				Last time we were down at Agua Caliente for the spring fair/Bull riding there was this entertainer that sang some sort of cowboy song he would lip sinc it in Spanish anyways part of his costume was a replica pistol and gun belt, we were all sort of standing around having something to eat and all of a sudden these Federales roar up from 2 different directions and corner this guy, they put him up against the vehicle and gave him a thourough search, then they tossed his car til they found the gun after much consulting with a man that seemed to be the ranking officer they decided to give the guy back his replica and then they tore out of there. Now if that had been a real firearm I'm sure the guy would have Ok it's now 2007 and I'm starting my new trip report. New Years Eve was great, starting with a hot clear afternoon and then a pleasant evening. Brad had Ribeyes, I had one although I almost never eat beef. Of course it was the best steak that I've eaten in years. Then off to the Rockaway where Kika and Dyana, etal served a great dinner of fruit stuffed roast pork and all the trimmings. I couldn't eat half of mine (maybe if I had not eaten at Brad's first?). Saw plenty of friends but there was no band so I pushed off early. Not so early that I somehow downed several beers, several coffee mascal shots and some cookies that seemed to alter things a bit. Actually a young couple was sitting next to me at hello just checking out the spell check Testing For a permit fee of about $500 US, a gringo can own a firearm in Mexico to be kept only in your home for personal protection. I believe a pistol can be no more than .32 cal. and shotgun no more than 16 ga. This applies also to Mexicans but they don't need a permit. You may shoot to kill any intruder inside the walls of your property. Most Mexicans in our area have at least one gun in the house. It is these guns being discharged into the air that is responsible for a lot of the noise. Of course it's dangerous but is common practice in many parts of the Is there anywhere that I can pick up a map of Manzanillo when we get there? We will be staying at the El Palomar Condominiums - Playa Las Brisas. Thanks. Mexicans do have a constitutional right to bear arms within their homes, as Innkeeper stated. They do need to register their weapons with the Department of Defense, which is the government agency that regulates firearms in Mexico. And a permit is needed by anyone who wishes to carry the weapon outside of the home. There are also limitations as to size and type of weapons that are legal-- Mexico is sane enough to regulate automatic and high-caliber weapons. Foreigners need permission BEFORE they enter the country with a firearm. So yes, people celebrate by using their weapons to make noise on New Years Eve. Start you 2007 visiting one of Mexico's 30th Magical Towns. Located just an hour away from Manzanillo, 1:40 from Barra de Navidad and Melaque and 2:00 from la Manzanilla. Comala has many cultural atractions. Visit Suchitlan where traditional masks and equipales are made, visit the cooperativa Pueblo Blanco, the Sculpture Garden, the Alberto Isaac musuem, The Eco Park, The Volcanoos, La Yerbabuena, La Maria Lagoon, Carrizalillo Lake and the Portales. ONE DAY IS NOT ENOUGH! complement your experience in a real Mexican Town staying at Casa Alvarada Bed and Breakfast. Enjoy all of this with local cultrual tours offered by hosts! www.CasaAlvarada.com or You can own a gun in Mexico. There are many restrictions as to caliber, capacity, type of action, and others. You had better be in compliance with all the restrictions and have all the required permits. I have watched the family of the hotel owner cleaning their hunting rifles on a table at the hotel. We were invited Happy New Year Jarhead. Hey, turning those people on to that Don Franco stuff might be the meanest thing you've ever done. It'll kill ya. Crack in a bottle. I'd suggest you go up in a Van so you can travel up the old Minatitlán highway and see the El Salto waterfall then you can see some of the other sites in Colima from the van -- like the museums, the Historic Centro and it's beautiful parks, fountains, and buildings and end that day with the Chanal or Campana ruins heading out towards Comala. Then have the van drop you off in Comala and spend the night at the Casa Alvarada B & B.

As Democrats take over Congress in 2007, promising action on energy and climate change, it is important to look critically at the available options. The news about climate change looks grimmer every day, alerting us to the fact that we have no time to waste and we can't afford to invest precious resources in false technology promises and energy dead-ends. Fortunately, a lot of brilliant minds are at work on these problems, and a number of good ideas have surfaced in 2006 that are	169

I think that in the future we may see Huatulco evolve away from package tourism and more towards being a retirement or long term getaway location. And as for being too many taxis: I don't think so. Most locals can't afford the 25.000+ pesos for a cheap used car, so they make do with taxis.	158

				Hi all-- I am announcing the debut of http://www.PuertoVallartaSatellite.com . This website uses the highly detailed Google Satellite maps of the Puerto Vallarta area and adds info points to the maps on local landmarks, hotels, restaurants, bars, etc so you can quickly find where your hotel, etc is located and see it exactly in reference to the beach, jungle and other buildings. You can also add your own points to the map. Just go to the map and the scroll down to the bottom to add your own points to the map. There's no cost for this service

