down on cartels that ship drugs to the United States. Only 24 percent said they believed the government was winning the battle. The remaining 23 percent gave no opinion. It depends on what type of business you want to start, for example when we started Mex-ECO Tours we had to chose 4 names which were checked centrally in Mexico City with the chamber of commerce to see if they were available. With luck our first choice was. Our lawyer filed this for us so it was quite simple. Dan I really appreciate the reference to the site, and the url, because I also am trying to learn some Spanish. In Malaque local usage appears to include a lot of slang, vulgarities and sexual innuendo. In this regard Buzzardwest chose well, but the site does not handle it that well. Cabron is in common usage. My Mexican friends tell me it means "billy goat", but when used to refer to a person it means cuckold, or, more commonly, bastard. The is not easy to extract from the site. A local who uses Cabron assures me it is a term of endearment reserved for very close friends? I have a friend I call Jackass.

It is to easy to think that is just being friendly to say Coffee Queen, you only need a lawyer if you are going to incorporate (S.A de C.V) or form a Society (there are a few initials for Societies). If you go as a proprietorship you will have no need for a lawyer an accountant will suffice. So... like you say...first you need to decide how you want to set up the business. Incorporation will involve more start up costs and more complicated accounting procedures so unless you are really concerned about personal liability with regard to your business you may want to just run as a proprietorship at least to start with. 				Well if you translate the word literally it is the male goat.. But for us it has several meanings : - Cabron is a person that doesn't care about anything nor does he have respect for anybody e.g Juan es un cabron , no respeta a la gente.(Juan is a cabron , he doesn't have respect for people) - Cabron means also a hotshot , meaning a guy that excels doing an activity. e.g Ese Ingeniero es un cabron para construir puentes. (that engineer is a cabron building bridges) -Cabron is...yes a term of endearment for a close friend. ¿como estas cabron! How are u cabron! 				Hello Suzette, I didn't realize you were based in Ab and asking about home escuelas, not Puerto escuelas. My kid's school always offers classes for parents, so I've taken them on and off for the past 6 years. It gets embarrassing if the kids get ahead of you! So far I'm still out in front, except in pronunciation - the kids hear their teachers who are native speakers all day long so they have developed an ear. You should hear my 8 year old say "puerto rico", he rolls those r's so well it takes him about 10 minutes to say the words (kidding).
18714	5	Sooz	Re: foreigners purchasing pro	Attending language school in Puerto would be a great reason to go there - they take great care of the students, and will arrange homestays, excursions, cooking i think that window is now we have already started recycling in fact Cafecito has the plastic recycle pickup up fri or sat each week so you dont even have to go up town to drop of the plastic . also i just sent a case of comstarch plastic bags for each of the bathrooms waste baskets they act like plastic but decompose quickly. and i remember as a kid they had a deposit on bottles if you returned them to the store you got a penny back.that would be great to see on plastic bottles in puerto they have a similar set up on a case of beer now when you buy . it adds so much, and makes for good business both for tourists and locals.	1653