388	5	gulfescapes	Surf Casting	Anyone doing this in Puerto Escondido? A novice and have questions. Thanks A very nice green flash sunset tonight. The waves are larger today and plenty of surfers were out having fun. Speaking of which, I had a bit of fun myself today. About 1100, I headed down to Marinero with my boogie board. The waves were sporatic but lots of fun. I spent untill about 3 there, just enjoying life and the beauty that mother nature graces us with, from time to time. The place was packed with Mexican families and local kids splashing in the emerald water. Dozens of boogie boarders and a few surfers were playing around as pelicans and fisher birds dove for fish just off shore. Plenty of beautiful women swimming, surfing and just hanging out sunning. There were these two euro babes, swedes I am surf fishing in the PE area at this time but am also a relative novice. I can try answer your questions as best as I am able. The kind of surf fishing I do involves +/- 12 foot rods and Looooong casting with heavy lures and rapid retrieval. Trying for rooster fish, yellow tail jacks and anything else that comes along. From what I understand from the experts, summer is the best time for surf fishing, but there are fish out there now, maybe just not as many. There is also an el nino happening which is keeping the water warmer than usual.. which We are looking for a place to rent from June 15 to about July 10. Does your house have a pool? This is for our family....myself, husband and two teenage What would be the safest way to travel between PE and PA and then back? I would mainly be staying in PE but would like to revisit PA where I was in 1973. I received your message with schedule this am and I am on it. Nan The safest way would be in a fully armored combat vehicle, zipped into your bulletproof vest and accompanied by a motorcade of soldiers with black helicopter gunships hovering at the ready in case that ETA cell is still operating. E-Mail us at oaxcoasttours@yahoo.com.mx Jacques & Lance Hi Chris, unfortunately we are looking for someone to rent the house for at least three months or more, it does have a common pool just half a block away, Yaid Looking for some fun in the sun, but have no passport? It's not too late for U.S. citizens who want to fly to Mexico or other countries. We had friends who applied with expedited service for another $60. From the time it was sent in to the time they received their passport, it took only six days. I don't think paying the $60 expedited service is much if it gets you out of shoveling snow. Here in Iowa we just received the snow and winter cold. Colorado, I know you're ready, if you can even fly out! A fast way to apply for a passport is to go on usps.com , fill out the form, and print it off. If you go to the nearest Post Office that has Thanks for sharing this information. If we can be of any additional Hi Linda & Howard, There is nothing wrong with it, it's simple, clean and close to the center. As you say: Mision de los Arcos is a bit nicer, but has no pool.... Another perfect morning in Puerto. The sun is blazing away, it feels hotter than usual and probably is. Even my cab driver was complaining about the heat. A nice 0645 walk through colonia zicatela was nice. It's great walking the various streets seeing the different homes. I'm trying to walk a new route every morning. I pretty much walked to the point, at least to where the last businesses are, then up the hill and I came out on the caraterra about where my friends Bill and Patrice live. I bought a bottle of mineral water from my favorite grocery store lady, Mini Super Rubi, it was nice to see her and her kids again. I ran into Dennis and his lovely wife on zicatela this morning on my return patrol. 				If you fly an airline out of NY that code shares with Mexicana, you can usually book a single ticket and check your luggage all the way through to Puerto. Then you only need to clear Immigration in Mexico City (if it is your first landing point inside Mexico). You will clear Customs in Puerto when you pick up your luggage. Better yet, travel with only a carry-on and avoid picking up luggage altogether. You don't need much in Puerto. I would think that 2 hours in Mexico City is plenty, especially if you only have to clear Immigration. But, if it makes you nervous to only have 2 hours, perhaps you could get a flight out of NY that gets you into Mexico City earlier and relax a bit before catching the flight to Puerto. In fact, the taxis were among those trying to get through. With Federales and Transitos everywhere trying to maintain the flow of traffic, a single lane was open in each direction on the bridge. Roads leading up by the Caracol, into the Lomas area, and toward Flor de Maria were all blocked by colectivos and/or white buses (not the ones that say Tucsepesa on the side) with only one lane open. Needless to say, the buses were causing the greatest problem simply because of their size. Capitalism, the oil companies fuel prices, CDC or Greed actually it is all of the above. If you look out at the new air fleets you will see that 90% of all the planes have 2 engines where before there were 3 or 4 and smaller for the size of the plane which carry more passengers and cargo than ever before. The amount of energy used for exchanging cleaning or scrubbing the air has been downgraded drastically. The air conditioning and exchange ventilation has been cut back and the FAA has stopped all antibacterial filters from being used at all. This information was passed on to me I have conflicting info. Any help is When you go through Mexican Immigration, usually at the first place you land in Mexico, you'll be issued a Tourist Card by the Immigration officials. They typically issue it for a 90 day time period, but sometimes only for 30 days. If 30 days isn't enough time for you, ask them to write in 90 days. It's a quick process, only a few minutes. (If you need more than 30 days, ask for the 90 before they write in the 30 days, or they'll rip it up and start again.). The maximum length is 180 days for a tourist card, with no extensions possible. You can get into Mexico with a valid Passport or a notarized birth certificate. 				"Fuel's Gold: Turning Corn Into Ethanol May Not Be Worth It" August 3, 2005 / san diego tribune Most people would agree that the United States needs a new source of fuel: something renewable and nonpolluting with which to replace gasoline ... something that could be produced right here at home. Deep in America's heartland, a lot of people think they know the answer: ethanol, a fuel made from fermented corn. According to U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates, you can get about 2 1/2 gallons of it from a bushel of corn. And an increasing number of states are working to make an 85 percent ethanol fuel called E85 available at gas stations at prices significantly below that of regular gasoline. Could he call back to Canada with his Canadian SIM card? If not, he probably has his roaming turned off and that would affect any SIM card in the phone. 				Any friend of Rambo's is a friend of mine -- I've got great memories of that dog. But I wasn't having campground flashbacks, I was having Liza's flashbacks, when she was the only serious place closest to the main surfing break, through the brush jungles of those days. I hanging out there, picking up on Luftansa stews, and experiencing a whole scenario of incidents that happened on a daily basis, all the while with the best hospitality and graciousness on the beach. I remember the legendary "all you could eat" free fish fries on Friday nights at sunset, which were attended by dozens of surfers competing to see who could be first in line, or closest to it as possible. It was the original mosh pit. Used to Yes Scott, those were the daze. I never stayed in the campground but knew many people who did. We had the same thing going at Bungalows Villa Marinaro for a few years after I moved up from the campground on the other side of the highway by the river. When Zicatela opened up and we came into town and there was Zicatela Bungalows right there in front of the surf, well it could not get any better than that. But it did. Got to move into Dr. 360's duplex for a couple years and then decided to get away from the hectic Zicatela strip and up to near where Dan's is now (I have a photo of Digger, April, Crow, Conehead, Peter White and a few others that I can't remember their names Oh yea, hanging out at Lizas. That was how this thread got strated. Spending the whole day there cooking in the sun and drinking beer after beer (how was that possible?). Early morning surf sessions down at Zic. Tube ride contests with Angel. The Santa Fe was $25 bucks a night. And that was expensive. Too Where those the cabanas that Digger said reminded him of Vietnam?The little huts down by the laguna.And I forgot Dave's name was conehead.I was 25 and he drove me to Tulum in his orange pinto with a huge payload and a coatamundi.HaHA, I cant forget him trying to get that thing out of a tree.Those I just came back a week ago from this place. I went with my husband, two small children and my two parents. This place is NOT for families and i'm upset that the owner did not clarify this even though i asked him about it before i booked. The only thing nice about this hotel is that it's right across from the beach, though most other places are. Hotel rockaway has two types of rooms: ones with AC (between $40 and $60 dollars) and bungalows without AC (they start at $18 dollars). The AC rooms are very nice (though small when they have two queen beds), brand new, and with shower and cable tv. The bungalows are totally crappy, with see through walls that seem to be made out of straw, hot during the By the way I love the Rockaway and dont want to give any bad publicity, but the part about the drunken gringos was too good to pass up.I think this woman lives A little research would have helped this poster realize that the Rockaway isn't the place for her. I dig the bungalow experience! Don Franco's mescal, the food, pool, bar, music... naps in the afternoon. Adventures in the daytime. I say just

				It's cold and muddy here in central Texas. Nothing like the weather in Puerto. I checked out of the acuario at 1100, my friend Bill picking me up. We cruised up to Bill and Patrice's beautiful home where I hung out until flight time. It was nice to get to see my animal buddies again, from the street dogs that I feed to Gnarly, Maya, Luna, Pico and Pico's, and even skinny old Bobie from across the street. Patrice served a real treat, chicken tamales, made by Selsa's mom. They were fantastic, hummingbirds were feeding right next to me as I ate. I have really enjoyed the last three years housesitting for that wonderful couple. My time in that hilltop paradise is a very special part of my life, a real dream come true.

1894	5	Hiatus	Re: Thank You Bill and Mel fo	Thank you Sparks for provided a little background information to this event. I am sure it is a fun time for all who attend. We fly in on Sunday, Feb. 4th and debating if we should run over to LaManzanilla or just sit and relax at Bigotes Hey, Jane G. Sparks has a post saying that Gringo day is Feb 3rd.You had mentioned that it was the 2nd. I said that we would come see Osmo in La Manz no other charges, they do the registration of the phone, will change the language to english and most phones come with 200 minutes included. need more time later? just buy the card from a phone store, they'll do the install of the card and let you listen on the phone to your new total of available minutes. Or you can Get used to it. It's a way of life down here. Fields are being cleared by fire, some in preparation for planting. It'll get worse before it gets better.	451

To cut through the BS, you don't listen to what they say, New Climate Report Too Rosy, Experts Say WASHINGTON (AP) - Later this week in Paris, climate scientists will issue a dire forecast for the planet that warns of slowly rising sea levels and higher temperatures. But that may be the sugarcoated version. Early and changeable drafts of their upcoming authoritative report on climate change foresee smaller sea level rises than were projected in 2001 in the last report. Many top U.S. scientists reject these rosier numbers. Those calculations don't include the recent, and dramatic, melt-off of big ice sheets in two crucial locations: They "don't take into account the gorillas - Greenland and Antarctica," said Ohio State University earth sciences professor Global Warming May Affect Indonesia Isles JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) - Rising sea levels because of global warming stand to inundate around 2,000 islands in Indonesia by 2030, the country's environment minister said Monday. The assessment by Rachmat Witoelar was the government's bleakest yet of the effects of global warming on the Southeast Asian nation that is made up of some 18,000 islands, most of them unpopulated. "It is very, very serious," he said at a media conference attended by Yvo de Boer, executive secretary of the U.N. climate treaty secretariat. 				Hi Gail Our gang will be there Feb 21 and will be at Las Brisas For 3 weeks. Only 6 kids to offer, 2 11, 2 6, 2 5 yo. My oldest son just had his hands repaired from over use of the gameboy. He's 11 and is now resting comfortably. All the kids are familiar to the area and know how to swim. We are traveling with I called Verizon Wireless to inquire about cell coverage in PE and coincidentally got a representative who is from Mexico. She cautioned me to take a jacket for I just answered my own question by checking weather.com for PE. It looks like mid 70's is what it will be for the next couple nights. I think that qualifies as tee Is there a Sandander Serfin bank or ATM in the Melaque/Barra area?

If I remember right, the only places you could cash them was the bank or the cambio. None of the hotels or business's accepted them (like credit cards), is Sure, I've been to Culiacan a few times. It's about 2 hours north of Mazatlán by autopista, it is a university town, quite large and no where near here. The site you are refering to is definately talking about Cihuatlán based on the description of the Church by the bridge. It's a nice site too, they have some nice maps and I really like their link to things to do! A trip to Cihuatlán is an easy 18 to 16 km bus i think you have to go to banamex, stand in line wait wait travelers checks have been officially dubbed old school we used to use them everything is done Thank you for the info.	7

907	6	Dr. Wiz	Re: Alcoholics Anonymous	Now back 1 week from a 2-week stay at Villa Pacifico, a private villa in Residential Conejos. While it is certainly possible to experience Huatulco less expensively at a smaller hotel or all-inclusive, the maxim that you get what you pay for certainly holds true for a Huatulco vacation. During our stay, my wife and I were expertly serviced by a staff of 3. All meals are freshly prepared with the best local ingredients available. The menu was a collaboration between villa staff and ourselves. Conejos has a private beach and beach club and while I am not a "beach guy" I never saw more than a handful on Playa Tejoncito and any time. It goes without saying that a villa vacation is a much more private and exclusive experience than a hotel. Chairman: Bush officials misled public on global warming WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Democratic chairman of a House panel examining the government's response to climate change said Tuesday there is evidence that senior Bush administration officials sought repeatedly "to mislead the public by injecting doubt into the science of global warming." Rep. Henry Waxman, D-California, said he and the top Republican on his oversight committee, Rep. Tom Davis of Virginia, have sought documents from the administration on climate policy, but repeatedly been rebuffed. "The committee isn't trying to obtain state secrets or documents that could affect our immediate national security," said Waxman, opening the hearing. "We are simply seeking answers to whether the White House is trying to cover up the truth."	147

Lets get it correct. It is voter REGISTRATION fraud. And none of it is true. Since it has already been covered and has been shown to be a non issue lets move on to "Voter Purging" as practiced by a friendly Republican in the state near you. It will be known as the November surprise, when thousands, if not millions show up to vote only to find they will not be allowed to cast their ballot. These real concerns of election fraud, such as voting roll purges, electronic voting machines that don't work and so much more that actually I have no interest in the Superbowl at all but I hear the best place to watch it will be the bar at the Ben Zaa and that Steve is making killer buffalo wings. We will continue to enjoy the winter here in Huatulco, and will think of you when we next visit the taqueria!!! Looking forward to seeing you both next I know there have been changes to city codes in Mexico however the following website < http://www.consumer.att.com/global/english/consumer_information/mexicocode s.html> tells me that the new city code for Villa Obregon is 431 but all other web The Area Code for Melaque is still 315. If you look on the Telmex site you will see that they only list San Patricio Melaque, and there is no listing for Villa 4 people with baggage would probably require a large car (costs more). Then you'd have to get a city cab because you can't make deals with airport taxis. So then you have to get out to the highway and start flagging large ones. I'd I hope Os got in touch with you about his going back today because he had a Thanks Bill, that was quick. Straight goods from Villa Obregon...I can't go wrong.	19

We were told the airport taxi's would only take 3 people per car, and we would be required to take a limo or two taxi's for the four of us. Once we paid for the limo, we went outside the airport and found they didn't have any more limos available, and they quickly stuffed all four of us (with our golf clubs and luggage) in a single tiny small taxi which was against their own rules. 				Al Gore Nominated for Nobel Peace Prize By DOUG MELLGREN Associated Press Writer OSLO, Norway (AP) -- Former Vice President Al Gore was nominated for the 2007 Nobel Peace Prize for his wide-reaching efforts to draw the world's attention to the dangers of global warming, a Norwegian lawmaker said Thursday. "A prerequisite for winning the Nobel Peace Prize is making a difference, and Al Gore has made a difference," Conservative Member of Parliament Boerge Brende, a former minister of environment and then of trade, told The Associated Press. 1034	5	driftplastic	Re: Buying land in Puerto?	Hello all, This is Eric S. from Puerto who used to use the name "froggy". I was told someone was signed in as froggy and here I have seen that it's true. Just to let the canadians know (many canadians have rented from us this year) that whomever the joker is, I am not he. Eric S. was frog, but now he is not. The new froggy is obviously trying to get my clients bummed on me. The guy must be real bored. Just for the record, Canadians are the nicest travellers i've met. And I This has nothing to do with nationality, and i as a canadian ain't insulted, i am canadian and very proud of it, and with myself. This is some people from winnipeg or claiming to be, (i was in jamaica in 87 , and met a couple with a canadian flag on their backpacks) they were from iowa. These people (from winnipeg) didnt leave a tip , for some reason. I say you are who you are, where ever you find yourself. Anyone so shallow to put in this case , all canadians in one bracket, ain't worth talking with , or getting to know. Ive become friends with I just purchased a piece of communal land, 50,000 sq. meters for 10,000 dllrs. It,s got major ocean views and great developing potential. Call 044-315-100-2147 for info. Enjoy Mexican cuisine and enjoy eating it at the moment . Enjoy learning Mexican cuisine at Mazatlan 61 in Barra de Navidad. Prof . Paco Barriente's wife . Enjoy and get to eat what you learn at the moment . This Saturday Feb 10 at 12.00 Come and have fun !!! Call 044-315-100-2147 for info. On a cool morning you could walk to La Crucecita or take an inexpensive taxi. Copalita would require some assistance and more travel, although not that far away. You might want to contact Roberto, owner of Hurricane Divers, located on the center part of the beach in Santa Cruz, also not far away from the Barcelo by taxi. He is a big supporter of an organization in La Crucecita that assists severely disabled kids both in La Crucecita and in the surrounding area. They have a center a few blocks off the main square (principale plaza) of La Crucecita and could always use some help. 1150	6 mexico123	Re: orphanages in huatulco, o	thank you for your info, how far away would Copalita be, and would it take for I have been meaning to post this for two weeks now, here goes. American drivers suck, they are rude, pushy and dangerous. I sat stuck in Austin Texas traffic yesterday, thinking about how much nicer driving is in Puerto. I have never, ever seen road rage in Mexico, especially in Puerto. It is common and dangerous here in central texas, people are constantly getting into it with each other over minor, trivial problems(he cut me off, etc). In Puerto people deal with topes, drunk drivers, potholes, errant burrows, dogs sleeping in the road, overloaded colectivos and traffic keeps moving along without everyone wanting to kill each other. Mexicans are much better and safer drivers who constantly I am surprised at the lack of comments from visitors to the city. Surely someone has gone to Oaxaca lately. How have things changed?	316
1151	5 jarhead	Re: Jarhead's Trip Report Par	Copalita is about 10 minutes by taxi, We go there every year a few times while we are there. The other place that Roberto helps is a great place Un Nuevo Amanecer. Last year we broght down as much powdered baby formula that we could carry and not be hassled with. All they ask at the airport in Huatulco is what it was for Un Nuevo Amanecer. We also have taken down boxes of school Julia, Thanks for reminding us about the powdered baby formula. We will be in Huatulco in just 13 days and will try to bring some to the Nuevo Amanecer center. We are staying at Vilas Coral and Huatulco Bed and Breakfast. If people are interested, we purchase soccer balls, etc. from the online store of ING bank. They are inexpensive (currently on sale) and arrive FLAT so we can pack them easily. We then pick up some inexpensive air pumps and extra needles from	82