18716	12	sparks	Re: Sod - where to get Bermu	Someone suggested checking with viveros around you can rent a bike at surface, which is at the entrance to zicatela, a little past chuy's juice bar. if you stay long enough you can try and buy one, the least expensive one's cost about US 100.00 they are heavy but so are the rentals. occassionally you can buy one used, i see them for sale at the bike shop on the main road up to lazaro cardejenas, and you can resell it easily when you leave. Jake is the best lanscaper around, he lives in La Punta and his garden is his best portfolio. Everyone knows Kelly because she advertises in El Sol dela Costa, I consider her work boring and overpriced. For your pool Betto is a little expensive but does good work. Insist on seeing some of the pools that your I don't know where to rent bikes. Another bike ride is from Zicatela to Colotepec. < http://maps.google.com/maps?q=http://trail.motionbased.com/trail/kml/episode.kml?episodePkValues=5744641 > It is all paved and there is not much traffic on the Colotepec road. The Colotepec road intersects the coast highway just past La Barra past the Colotepec River. There are some mild hills that are just long enough to be happy to reach the top but not short enough to forget. After about two or three kilometers the road pretty much runs next to the river. There are some small groups of houses but not big enough to call a pueblo. At least for me. A couple places have names but there only seem to be a few houses. It is interesting to me trying to figure out what is a hamlet or a village or even a town. Are the gas prices in Mexico rising as high as the U S and Canada, in March of this year it was not to bad for a litre of Magna has this changed ? Jim We gave up on trying to get STA to respond to Emails. Business must be good. Gasoline here was the same price when I filled up in at La Cumbre (by the Tomatlan cutoff) when I came home last week as it was when I filled up before I left and that price hadn't changed that I noticed since March. It still costs me Interesting, many entries support zummie's definition and I'd not heard that one before, http://www.urbandictionary.com/define.php?term=cabron zummie is posting from Tampa Bay so perhaps that is a regional difference? The urban dictionary seems refer this definition to Puerto Rican Spanish. I find regional language differences quite interesting. I have difficulty understanding some slang and shall we say "dialects" in English. We went to the latest Denzel Washington movie recently when it played in Cihuatlan, it is about an American Costa Alegre Raku Pots http://www.costaalegrerakuworkshops.com/ Gas prices are regulated - for the moment Aye Nan it was a run around but in the end all was finally settled. One thing to remember when renting in Barra, even though you may be doing so through a reputable Northern named company you have no recourse through them should something go wrong. They are just middlemen/women. There are no signed contracts. We have been there enough times now that we know where we want We have enjoyed living in Melaque for 2 to 3 months for the last few years and we are seriously considering driving our 3 Year old Lexus in Oct to stay til March. Our family and some friends are really concerned about our safety in the light of the US travel alert and the drug related killings & kidnappings in the Gasoline prices have been going up 2 centavos on the first of the month for the I will post after I return. I also am aware of the other kidnapping of the Zipolite restaurant owner in January that you mentioned. I also heard the reports that it has been AFI uniformed men doing this. The speculation is about whether these and other kidnapped people (Ruski, La Guera in Tonameca) are connected with Narco-traficantes in some way. The wealthy Zipolite rest/hotel owner has long been rumoured to have earned his money that way, while the San Agustinillo ones are far less likely. 			Hi Beach Chair! About 6 months ago I was in Mexico City with my dad looking for furniture and appliances. We looked at Sears and Palacio de Hierro in a mall, in Sears they had the same appliances that we have in Canada, in Palacio they had nicer furniture than Sears; Sears had 15% off on all appliances and they offered to ship everything that can fitted in their truck for 3000 pesos, about 300 dollars. We haven't buy anything yet since our house in Huatulco is under construction and didn't make sense to buy at the time, however we will have to do that soon. There are many stores in Mexico city where to look: http://www.frey.com.mx/p_tres.html (Mueblerias Frey)

				That is the beauty of Majahuas, it is isolated and that helps keep it unspoilt. The boat ramp was put in by the municipality a few years ago and is used by people who come to fish the lagoon at the weekends and in the evenings. I imagine the old guy you were talking to was Don Jose Alcaraz, he is a member of the cooperative that vrun the camp but not really an active member so much these days. There is a road access to Majahuas but to the far end of the beach and it is a drive of about 45mins of dirt track plus you have to go through the security of Landbankers to get there. La Gloria and Majahuas are separate entities, La Gloria is run by CUCSUR (Uni in Melaque) and is under the direction of Antonio Trejo. 				Hey there Dry, You sure have been mixing it up on old Tom's Zapfest. I wonder, what goes on when you post? Maybe you are crazy. Maybe you are inappropriate. I think you have actually caused others to feel off their center, not quite on target with their assumptions about life here, and maybe to have to defend their assumptions, and maybe react with fear. The truth is, you may make folk upset. And who needs to be un-nerved in paradise? To behave like you have, you are introducing uneasiness. You seem to have people looking for somebody to follow, and that somebody needs to be positive, needs to reassure, and needs to be female. Just look at the way they have anointed a "guiding light" some more on La Nina, oceanic conditions, sharks, Zihuat.

19170	12	buzzardwest	Re: Road From Hwy 80 Acros	I'm not a surfer, but I swim and kayak a lot offshore El Faro-Bacocho areas. And I'm into climate changes, research, etc. Sharks that typically live in cooler water don't instantly show up in the Zihuat. area. Look at the May and March-May, 2008 sea surface temperature(SST) anomaly graphics below. For those of you who haven't seen SST anomaly graphics before, they show the changes, colder or warmer, from a many-year average of SST's. Not current temps, but a depiction of current temps compared to long-term averages. Blue is cooler, yellow is warmer. 19171	12	mexjay	Re: Carlos-Carlos Constructio	Some more SST anomaly graphics, related to my earlier post. Remember, as a shark you don't instantly transport yourself to the cooler ocean temperatures you're used to (and you like the cooler temps - that's where your food is). You're after something to eat(not surfers!), and your food source is changing with the ocean temp, so you change, swim south, following the cooler ocean temps. And when the temps warm up, you're out of your element and you head back to the cooler ocean temps to the north that you prefer. Blue is colder than average, yellow/red is warmer than average. All are at the beginning of the month. February, 2008	1410