1154	6 Silversard	Re: orphanages in huatulco, o	Hello, Here are the directions to the center -- Directions to Nuevo Amanecer: From the main square in Las cruzecitas, walk away from town on Bugambilla. (Towards the HSBC Bank). A block before the bank, turn left on Palma Real. 2 blocks and you run into Jazmin. The entrance is through the yellow gate that is connected to the Hardware store (Ferrealianza). Flor is there after 10 AM. Don't forget to check out their website listed in previous posts. I believe a school at Copalita would receptive to donations, but you will have have to rely on Julie for more information. However, you should plan on spending sometime at the very large beach and eating at one of the two restaurants. Also, my spouse and I Copalita has a small school, and The Un Nuevo Amancer is a school/ facility for kids with special needs.They are also in the process of building a new facility. I would suggest you go take a look at their web site. They do a great job. Roberto FYI.....disregarding the some of the less than helpful posts on this forum, there is hope as one can see from this latest missive on the Melaque / Barra de Navidad. For those of you who are unable to attend the Cisco's Amigos spay/neuter clinic Mar. 19-22 in La Manz..... PATA Manzanillo is collaborating with Fundacion Haghenbech, a Mexico City-based organization dedicated to offering free spaying and neutering clinics around the country, to host a second annual clinic in Manzanillo, March 25-29, 2007 in the Casa Ejidal in Salahuat. WHAT: Free spaying/neutering clinic for animals of low income families WHEN: Sun. Mar. 25 to Thurs. Mar. 29 TIME: Sunday (10 am-2 pm), Mon-Thurs (8 am-3 pm) Copalita is not really a center as for donations as uch, it's just a poor local community. I would go with someone who knows the place, a local. Do not offend anybody with free gifts directly. Give them to the local primary school and they will help. The scondary school is a large one and by all accounts quite good. A feew get to go to University from there. I would take footballs etc there. It's up the hill out of town. There is an walkway from 'Restaurante San Francisco', the walkway is through an arch called an 'Andador'. Copalita is actually a really nice place, a but scruffy, but clean, they are nice people. Nobody will bother you there, it is very safe. The river there is lovely to swim in, no industrial polution at I agree with both of you. Nice place and nice people.	26

				The building you refer to in West Melaque is I believe known as Los Pelicanos. It was Restaurant Los Pelicanos, then Froys and then was and I believe still is the Italian eatery Ristorante Emilia. The owner of the restaurant property, the bungalows above it and also the pharmacía you mention on the main square in Melaque passed away a few months ago but, to the best of my knowledge, her adult children are keeping everything going. There is a link to some contact I was in Oaxaca a few weeks ago and things seemed back to "normal" at least better then in June. There was a strong police presence, seems like most centered around the Zocalo. The shop owners I talked with said there were less LESS THAN A WEEK LEFT, FOLKS. There was some talk about a String Toss tournament on the sand. See Irv and Shirley at the party, they'll set you up. See i have been told one can open a bank account at bank azteca (near the market) with only a tourist visa. true? how is that bank. ? experiences? its kind of strange its inside an electronics store.... i also hear you can do same at scotia bank in huatulco. i suppose one trip there and set it up, then use bank ATM card to can a foreigner rent a p.o. box in puerto? is this at the post office? yearly rental? I have a bank account at Azteca, and although I have an FM3 now, I didn't when I opened the account. I felt very confident with all of their bio (fingerprint) security measures and I can keep track of my balance on-line. They give you a free ATM card. It is a little odd having the bank at the back of the Electra store, but no We will return to PE next week for one month and will do some cooking in our villa. Tortillas are sold everywhere, but are there vendors who sell superior corn it pays to shop around. the cheapest fare for the same flight one way on aviaca was $158 on travelocity $20 cheaper on fees and taxes. i am going to worry about going home later. the r/t from san is about the same but the trip takes 8 hours were as the 1:15 am is only 3:30. i am considering busing out to 200, taking anybus to cruz grande and switching to 1st class. downtown aca sucks i got charged 2% on recent trips on my visa and on debit card withdrawals. hsbcb charges 7p$, way cheaper than my bank. capital one is the only visa card that I like the vendor in the Mercado Benito Juarez. Far North East corner, near the road. You can pick them hot off the conveyor. there are ladies who make handmade, real deal tortillas at their house on the left one block short of the point parking area. they have a sign. i have finalized my return to puerto 2/20-28/7and i have resolved to oldtime it w/ liza. "what a drag it is getting old" i surf mornings and have a clean water project to work on during the day, but i would go for some backgammon for beers at Not to be missed...Rosco and Crow's annual pig roast will be held at the old Q Bar next to the lifegaurd tower on Zicatela. Live music, chicken shit bingo, Mescal and of course mouth watering pig. Pig goes in the ground today and I'll be in Puerto next week and am trying to decide whether or not to bother bringing my snorkelling gear. I'm not planning on going exploring too far. Is the snorkelling at the nearby spots, Manzanillo and Carrizalillo, worth hauling my I disagree with Doodah. If you are expecting to see coral and rare tropical fish — like Belize or Bonaire, then yes Doodah is right, it would be a waste to bring your gear. But if you want to see a little bit of coral and lots of schools of fish, even lobsters, then I say bring fins and a mask. 1185	13	Nan	Bus tour to the 175th Carnava	Bring your gear. You'll see snakes, rays, turtles, and some funky puerto worms that pop up outta the sand bottom. Yellow and black striped. (did I ruin the surprise?) Carri's good for scavenging too, lotsa loose stuff down there. Find a watch, necklace, or a mask even. (my son found a new mask down there, lotsa jewelry too). Pirates law means anything you find is yours. I think. So no guilty feelings after haulin up your find. I just had this...idea. It's for tourists' and residents to throw some change out in Carri every time they swim out there. If a few folks throw there change around the little bay, there would be more stuff to look for. It would kinda make it a unique bay. If you ever really needed a beer, isn't huatulco good for snorkeling? you can always rent. i think eric should throw his money on the ground so some poor soul finds it or just give it to some poor person. driftplastic collecting is good, free fun and you can help yourself except in parks where you take only your memories and leave only your footprints. but i like the catch and release style, so that someone else might have the same joy i	142

3081	6	Huatulco Rentals	Re: Chahue Beach Club/Cami	The two choices you have mentioned are two very different types of accommodations. The Sueño Real is a small group of maybe eight or so privately owned villas individual people rent out. They have a beautiful pool and view but there is no restaurant or bar and they don't have direct beach access or any other hotel type of amenities. A great place don't get me wrong and I highly recommend them if that's the type of accommodations you are looking for. The Camino Real Zashilla on the other hand is a very nice hotel with everything you would expect from a first class hotel. They also have what amounts to their own private beach along with a huge pool with a nearby bar and nice restaurants. It is	51

1221	7	kate	oaxaca city	Hello, my husband and I visited Oaxaca City Jan 4 - 6 and again Jan 12 and 13. We arrived at Casa Arnel, chosen because it is located outside the center of the city, and hooked up with Ivan, a young man who gives tours. I contacted him via email and highly recommend him. His English is great and his knowledge of the valley and culture is very good. He took us to Teotitlan, Santa Maria del Tule and Monte Alban. First about Oaxaca City. We found the city to be clean and friendly, yes there were signs of damage (mostly graffiti) from the strike, but I never felt unsafe. We walked the streets, ate at several restaurants, visited the Zocalo, drank beers and hot chocolate. When we visited the Santa Domingo I LOVED IT!!!! I WANT TO GO BACK. We had such a great time and can't wait to return. First of all the thanks yous. Rob, thanks for the information and contacts, next time we'll have to meet there, we owe you a beer. Gina, thanks for the tips and suggestions, you are the Goddess!! Joanne, thanks for the great meal and wonderful lime pie. Brad, thanks for the Georgia BBQ, next time I'll bring you down a bit of my own personal rub, no it's not jerk, (why do I think there is a dirty joke hidden there somewhere?) Thanks to Eric for the great place to stay. Annie, thanks for singing the MN rouser with me and to everyone	81
1222	5	kate	my trip report	About 60 and bright sunshine here in Lost Wages Nevada. I cannot believe how much Vegas has changed since I was last here in 1989. What was scrub covered empty lots is now covered with pyramids, New York, New York etc. I have to admit to really enjoying the sights. I started my patrol this morning at The Eifel tower, went to the Venetain for breakfast, Paula is attending a show there, while she works I patrol. Luxor is astounding as is the Venetian. The city is simply wonderful for a hick from the sticks like me. I have never seen such sights. I cannot believe how many hookers and escort services there are here in town. Mexicans are handing out hookers cards on every corner, kinda like Wayne posted lots of new restaurants since his last visit. I noticed the main page restaurants seem to be from 3 years ago. 				I want to add to my earlier post. In addition to the groups previously listed there is also Bon Jovi and some other guy that I cannot recall right now. starts out with Jackson Brown's "Running on Empty", the lyrics are perfect and (I'm showing my true age) the lyrics fit perfectly with my life. ie: "69 I was 21 and called the world my own" etc. Then Rodney Crowell with "learning how to fly", the Eagles and Take it To The limit". The music makes the video really great, I want to thank Dennis for the time and effort he put into the project. I had no idea when I posted here looking for a video camera and or a person to ride along and film that it would turn out so great. Take a look at the Tom Zap photos that Dennis has