Great people, high security (only visitors allowed on the property are friends of customers) and a small poolside cafe. Harvey, a Local originally from the US, is a great cook and mixes a great margarita. You'll love it there, I'm sure. 				I think I answered that one a while ago, but here it is again It is true that urine can help BUT it can and is more likely to make it worse. This article below pretty much explains it simply, I did find another one but it was very technical and would need too much explaining to most non-biologists (not a critique at anybody I assure you) http://www.sciam.com/article.cfm?id=fact-or-fiction-urinating&ref=rss As a slight aside from the peeing question, there have been small Portuguese Man-o-wars washing up in the Melaque / Barra bay so watch yourself because they can still sting even out of the water. Luckily they are only I'm relatively new to this board. In the future I will look at every post before asking question a question. Sorry for offending danpatman, I guess only long I have not golfed there but when I went out there 3 years ago it was something like $150 for a round and both caddies and carts were mandatory.
19376	12	danpatman	Re: Tiempo de mal agua	I don't believe that the kind of responses you got from your enquiry deserved ????? All I was doing was stating that I thought I had answered that a while ago, I didn't do a search to check, I merely wrote a reply based on my knowledge. I have since checked and in my previous post I actually posted a flawed reply so this one above is factually correct. I in no way meant my answer to seem aggressive or condescending, this is the problem of written things, they can be No worries, I just couldn't find your post anywhere with the answer you said you posted (no...I had not checked the entire forum and wasn't really wanting to). I thought you were telling me, a newbie to the Barra board, to "bug off." Thank The course is absolutely gorgeous. Rates can be as low as $150 and up to $250usd per round. There are 27 holes and they will let you play them all if you tell them in advance. Also there is Tamarindo just down the road which has to be one of the best courses in the entire world. Rates are about the same and if you schedule in advance they can work out some deals for you. Caddies are mandatory and well worth the price which is separate from the course fee. A cart I have played the course, all 27 holes, several times in the past. The last time I played was two years ago. The prices at that time where $180US for 9, $200US for 18 and $220US for 27. This included a cart but did not include the MANDATORY caddie, which was $200pesos + tip. Our caddie was an excellent golfer and knew the course well. Sorry I can't remember his name and I don't know if he is still working there. The course as nice as they say. It's fair for the average golfer but if you go to the back tees it's a challenge for the low handicappers(slope=133). There's water on 7 of 9 holes on the lagoon nine. The greens are not as fast as I like but they were very consistent from hole to hole.	283
19377	12	Gri-lango	Re: Tiempo de mal agua	2100 pesos for a new TV? Have I got that right? And you bought this TV in Mexico? Off the back of a truck maybe. I bought one myself six or eight months ago, about the same size and I didn't get it for any 2100 pesos. Not even close. Wow, You people have nothing to do. If you want to see all the receipts they are in a file at the ReMAX office.Along with the paperwork on their vehicle.MS. Myrna, I also have the receipts on file for your house as well. Where you received rent and a deposit on April 8th.As well as the next rental payment which was rejected by your bank twice costing the couple $100.00 in fees. The Couple cleaned your House gave Gillberto the keys and remotes and internet box.They were not evicted they chose to move and forfeit their deposit.They are also immigrant status since they have had two Mexican born children.One died here in Mexico last june;That is their sob story. By the way their is no such thing It was about a 4 hour project but there's lots of tamales. These are the semi-sweet tamales de elote (corn) with no filling. Started off 'shucking' a big sack of corn; the kids just shucked the smaller ones and women cut off the ends of the larger to save the husks for wrappers. The remove the kernels, use a grinder or blender, mix with canela (cinnamon), butter, milk and sugar. Fill the husks folded and put them in the steamer for about an hour. I'll make a page on the whole process a little later. Walked down to the beach after eating my fill for this foto Hello fellow Tomzapors, Sunwing has already got their winter '08/'09 itinerary set. AI properties include: Crown Pacific; Las Brisas; Castillo; Zaashila and Posada Real in PE. They are flying on Mondays again this coming season. Booked our 2 air only tickets and paid about CDN $300 less for the pair than last year. We opted for the "premium package" that locks in fare price to avoid possible fuel surcharge. This will be trip number 10 to Huatulco, 6th year running at Residential Conejos villa. Plan as always is a steady diet of golf, sun, pool thank you for the picture sparks,and the info.I just wish I was there that is my favorite sweet tamales,when I travel to mexico,I eat the tamales every morning Coming out of the steamer [img] http://sparks-mexico.com/costalegre/melaque- not bad for an anonymous first post...new in town?	680