It's better now.) 3. For long-term "self-employed" visitors: to protect large amounts of cash, in a reasonably secure bank account instead of on your person, in your hotel "safe," or in your home. Much better to keep the cash in the U.S., and just pull out what you need via ATMs. 4. 1281	12	Nan	Re: Beach Fishing	On and off actually. The wind came in strong this week about 7:30 am on Monday morning. We had the 42 foot Chris Craft and a couple of pangas out that day fishing and they were all getting slammed around because the swell was so big. Yesterday we had the 33 foot cruiser out on the weekly Tenacatita trip, it was calm when they left but the wind kicked up about 11 am and the sea was quite rough again. They dragged fishing lines on the way up to Tenacatita. Aside from the aggravation of bites, the real danger from being bitten by mosquitoes in Puerto is dengue fever, also known as bonebreak fever. The simple variation of the disease is brutal, with high fever, chills, and excruciating aches in joints and in the eyes. There is a worse variant, known as hemorrhagic dengue, which can be fatal. The beach areas are the most prevalent for mosquitos, especially in the late afternoon-evening hours, but they are everywhere. This is not a bad year, however. I've seen much worse. You can prevent getting dengue by adding 2-3-4 drops of Microdyn (available cheap at almost all tiendas and farmacias) into your daily drinking water. Microdyn will yes i will buy local if they give a fair deal im not looking to barter the profit out of I don't know about opening an account here, but if you are from Canada, then open a Scotiabank account there...you can access your $$ via the 2 ATM machines here, without any international bank charges. All of the construction was done while we were in Canada , that is how we wanted it done & it worked out great . The water was brought in because they did not know how to fix the pump in my well & I wasn't there to do it (it was just eazier). The maestro was really good , so when I got down there in dec I used I would like to take my wife and 8 year old daughter to Colima in early August for about a week but am having problems finding appropriate accomadation. I am not really that interested in a hotel. I would much rather rent a short term house. If you ever have the need for a Doctor while in Huatulco I would like to recommend Doctor Andre Gonzalez Ayvar. Telephone # 958-587-0600. After spending 10 days in paradise I developed stomach sickness and was running at both ends. After spending Sunday and most of Monday in bed I called the hotel reception and told them I needed a Doctor. He called me back in 10 minutes and was in my room treating me in 2 hours. Very through, English speaking, no rush. Looking for a place to rent on Miramar or Olas Altas at the end of February Semana Santa is the week before Easter and it's a national holiday. Even more Mexicans head for the beach than at Xmas! So Puerto will be totally packed with every hotel room occupied - even those ones up near the highway which never seem to have any customers. Would January Weather Hottest by Far Feb 15 By SETH BORENSTEIN WASHINGTON (AP) - It may be cold comfort during a frigid February, but last month was by far the hottest January ever. The broken record was fueled by a waning El Nino and a gradually warming world, according to U.S. scientists who reported the data Thursday. Records on the planet's temperature have been kept since 1880. Spurred on by unusually warm Siberia, Canada, northern Asia and Europe, the world's land areas were 3.4 degrees Fahrenheit warmer than a normal January, according to the U.S. National Climatic Data Center in Asheville, N.C. That didn't just nudge past the old record set in 2002, but broke that mark by 0.81 degrees, which meteorologists said is a lot, since such	417