I'm very tired of "behavior cops", or "keepers of the real truth" inserting themselves and suggesting I don't know how to read or write things on the internet. I was down at the beach on my bike (see map lol) and I was talking to my friend a contractor and told him I needed to have some painting done. Did he know a painter? He wasn't too sure but said he would think about it. And I forgot about it. A few days later a guy showed up and said he was a painter. My friend had told him I needed some painting. I showed him what needed to be done and he showed up the next day with his buddy/helper ready to go. They had all the tools needed. 				I know the subject has been debated many times in this forum, however, having just booked for '09, my thoughts of plans for Huatulco are top of mind. One of the keys to a quality vacation for us is always great food and great drinks in the company of friends. On the subject of beer, I have 2 roles that need to be filled. First is something light and easy drinking for time around the pool in the afternoons. For this I am less picky, a can of Modelo has been my choice for the last few years. Next is a tougher choice, a beer to pair with lunch? Lunch can range from a salad to something savory like a burger or spicy tacos. Here I am looking for a beer with a little more body to well compliment food. At home I hint, go over to the course prior to booking, talk to starter, caddies marshalls not front desk, see if they have passes they want to sell as they receive them from guests (tips) that were staying at grand bay and did not use them, did a couple times, saves alot of $$$$ dont feel embarrassed if they dont have any, its worth a try .its worth playing ,espically if your on holiday, tamarindo a little harder to get As the saying goes, " if you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen"; so I'm out of the kitchen. I want to thank all of the posters for their thoughtful responses, and for taking the time to share their views on what this message Hello stewart Boy your taste are much more refined then mine (bud light suits me fine) But a new beer cam out in march and I think it will fit your taste just Hello to all, I have been a lurker on this forum for 6 months now. This website and forum has helped me make the decision about which area to visit and where to stay and what to expect when I get down there next week. I will be thee for two weeks starting next Monday. I enjoy the friendly banter that goes back and forth among the posters; I even got sucked into posting the first time when the "monster" staged her attack. Now for my travel questions: What can I expect when I arrive there next week? What restaurants will be open? Will the street vendors who sell food still be there, like the pastry man or woman? Where is the I have to agree completely with Puerto Bill. I think those of us who have had the good fortune to see Puerto grow over the past 25 years or more see and view Puerto very differently than those "newbies" here, particularly those people who have come in the last decade or so. There is so much history here that new folks just don't understand or appreciate. Unfortunately many don't seem to care as witnessed by the inane and sometimes completely inaccurate postings that people put here at Tomzap. I trust Puerto Bill might agree that the Puerto of today is very different from the Puerto of 25 years ago. It is my opinion that most of the undesirable change has come as a result of the influx of foreigners who

				Bush to partners: 'Goodbye from the world's biggest polluter' It was his final summit with the Group of 8, the leaders of Britain, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia as well as the United States. President Bush, the most senior member of the group, was attending his eighth summit, and for years he withstood pressure to take a firmer stand against global warming. It was the topic on the minds of summit partners and demonstrators. His final words to the likes of British Prime Minister Gordon Brown and French President Nicolas Sarkozy: "Goodbye from the world's biggest polluter." That was the report from the British press, citing "senior sources" who said Bush made the private joke as Guadua, one of best of the trendy new cuisine restaurants in Puerto, has suddenly gotten better -- with the addition of service for breakfast and lunch, featuring the same excellent foods sublimely prepared. (Try the bagels with cream cheese and lox for breakfast.) For those unfamiliar with Guadua, it's located on the beach -- a wide open beach with no noise except the surf, about two-thirds of the way to the Point. To get there, take the road to the Point, and the second right hand turn, the first paved road just past the school, drive all the

MITIGATE the effects of the above by having some RESTRICTIONS on how we are ALLOWED to pollute our environment. Isn't that what the disagreement is REALLY all about? Those that deny GLOBAL Weather Disruption don't want to complicate their lives with regulation(s). "It's gonna happen anyway, so why should we make our lives any more difficult"? 				NASA warming scientist: 'This is the last chance' WASHINGTON (AP) — Exactly 20 years after warning America about global warming, a top NASA scientist said the situation has gotten so bad that the world's only hope is drastic action. James Hansen told Congress on Monday that the world has long passed the "dangerous level" for greenhouse gases in the atmosphere and needs to get back to 1988 levels. He said Earth's atmosphere can only stay this loaded with man-made carbon dioxide for a couple more decades without changes such as mass extinction, ecosystem collapse and dramatic sea level rises. "We're toast if we don't get on a very different path," Hansen, director of the Goddard Institute of Space Sciences who is sometimes called the godfather of global warming

They teach in a Dual immersion bilingual public school where ver 50% of the student body are children of mexican born parents. Most of the kids are US born and many have not visited Mexico due to the immigration status of their parents (or lack thereof). It's a very cool school where the kids are given the opportunity to be spanish language models to their english speaking peers, and to feel proud of their heritage. An important part of the curriculum focuses on culture and customs. One of the "KR could have added..." was maybe the polite phrase you had in mind. Great stuff KR. Dance groups also perform civic events like the Grito also at the Agencia. Check with Gina, the Information Goddess, on the Adoquín or look in the Sol de la Costa for listings. There are typically hundred of people at these events, but very few foreigners. The last dance I saw was at a Mothers' Day celebration in Tamarindos. If you want to Do you still have this couch? 				Little wonder that Claudio's family was reluctant to get the local cops involved. Up in the central valley, it took federal action to solve a clumsy kidnapping by thugs who knew the victim and left a trail. The state investigative agency was deemed incompetent at best and likely to alert the bad guys, who carried only pistols: ...Esta detención se logró gracias a que las policías federales y especializadas en secuestros indagaran el ilícito; asimismo por la misma naturaleza de las investigaciones, los propios federales dejaron de lado a la Agencia Estatal de Investigaciones para no entorpecer el operativo y no alertar a los plagiarios. 				I was talking to Paco, (remember Paco who used to work at Mexicana and has the hotel Paco Loco?) well, now he's in charge of tourism for Santa Maria Colotepec, anyway apparently Colotepec has been given $44,000,000 pesos from the FEDERAL government to expand the highway to 4 lanes from the bridge in town all the way to the other bridge at La Barra. That could explain the white chalk markings and big machines. They also have approved a project, Phase I, to redo the street area of the Calle del Morro that runs along the beach from the Bajada de Santa Fe to the Bajada de Las Brisas - AGAIN. 				Hello, I stayed at Los Arcos for a few months on my first trip to Melaque. The best rooms (bungalows) in my opinion were on the second floor. I had the one at the back with the private balcony overlooking the pool. Not bad for the price but it can get noisy on the weekends/holidays with aquatic activity below. I also stayed at the one on the front overlooking the street (you can see it on their web page, just to the left of the balcony) it has a shared balcony and it also can get noisy when the disco fires up but that doesn't happen too often. Both rooms are about the same size, 2 beds with a small separate kitchen and bath, basic furnishings. I saw some very nice larger rooms on the main floor, suitable for 4	1674

20031	12	billgilbert	Re: Happy Birthday Canada	We visited Barra every year for eighteen years. We haven't been back for about four years. We were wondering if anyone knows if two store owners (Zoila and Pedro) still run a wonderful shop that used to be across from the church. It was called Oaxaca something or other. They owned two shops. Could anyone tell me Actually the thread in question was acceptable but did fall into the "may be removed" category as set forth in the FAQ since it was not on the subject of Mexico. This is more of a guideline than a rule and I usually just leave these posts alone. The problem in this case is the quantity of valueless material, not the quality. I just don't want a reader to have to wade through a large number of threads before finding something useful. So in this case I reduced that number by one. The particular thread was chosen due to it's zero-value nature which allowed me to remove it without any pangs of guilt. Generally the Barra/Melaque Oh, that is such good news. Thank you so much. They are the first people we met in Barra when we started coming in the 90's. They were always patient with us as we spoke in Spanish - helping us with our sentence construction and our tenses. We got to know their other son and daughter, too. They are a wonderful family. Sometimes when you can't make it back to a place, you worry about how I'd like to get TV in english and high speed internet. The house is located in the Rinconada area. It has 2 dishes, yet the cables are hanging in mid air. Also, thanks for all the information. Sergio has sent me some pictures of the bungalow he wants to rent to me. It is on the second floor with what looks like a shared balcony facing the street. It is B7. As far as change there has been quite a few changes in the last four years when I start to think about it. The old church was deemed unsafe and was torn down. A new one is slowly being built in it's place. The Hotel Alondra has been finished and they expanded to the beach side of the street as well. 				Zummie has two great suggestions. It is so long since I had a 14 year old daughter so you might laugh at the sort of things that come to my mind (I am soooo out of date) but: - let her work on her tan after a hard school year; - bring her favorite books so she can curl up and relax with them; - make sure she has access to internet to keep in touch with her friends; - get her a little camera so she can record her experiences; - if she does not speak any Spanish, a simple phrase book and really encourage her to try it out - the local are happy to help; - let her get her hair braided on the beach (in Melaque) and maybe even a daring henna tattoo; - try out the taco stands in Barra; - check out the tianguis in Fabulous suggestions...thanks all! Already planning a horseback trip with Nan. Hadn't thought about the surf lesson though, she's very athletic so that might go over big. Has a camera, has the internet...definitely wants to work on the tan, we were concerned that there may not be much sun. As I said...newbies, still learning. Barn swallow nest??? Any suggestions as where to find them? Or, if you want to see the common birds before she comes have a look at the shots on my Picassa web albums. http://picasaweb.google.com/hplattBC On my last flight to Melaque I sat beside a "Birdman" who told me about Howell's Guide to Mexico and Northern Central America as well as his bird-finding guide to Mexico. I purchased both when I came home, actually ordered them from Amazon while I was down there. The "Birdman" was meeting with a couple of colleagues who are trying to get birding tours in Manzanillo a bit more publicity (marketing ideas) I believe. 20268	12	Luna	Re: Caution - house break in's	Hi Sparks: Thanks for the link to the backyardnature site. I like it. I particularly like the little stories that go with each bird. Unfortunately as I got started with birds in Melaque this was the sort of site or book I would find - overwhelming numbers of different birds! And many of them are never seen around here, or only rarely. They confused me rather than helped. So what I was trying to do was put together some typical views of birds that are likely to be seen while wandering around Melaque. There are quite a few local birds I have not shown - owls for example. The reason being that I have never seen them in two years of looking so the occasional visitor is unlikely to see them. Unless they are an if you need a housesitter or want to be one visit this website: Mama's walk-around book. http://www.amazon.com/Field-Guide-Birds-Mexico-Adjacent/dp/0292720912/ref=sr_1_5?ie=UTF8&s=books&qid=1215354046&sr=	308