Of course you aren't kidding. I haven't been to the Las Brisas there although it has always had good reviews. I would try it if those kind of places were in the cards for me. Acapulco can be really really fun. And I don't mean the big hotel on the beach with the disco kind of fun. I mean checking out why Acapulco was such an attraction in the 60s kind of fun. Those things are still there but people forget about them. The cliff divers are fun to go watch. You can have a good meal while you watch. The beach where the Princess Hotel (where Howard Hughes died) is a good beach. There are more than a few other beaches as well. Did I mention the shopping? The IFOPE library does not belong to the government and can make up its own rules. There is also an excellent used book store that mostly stocks English titles on Calle del Morro (Zicatela). It's called Cinemar. But readers be warned; they I am searching for a place in Melaque back in (1997/ 1998) where it was like a bed and breakfast with a separate eating space where everyone down there during the month of February cooked and ate together.Seems the accomdations were really terrific and had morning swims to those interested. A friend of mine a Joe Baranec was down there then and came back really psyched about it. I have Jerry, Where in relationship to Coco Cabanas and Musica del Mar will Playa Grande be. Additionally, I agree that new developments will aid in infra-structure And to Sparks, it would seem that you have a whinny disposition and fear any that may come an upset the little world you've carved out for yourself. To equate those that may perhaps be better off as not caring about Mexico is a bit presumptive. You remind me a lot of liberals in the US. Whine, cry and constantly ask for hand outs. If all you do is listen to Realtors, investors and glitzy web sites ... well, yer on your own. There's always part of the crowd that makes fun of the grandiose houses on the hills of La Manzanilla and Ajijic ... and probably the people that live in them. 				To presume that you have a higher moral standard then those in whos country you are a visitor in smacks of 17th century imperialism; somewhat arrogant and pretentious.If you don't like smoking or smokers perhaps you should avoid them. On that list would be such smoking luminaries as:Winston Churchill, Thomas Edison, Alexander Graham Bell, Edwin Hubble, Franklin Roosevelt, Oscar Wilde, Jean-Paul Sartre, Albert Camus, Monica Bellucci, Kate Winslet,Miles Davis,Jimi Hendrix, Luciano Pavarotti. Smoking is bad for your health and you shouldn't do it. If you can abide smoking, I suggest you move to Marin County in California where none of the cleb's listed above would be welcome. 1639	5	Ozmandius	Re: Rinconada Library?	We have been to Huatulco only once, but loved Las Brisas and the Tongoluda Bay area. As we are searching for a vacation for April, we came across Las Brisas in Ixtapa and Acapulco. We like to experiment with new areas in Mexico that we have not been to yet and were wondering if anyone on this site has been to either of the other two Las Brisas' resorts? Which would you recommend - I much prefer Ixtapa.It is easy & cheap for us to get to;clean,crime free,has many great places to eat,or Bodega & the other Supermarket if you choose to cook yourself;great beach;plentiful shopping although mostly in Zijua;cheap Spice, your preaching is falling on deaf ears. I really don't think Puerto is the place for you. Please stay at home or maybe Lake Chapala would be more to Gee whiz, Sparks. Why are you pickin' on the rich kid? 1641	6	Sara McDonald	Las Brisas	Once again, Thanks Nan. What was the brand of that Root Beer you like? Excuse me, Spice, but the IFOPE library is not a "public library", it belongs to IFOPE, a membership organization. If you are a member I suggest you e-mail Not too many responses because there are not too many people posting on this new site. There are some "trailer parks" in various locations between Puerto Angel and Mazunte. There are so few of them that it would be best to just go, ask around and check them out. I've never been impressed with any of them as they were quite a way from the beach. My impression is that if you cannot get the sea breeze or live on a breezy hilltop then it would be hot and buggy as hell. You might find that, with permission and payment,you could probably park just about anywhere. If there is room, most hotels would let you pay to park and use their shower and RR facilities. I think one needs to stay there for at least a week So, Jerry, Playa Grande lies between Coco Cabanas and the Grand Bay Golf Course? I agree, what was a simple question posed by me sure opened the door for visceral commentary. I apologize for my part but I felt a comment was warranted as certain responses had nothing to do with my original question. By Attacking someone's integrity is not the same as arguing a point Eric. This is a fallacy that Bill Oreilly uses because he can only cast negative opinions although he does not argue points unless it suits him. What exactly is your point Eric? Are you saying that to want freedom you have to be stupid? Are you proposing that Doc, You are correct in your location, Google Earth will show all where the construction is located. As to your second question a few years, however the "sun is over the yard arm" and it's a beautiful day on the Costa Alegre. It's cocktail hour. By the way I hear that Playa Grande is having a very large party "Ignorance abounds." Ok I am ignorant. Anyone who disagrees with you is ignorant. I think your attitude "definitely shows a lack of respect for others and should be taken to elsewhere!" Glad I live in Mexico, it is still a free country. 				Ignorance abounds? Ignorance is the lack of information. It is difficult to believe that anyone does not know that smoking is bad for human beings. It has occurred to me that perhaps the Mexican population knows that when one freedom is denied another will soon follow. Perhaps ignorance is not economically based. Perhaps the poorer people in the world do not want to have their government tell them what they can or cannot do because of what they see and your idols: the kennedy's, clinton's, jackson's, soros, pelosi, gore, kerry and on and on haven't a penny. liberals are soooooooooooooo intolerant. by the way brian t. your comment about war profiteers, how about your boy clinton saying our soldiers would be in bosnia for no longer then one year let's see that was back in the early 90's..... guess what, our soldiers are still there. and don't even get me started about pork barrel projects as they were originated by the left to garner votes. history my boy, study it. 				Scientists Watch Polar Areas for Changes By ANGELA CHARLTON ASSOCIATED PRESS PARIS (AP) - Are we really heading for an ice-free Arctic? More than 50,000 researchers hope to find an answer during a massive study of how global warming and other phenomena are changing the coldest parts of the Earth - and what that means for the rest of it. Scientists formally kicked off the International Polar Year on Thursday, the biggest such project in 50 years. It is unifying researchers from 63 nations in 228 studies to monitor the health of the polar regions, using icebreakers, satellites and submarines. The project ends in March 2009. Global warming "is the most important challenge we face in this century," Prince Albert II of Monaco said in launching the project in Inuits Blame U.S. for Climate Change ASSOCIATED PRESS WASHINGTON (AP) - As the world's largest emitter of greenhouse gases, the United States has come under heavy criticism, including from people who live almost on top of the world. The Inuits of Northern Canada and beyond are taking their case against the United States on Thursday to an international human rights commission. They have scant chance of a breakthrough but still hope to score moral and political points against the U.S. and its carbon spewers. "The point here is that our way of life is at stake," says Sheila Watt-Cloutier, who was nominated with former Vice President Al Gore for a Nobel Peace Prize for their work on climate change. My friend from Chicago who was pregnant at the time was advised by her doctor to drink it for her water retention. You do not have to make it into a tea. My Mexican mother in law just soaks it in a pitcher of water and then drinks it without the sugar. They believe it is good for the kidneys and I found it helped me. You can soak it and then add sugar if you like but once you start getting used to it you can start Wow asking for a cleanup of a library and real BBQ has turned some of the forum tipsy turvy has it not? The question was about food not Brad as he seems nice. I do reserve my right to look for the best anywhere I travel. My comments and questions are not negative towards Puerto either. Just a note for a library ran by a prestigious organization to clean up its act period! Maybe it was heard a They sell the Jamaica popsicles down here too and I drink the infusion the way your mother in-law does, with no sugar. You should have seen the look on Enrique's family's faces though the first time they tried my jamaica without sugar, The problem of where to get delicious "smoked" ribs is solved. When the grill gets going at Vaqueros (next door to the library), the sweet smell of smoke wafts throughout the neighborhood - now that's good bbq-mexican style and no one complains about the smoke. 				Thank you 'A Rock' for your acute observation regarding my input here on tomzap. I may not post daily or weekly, as many do, it's in part because I don't participate in the typical banter constantly burdening tomzap nor do I have a weekly weather report, which by the way I personally find very useful. When I do participate hopefully I provide useful and timely information and not a bunch of crap slinging back and forth as so many seem to enjoy doing on this site. I realize all is subjective but that's how I see it. 				You can purchase dried hibiscus flowers in many health food stores in Canada. I have been making this tea for about 30 years mixed with lemon juice and honey as a very healthy drink served hot or cold depending on the season. It is a very good liver cleanser and quenches thirst in the hot weather like cervesa never can. I recommend anyone visiting to make up a jug and keep it in the fridge Well after reading some of these blurps out there i am finding myself in need of a good speech.....I truly believe that unless we learn from history we shall indeed make the same mistakes over and over and over again....Our political leaders do whatever gets them votes....Bush at the time of 9/11 did the real honest thing which was to respond back to those who had done a true act of war on American soil.....So he along with the other countries in this world decided to go after the group who set out to try and hit a target with the hugest impact and the "highest volume of kills in one day" as to the thinking of bin ladin and his followers.....Makes me pause to think of Sleeping Beauty and the seven how nice it is to read the comments from someone excited and happy about puerto. 				If you want to talk about death on the coast, just get to the point. I know that in my wives huatulco county town, there are no police, just a truck that occasionally goes in to drive the 10 mile loop. Once a week or so. Of course, between neighbors there, people will kill the aggressive drunks, people will kill whoever is fighting them for their land, or over family stuff. The bodies are discovered, and buried. It's a old style civilization, when stuff happens it happens for real. But, these things are not very common. The reason that many stay submissive and are non fighters, is the fact they were raised in families that are consciously avoiding trouble. They know fighter attitudes here, eventually must kill or are I remember a bully who was a lineman, he got stabbed in the neck and after 500 stitches he got some of those percasets too. He remembers me as a pretty tough character I must say.. But, I don't retaliate anymore, ther're plenty of Scientists threatened for 'climate denial' By Tom Harper, Sunday Telegraph 11/03/2007 Scientists who questioned mankind's impact on climate change have received death threats and claim to have been shunned by the scientific community. They say the debate on global warming has been "hijacked" by a powerful alliance of politicians, scientists and environmentalists who have stifled all questioning about the true environmental impact of carbon dioxide emissions. Timothy Ball, a former climatology professor at the University of Winnipeg in Canada, has received five deaths threats by email since raising concerns about the degree to which man was affecting climate change. One of the emails Make up your mind Eric.On one thread you're talking about how you "don't retaliate any more",while at the same time on another thread you're offering a 1000 peso reward for someone to out me so you can hurt me.Do you even know Sure he knows what hes doing.Do you? More rain expected for the next few days, which we need as we've been in a drought for a few years now. Every lake in the area is low but some rivers are predicted to flood today so maybe the lakes will fill partially back up. The positive effect of the rain hopefully will bring out the wild flowers, make berries appear on the dew berry vines and generally green up the area. Really looking forward to seeing the start of the rainy season in Puerto in May-June. If anyone would like to help transport animals from the Barra, Melaque area or help in the clinic please give me a call. We are also going to try to help out Tenacatita by making trips over there to bring the beach dogs to the clinic. It sure would be nice if we had more help with that. We need trucks with camper shells or SUVs. We've been told there are about 10 dogs so it might take a couple of days to get them all done. If you feel you are a "dog wisperer" that would really help. You go to gate 19 which is the info booth and hang out there until your flight gets posted. Sounds simple but they will tel you it is leaving from gate 19 then 30 minuted before the flight give you the real gate. Wasn't hard mostly just a pain. The hot news is that Oaxaca is a bargain. Totally quiet, repainted, cleaner than I have ever seen it. Shopping is a bargain at the moment. They were really hurt by last summer and are eager to sell. My B&B owner told me that he only had a 10% response to his special and that he still gets cancelations even though all the travel advisories have been removed. gee LT you must of taken a long time to think that up. Another way for you to try is Del Rio Texas (now the cat is out of the bag) straight down to Saltillo - San Luis Potosí - around Querétero - San Juan del Rio - and here you have a few options through Mexico City to Oaxaca or to Toluca and Taxco and Acapulco or to Pachuca to Puebla to Oaxaca and on to the coast. 				But not nearly as impressive as Jarhead's. I began this travel thing with a ticket to Costa Rica, but with things to do I reduced my travel from 11 days to 7 and changed my ticket to Puerto Vallarta. Then my friend couldnt make it so I changed it again to Huatulco and six days. Arriving at the airport I made my way past the offers of 500 pesos to Pochutla and began walking towards the highway. I planned to take the first bus to Pochutla and then a taxi or pesero to Zipolite. There ain't much to see except the Pemex station across the road, but before I could even begin to wait a taxi came over and I told him what I wanted to do. I wanted to see how cheaply I could leave the airport, but when you "Obnoxious Americans...all the stuff you write here...I should probably go somewhere else." You're probably onto something. The coffee at Cafecito seems to have improved and it was a load of fun to watch the older expats gab and gossip. We then poured down the steps to Carrizalillo beach and spent the afternoon trying not to burn our lilly white skin. The water was particularly clean that day and the waves were small -- the bay was like a huge bath tub. 				Once again I had a fantastic trip to Puerto. I've been there 6 of the last 7 years and had a blast every time. The surfing contest they had while I was there was very entertaining even though the waves weren't very big at the time. I noticed alot of construction going on. Also, of all the posters I could have met from this site who do you think I met? Info, of course. Robert, I really enjoy your photography, you are talented. I have one piece of advice for you, put some good energy out there, tell some stories with happy endings. Up here in the states bad things happen too but I try not to dwell on them. We stuffed ourselves at breakfast. I had to make my daughter jealous by having pancakes with peanut butter, chocolate syrup, caramel sauce, topped with mini M&Ms. Don't even want to think about the calories, I'm on vacation! This treat reminds me of a place in P.V., "Memo's Pancake House". They make all kinds of pancakes, black forest was one of my favorites. They are also popular with their omelets. The best one- I saw two weeks from Calgary to Huatulco direct, for $700 CAD per person. Check out photos at http://huatulco-house-for-rent.spaces.live.com/ The house is located just five mins walk from the biggest supermarket in Huatulco (La Fuente) and 10 mins walk from downtown, called "La Crucecita" where you may find the most popular restaurants, bars and shops. "La Crucecita" is famous for its truly traditional Mexican ambience as well as its colourful little square. The house has two bedrooms, one with a queen size bed and a wardrobe, as well as a large mirror. The house has one bathroom with a shower. The dining room as well as the living room are quite spacious, as you can see on the pics. The living room offers a two person futon which can be made into a bed as well as the space to hang a hammock inside the house. Several witnesses for this incident I'm sure, We found dogs in Mexico to be quite timid towards humans... acting very ferocious with lots of barking, snarling and feints in our direction until confronted at which time they quickly retreated. The fighting and barking are a fact of life, however, much to my chagrin and loss of sleep. Yes, they fight amongst themselves for domination as most animals do, but I suspect attacks on humans are rare. However, I must qualify that statement based on the amount of caution most Mexican people exhibit around dogs... they do seem to be quite cautious around dogs. 				Las Brisas bought the old Club Med property. The Med was the first hotel on Tangolunda and they naturally picked the point with by far the best beaches in the area. While all beaches are part of Mexico's patrimony and are by law, public, the hotel's location limits access by intimidation if nothing else. Clubs Med attract a different type of clientele than most resorts and the stress of constant climbing and clambering is not such a problem for Medites. Now I have Good Morning. 				Hey Drift, that is the way I decided to go.Taxi to the Zocalo from the airport in Acapulco, buy tickets on the first bus out and sleep.I may have lunch there if there is time.I should catch the 13:45 and be in Puerto by 9pm.I was considering a night in Acapulco but with only 2 weeks for the trip I cant see staying there at all, maybe on the return but I leave late so who knows.Only 480 RT to Aca from JFK, lot less than flying anywhwere else near Puerto.My buddy just got back, Hi Everybody: I am almost finishing a house in Puerto Angel, about 200 mts from Playa estacahuite. I am looking for somebody to fix it up a bit. Of course the view and the house are very nice. Possible monetary-accommodation arrangements can be made. Anybody interested feel free to ask me anything. I If Eric's not involved it should be about 500,000 pesos.