There is no way I can prove I am not also Toto. I have no idea who Toto is, nor do I care who Toto is. My intent was to simply state that Moravia is making tasty hamburgers. I enjoy eating hamburger and fries sometimes. Yes I live in Mexico and like Mexican food. In my 17 years here in Puerto, I find hamburgers often are less than inspiring. There are some seamounds, and the local fisherman are skilled pros, but vacationing fisherpersons tend to seek pelagics like Atun and various billfish, so the almost immediate drop-off makes the fishing grounds relatively near-shore. The deep-Sex On the Beach IS wonderful, I must agree. And the drink is tolerable. The only way they could cut my bars is with a hack saw - not cutters. 				Good morning everyone, I am hoping to find someone who can help me out. I am currently in the USA and will be returning to Barra in September. I have rented a house in Barra that has Internet service via Telmex. There were problems with the Internet and phone with the recent rains. It seems that the Internet and phone line are working now, but my Vonage Internet phone service is not working. The caretakers of the house do not know anything about the Internet nor Vonage. I am hoping to find someone who has some experience with Vonage and the Internet to see if they can fix this problem before I return. I	1099

20404	12	InParadise	Re: Help with Vonage	When I call the number it goes into voice mail. Hi Russ, We have vonage up here in Canada and we live in a place that experiences many power outages. Most of the time when the power comes back on we have no problems, but the odd time we need to reboot the Vonage modem (or is it a router?). We have ours hooked up to our cable modem, then the vonage modem, then a wireless router, and we unplug the power source from all of them and let them sit for about 15 minutes. Then we plug in each one at a time letting the them reboot completely before we plug in the next one. We do the cable first, (I realize it would be the phone modem for you), then the Vonage, Thank you - we're looking forward to coming down next month for our inaugural trip. We bought #39 - the yellow house with the aluminum gate (barricade? - definitely have to look into some wrought iron, there.) Thanks for all the info, Nan. I'm looking forward to doing some of the work myself, so it'll be good to get to know the local suppliers - half the fun will be exploring a bit more as an owner rather than a tourist. Sorry if i'm milking your sacred cow, half kidding but i've met plenty in my life of random sampling. Your results may vary, but i find support in voting patterns and the barren cultural environment of places like central tennessee, north carolina. well Howard, you are not alone, they are invading our casa, too, especially the really tiny ones. I've had a few larger ones, too. These suckers are really fast! Ah, I didn't even know that #39 was for sale. It seems to have been a rental for the past few years with people coming and going quite a bit. The weekly Tianguis is still on in Barra on Thursdays though vendor turnout is diminished when it rains. I should imagine it is still on in Melaque - or Villa Obregon rather - on Wednesdays as well and it is much bigger in Cihuatlan on Tuesdays. Apart from the Tianguis there isn't any place I know of in Barra for linens and kitchen items and I really don't know about Melaque at all. I think that there is a crystaleria near the Herradura market but I don't get over to Melaque much, only to buy paint from the paint store near Comex because he is so great at mixing special Rodrigo from Cihuatlán can fix it for you. His email is jrvc77@hotmail.com and he says he checks it everyday. All good to know! We'll be renting also, but to friends, family and colleagues - we want to be good neighbours, because we intend on being there quite a bit ourselves. Plus, I don't fancy sharing my home with too many stragers (in other words, there may be some coming and going, but they won't be college kids!). We have some good friends who love Barra - they actually introduced us to the I think that Nan is talking about the Arena electric store, it is on the corner going out of Cihuatlan towards Barra. 				Antarctic ice shelf 'hanging by thread': European scientists New evidence has emerged that a large plate of floating ice shelf attached to Antarctica is breaking up, in a troubling sign of global warming, the European Space Agency (ESA) said on Thursday. Images taken by its Envisat remote-sensing satellite show that Wilkins Ice Shelf is "hanging by its last thread" to Charcot Island, one of the plate's key anchors to the Antarctic peninsula, ESA said in a press release. "Since the connection to the island... helps stabilise the ice shelf, it is likely the breakup of the bridge will put the remainder of the ice shelf at risk," it said.