Is that the one that brought you here from Current Archaeological thought has it that Mexico didn't reach its Precolumbian population until 1964. Upwards of 70% of the indigenous population fell to disease and the sword during the conquest. Even before the Europeans, civilizations had risen and fallen for millenea. Where I've been hanging out in the Las Tuxtlas, the Olmeca laid the bedrock civilization for Mexico - or was it? Not as much is known about the Olmecs as the Mayan or Aztec civilizations.But they were indeed one of the earlier great civilizations of Mexico. If I brought Eric in,how much would it be to take care of him? I am not an archeologist by any means but don't ruins appear to be of recent vintage? Certainly don't look to have the same weathered patina associated with other Mayan and Aztec sites in Mesoamerica. I know these civilizations were master masons but look at the mortar particularly - a little too well preserved?. Again, just doesn't look like something that's been buried for 500 years. Could why compare? I am coming for semana santa and everything was booked way in advance, but I Heavy wants to donate some time as a TLC care giver. It's a lesson he missed I have piles of stones like this on the back of my land up in far northern Wisconsin hidden in the underbrush....Is the any chance the Olmecas or Mayans I already took a look at their sales chart and of the structures already built they Vote Jose for jefe of the lifegaurds, and Jim makes a good security gaurd. 				Good Evening Tourist Fans of Huatulco, Many people visiting Huatulco stay fairly close to the resorts, sometimes out of necessity due to the large expense in getting to Huatulco from more distant places. However, if you are able to rent a cab for a day and share the cost with another couple or so, consider going "up" the coast (West) to places like San Agustinillo, Puerto Angel, Puerto Escondido, and Zipo. Such trips are great adventures and often bring you closer to people of the area. Try to learn in advance the market days of various communities so you can time your outings to be in a community during market day. We decided to visit the area of San Agustinillo and here is what we saw --

These cisterns are located at points of higher elevation in the community and downfeed through the domestic water distribution network. I beleive the water authority is state rather than fed and is Without having it tested in a certified laboratory, it's anybody's guess! Even then, the "purified" water coming out of the purification plant (if there is such a thing), could pass by a sewage or septic area on the way to your house and be contaminated through leakage and fractures from the last time someone used a backhoe on your street. There are small testing kits available to test for fecal coliform, but that is only one form of contamination (although it's a real bad one). It is just down the street from my office and I eat there quite a bit. The food is great, Claudia and Omar are super and the new Bar should be fun. 				I agree with Doodah, my rule is to never carry anything you won't miss. I've had petty thefts several times over the years. Twice my clothes(and my date's) were stolen on the beach while I(we) drunkenly skinny dipped right there on Playa principle. It was night by the way and deserted. 25-30 years ago the entire town was shut down by 10pm. Now some bars open later than that. As far as mexican cops not caring about thieves, I once saw a Mexican beachboy, a really good looking Romeo of a guy that was caught ripping off gringo and European gals. He'd go home with them and a partner would rip them off as the beachboy slept with the girl. First time he got away with it, the next time the cops snatched him Interesting... do the local authorities add chlorine to the water supply in PE? From my experience, chlorine is not too friendly to plant life. The place I stayed at this winter in PE had a gardener who heavily watered the plants twice a week. I did not notice any detrimental effect on the plants, but that was a month ago, maybe things have changed. Water testing in labs where I live, is around $250US for a test (a lot of $$, but we are testing well water for potability). Info, test

				Hola, The Rio Copalita is a large, clean river that flows from the mountains into the ocean at La Bocana beach. You saw photos of La Bocana beach in a previous post. What most people miss is the actual river, and it is free! The river flows straight through a bird refuge and it is a kind of "servant" to those who live beside it. The first two pictures are of boys fishing south of the bridge. They appear hard at work trying to catch a fish, and I think they have one! This place is being made nicer, by us, the residents. 6 two bedroom apartments and 2 stores were all rented before I even finished here right in front of Carrisalillo beach. 110,000 if you want a top floor unit, 100,000 for a second floor and 85,000 for a bottom floor unit. Then the shops up front can be sold too. Or the whole dang project for 500,000.00. I would do that today, but not after next season. Our first stop was the "Onix" Restaurant in La Crucecita, which is owned and operated by Luis and Elba, our friends. Friendship, notwithstanding, Luis strictly charged us to try all the other new restaurants in the area before drawing any conclusions, so . . . we did! We went to his immediate competition across the boulevard to the new "Agave" Restaurant which has an Italian theme, although it is also able to produce fine Southeast Asian cuisine. The owner, Max, came to the table to greet us, which always impresses me! Here is a photo of him gina is a fantastic resource for the community. she helped me greatly this past trip. and there is almost always a line at her booth and i always had to wait and listen to get her alone. she really knows about puerto and everyone in it. she is a big help to many of the fledgling businesses and educational resources. she hooked me up with the people at TEMAMEScali. a yoga, message, sweat bath place run by a man named alejandro in lazaro. i lost the handout she gave me. if anyone is going to see gina, it would save me a 2000 mile trip if you would take one of the flyers and post his address here. it would really help out. i gave him a non in windows xp. that operation sends me back a page to the list.