20613	12	Duchamp-Villon	Re: December Trip To Melaque	Hola, I highly recommend Muebles Rusticos in Pochutla. They have some great rustic wood furniture. Now as for appliances there is an appliance store as you go into La Crucecita directly next door Agave. We bought a 11 kilo washer there and they were quick about servicing it when we needed. It was a funny story. When anything gets trapped in the drain it shuts off to not burn up the motor. They came all the way from Salina Cruz for a 5 peso coin stuck in our washer	861

It didn't flood last year when the canal overflowed and many other homes were flooded. I'm not saying it never will, but that's why all the new construction is being "raised". I've been there in the rainy season and not had an issue, but we are very new to the area also. Insurance is a Good Thing. Our builder/contractor did advise us of the possibility of floods Howard, didn't get the bird pix. Personally, I'd rather see the live birds than the dead fish. No offense Zummie. 				We flew into GDL this past Christmas and had a wonderful time exploring the city; the historical area is fantastic, and at times it's like being in a time warp. We also took in the Lucha Libre; or wrestling, which is well worth seeing just to enjoy the spectacle of the event. Seeing the fans in action is well worth every peso. We stayed at the Hotel Morales, which has been maintained to its original glory, and well worth the $90.00 per night rate. We took the ETN scheduled bus to Barra de Navidad, as our pre-booked rental car wasn't available, and believe me it was for the best, as the bus ride was sheer luxury, and allowed me; the driver; to enjoy the scenery along with the rest of my family. Upon arrival at GDL

I agree with Mr. Buzzard in that it's all good. Just depends on the individual perspective. I like laid back living coming from laid back small town British Columbia...that's Canada for those who don't know. I think you have piqued the interest of what I can only hope are single males in the area. If you are relatively ambulatory you can walk to anything you need in Melaque. Bikes are available to rent. Taxis are cheap. You can walk the beach to Barra in an hour. Cheap cheap to take a bus probably relocating back to just north of the Tenacatita turn off,near Agua Caliente. They have some skookum barracks and barricades there. There is a way around and if one is concerned should seek it out. I absolutely fell in love with this town and I am planning a trip down there again with my mother, 13 year old son and husband. Although I really loved the quietness and quaintness of the town, going to the beach daily and then hanging at the pool later, do you think a 13 year old would enjoy it as well? He has been to more "kid friendly" resorts with lots of activities so this would be very new to him. Soldiers conducting a routine check "found in a tractor-trailer a packet of diapers containing 490,300 dollars," the ministry said in a statement. It said that the cash was likely a stash of narco-dollars destined for money-laundering, 5.8 tons of coke on the submarine they now say was towed into Salina Cruz, & not Huatulco. 20819	12	ricardo amor	Cost of Regular car fuel	Regular (Magna) - US gallon in US Dollars $2.66 Premium - US gallon in US Dollars Peru declares state of emergency at Canadian mine site Wednesday, July 23, 2008 CBC News The Peruvian government has declared a state of emergency at the site of a mine owned by a Vancouver company, saying its toxic chemicals are putting the capital's water supply at risk. A 60-day state of emergency was put in place in the San Mateo district, 90 kilometres east of Lima, where Gold Hawk Resources runs the Coricancha metals mine. Government officials said the mine's storage dump is unstable and at risk of collapse, which could release arsenic and other toxic chemicals into the Rimac River, Lima's main water source. Gold Hawk, which acquired the mine more than two years ago, issued a statement Friday saying Peruvian officials have asked the company to relocate	19

				About the cable or satellite systems in Huatulco.....We are one of those poor Canadians investing in Huatulco property!!!!!! You have peaked our interest in regards to the satellite system from Canada working well in the area. Does anyone know if it is Bell or Starchoice? These are the two main ones used here in Alberta, both have small dishes. We are planning to start building in Sector O very soon, have an architect presently doing the plans. We plan to drive to Huatulco this fall and be in the area while the house is being built. It is our plan to stay at the RV (trailer) park in Tangalunda in our 5th wheel trailer while this is happening. I would appreciate any and all comments on this park.....We visited Yeah, the busses are great. Whats the northernmost place to get a premier plus-

20935	6	cazba	Re: cable or satellite tv ?	hmmmm, I heard they don't like that customers share the plate otherwise they charge double, I don't think is a good policy in a place like Puerto Escondido, here is still a family and a very friendly place; so maybe they are very ,very What happened to my buddy, Scott the diver? I thought he had Villas Carrizalillo going strong. There wasn't enough food on my last plate at Tugos to share with I just received an email from my friends, no wonder they are in the picture, they own Alandra's Bungalows. I knew they had built something but I did not know what it is. Knowing this I think I would definitely recommend this for rentals. They are from B.C and the bungalows are very new, just finished recently. If you want Try going to http://www.greyhound.com if you input Phoenix and Manzanillo they have codeshare with Mexico Buses,trip would be around $300US or try Reno & Manzanillo for around $450US, Nan may now better who the codeshare partners There is no gasoline in Jalisco today, but that's not unusual. But, at 1 pm there was only premium in Melaque, and the guy told me that there is some type of strike going on. Maybe that is just another story, but, who is buying gasoline	1968
20936	5	latin view	Re: Los Tugos	Sweet! That's exactly what I was looking for. I knew someone here would be able Because they are so small you can hardly feel when they land on you. Also their teeth are so sharp you don't notice they have cut you, it's not really a bite more a quick slash.. They seem to sit very still while they lick/lap up your blood. But not Tufesa, www.tufesa.com.mx , has service from Las Vegas, Los Angeles and Phoenix, to Guadalajara. Also TAP, www.tap.com.mx , has service from Guadalajara to Nogales, and they have a connection with a Shuttle service to Las Vegas. As I remember it is called Hermosillo Shuttle. I have never done the Tufesa service, but I've seen their buses and they are very nice. I have done TAP (they have the same owners as ETN) and used the shuttle. Good service. Last summer I took Elite from Guadalajara to Nogales, then the Greyhound service to Phoenix. I don't recommend Elite, there are two other services that	1776
20937	5	L.T.	Re: Los Tugos	are much better, Tufesa and TAP. All of these companies sell tickets on-line. I Airline fares from Las Vegas to Puerto Vallarta are under $500 roundtrip. From Puerto Vallarta to Barra/Melaque via ETN is $22 USD each way. The bus leaves And the good news is that after that first uncomfortable night you'll have everlasting life, and a fear of garlic/mirrors/wooden stakes. Which bank do you recommend to open a savings account in pesos that has a debit card tied to it? Also what interest rate can I expect on savings? All of your help Hello Cazba The RV park in Tangalunda is your main choice Never very busy Canadians in the winter season Yes you can park at the Marlin but it is just a parking lot (damn hot) I have not heard of any one having problems at the tangalunda park I cannot attest to Canadian satellite but US dish works well in Huatulco Most subscribe and pay for an extra box then buy a extra dish on E Elite has service from Tijuana to Melaque ... on the way to Acapulco latin view, I often share one entree with my lady when I eat at Western-style restaurants where the portions are too large. I've never shared one entree for two at Los Tugos before but we often get different dishes and share with each other. L.T., you probably do. Actually, most people on a Western diet eat portions that are too large so to say you eat more than the average guy would be an error as the average guy eats too much. The average guy today eats several hundred calories more than the average guy did even a couple decades ago. I can't help but roll my eyes any time when portion sizes are brought up when discussing a restaurant other than when people are discussing the good idea Wayne.....surprised you thought of it.....i have an extra direct tv dish in the box still in my attic and ill just bring my box down everytime im in town and bring it back when i leave.....i owe you an old Milwaukee when i see you..will you	376

			That's a local bus, it stops at every little town on the way. They don't even list it on their web page. The so called "express" one stopped at the bigger cities, each one was announced as 5 to 15 minutes. We never left in less than 45 minutes, sometimes more than an hour. They seemed to be always waiting for