It appears the funds provided for the lifeguards by the state has been used for private purposes other than what it was designated for, who really knows. There were 98 rescues last year during the Semana Santa holiday along the bay. This is just in 1 week. What does this mean?. It probably means the mortician will be very very busy. It also shows how much those in charge of this city care for the beach or its visitors. Most of these are getting better, for God's sake dont edit this one! L.T.	78

3200	5	L.T.	Re: Dangerous local loose on	A second meeting of our small group will be held on the 4th of April at 4pm in Melaque and anyone interested in attending is welcome. The intent of the group is something similar to what Ayuda los Niños has been doing but without competing for the tourist dollar with dinners, dances and winter only fund raisers. We would like this to be a year round project comprised of mostly year round residents - both Mexican and extranjeros. Winter business people and residents that are here for 3-5 months are certainly welcome but full timers would be more helpful at the moment. The plan is to create associations with groups like Rotary International from up north but also in Mexico ... such as Project Amigo in Hello Doodah Thanks but I have two neighbors who have made the same trip in 18 hours I have no idea how they have done it We only stopped for gas My wife would run to the bathroom and I would walk the dog but as soon as the tank was full we started up again When we arrived in Corpus Christi we both slept for 12 hours I cannot believe how much driving takes out of a person I know I can Hi Jim - We checked all the farmacias in Melaque and La Manz and couldn't find it. 				Dengue Surging in Mexico, Latin America By MARK STEVENSON Associated Press Writer MEXICO CITY (AP) - The deadly hemorrhagic form of dengue fever is increasing dramatically in Mexico, and experts predict a surge throughout Latin America fueled by climate change, migration and faltering mosquito eradication efforts. Overall dengue cases have increased by more than 600 percent in Mexico since 2001, and worried officials are sending special teams to tourist resorts to spray pesticides and remove garbage and standing water where mosquitoes breed ahead of the peak Easter Week vacation season. Even classic dengue - known as "bonebreak fever" - can cause severe flu-like symptoms, excruciating joint pain, high fever, nausea and rashes. More Again, for those who haven't read this advice before, the common household water and vegetable purifier Microdyn sold in most tiendas and farmacias, is 90ppm colloidal silver. Colloidal silver has shown preventative qualities against dengue at 3-4 drops per day, and effective, rapid beneficial treatment qualities at < http://www.cdc.gov/ncidod/dvbid/dengue/ >

				I found a wonderful Spanish teacher in Puerto Escondido. Edith Mendéz is a native born Mexican speaker of Spanish from Cuernavaca, the capital of Spanish language schools in Mexico. She is an experienced professional teacher who has decided to relocate to Puerto Escondido and start a similarly high quality school here. She is starting up her new business in a beautiful COOL location on Marsopas Street near the Rinconada. To find out more about her, call her phone number at: 954-108-6932 or email her at: edithmendez@hotmail.com. She speaks both Spanish and English, which is important when you are first trying to choose a teacher. If you are planning to

				When I was in Mexico in February my bank statement shows that every time I took out 1000 pesos the exchange rate varied with the rate of the day...exactly. My bank charged me a 3.50 cdn charge on one account and no withdrawal fee on another account that we have. I think it is wise to go to your bank in advance and ask what their rate is for an international withdrawal and negotiate the best rate you can with them before you go and use that account. This should be possible if you have a bank that you have been doing business with for years. So, Eric, you were right! We don't have many Emissions Already Affecting Climate, Report Finds By ANDREW C. REVKIN New York Times April 6, 2007 For the first time in nearly two decades of reviewing research on global warming, the main international group studying climate change has found that heat-trapping emissions from industry and other activities are already influencing weather patterns and ecology in ways both harmful and beneficial. In its fourth assessment of global warming, the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change used its strongest language yet in drawing a link between human activity and recent warming. But the group, the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, said the long-term outlook, should temperatures rise 3 to 5 more degrees fahrenheit, was mainly for damaging and Global warming could hit Southwest hard Dust Bowl-scale droughts forecast By Marc Kaufman, Washington Post April 6, 2007 WASHINGTON -- Global warming will permanently change the climate of the American Southwest, making it so much hotter and drier that Dust Bowl-scale droughts will become common, a new climate report concludes. While much of the nation west of the Mississippi River is likely to get drier because of the buildup of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere, the greatest effect will be felt in the already-arid areas on both sides of the US-Mexico border. By the end of the century, the climate researchers predict, rainfall in that region will have declined by a worrisome 10	81

More than 100 nations in the UN climate panel agreed a final text after all-night talks during which some scientists accused governments of watering down conclusions that climate change was already under way and damaging nature. "Conflict is a hard word, tension is a better word," Gary Yohe, one of the lead authors, said of the mood at the talks. Agreement came after an all-night session during which key sections were deleted from the draft and scientists angrily confronted government negotiators who they feared were watering down their findings. 				New TB Strain in South Africa a Concern JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - The extent of the deadly new strain of tuberculosis in South Africa and the region is not known and is cause for concern, an international health expert said Wednesday. Dr Fabio Scano, a TB expert from the World Health Organization in Geneva, has been sent to South Africa at the request of the government to assist with the outbreak of the extensively drug-resistant tuberculosis strain, or XDR-TB. "We don't know the extent of multiple drug resistant and extreme drug resistant TB in sub-Saharan Africa and the southern African region. There is not yet the capacity to test in these countries," Scano said at a news conference. The gourmet lunch on a secluded beach and the friendly staff is worth the trip and the snorkeling or diving is an added treat. We saw hump back whales, manta rays soaring out of the sea and the lovely bays of Huatulco, without leaving the boat, if you are not a water person. Well worth the time and money. 				During our recent trip to Huatulco in February and March, we looked up Roberto and his crew living on "the edge" of the beach in Santa Cruz. They are a friendly "bunch," some just passing through, others in Huatulco to stay, more or less. Now, it is time to meet Roberto and his crew. My spouse would not allow me to take our camera on the dive boat because I showed her my lack of "faithfulness" by loosing it in a taxi the day before. I guess only she could imagine what I might do with it on a boat! So, here is a video of Hurricane Divers "embedded" in one of the best videos I have found about Huatulco on "Youtube.com" and it was taken just last month. Hurricane Divers is featured early in the film AND Roberto, I'd say close to 50% of the time my FMT wasn't collected - I just threw them away, in the US, when I got home. I'm new to the FM3 thing, but when I left Puerto Escondido, via Mexico City, Mexicana, in January, 2007, the "registro de salidas" section wasn't completed, like left blank. According to the FM3, I never left Mexico. when I came back in, via Mexico City Immigration, today, the lady looked at the omission, looked at me, I shrugged my shoulders, and she wrote Left Villa Obregon on Tuesday morning and made Matehuala's "Motel Villa Real" @ 280 Peso for the night (No tell motel) my first overnight stop, Thanks Scott M. Crossed the border at the Columbia bridge for the first time. I do not know if it is worth going so far out of the way instead of using the Laredo bridges. It was definitely faster to return the papers and FMT, but about 40+ km to get there from M85D makes me wonder. Second night made it to Temple,Tx. Motel6 for US$ 33.95, $34.50 inc tax. Just under 1000km driving daily. The only Military spotcheck was about 15km north of Matehuala and at 6:45 am the one frozen soldier just waved everyone through, (51 deg F) On the way from Lagos When I flew out of Mexico City for the States no one stamped my FM 3 either. When I returned, there was no problem. The U.S. immigration agent, however, seemed to doubt my identity. He asked me what the nearest freeway was to my home address. The question made no sense since my point of entry was can anyone who has stayed at the bungalows Corona tell me anything about it. It looks pretty nice as per their advertisement. I'm planning a two month stay in He was looking for nervousness. You may have been on the run. the us agent want to hear you speak reasoned answers and to see if youu are We are Canadians - opened a bank account at Scotiabank in Santa Cruz with she helped me and i needed some more help. i didn't want to start a whole topic but i may have to since i am here in the capitol of ky and i need help there. if they need to find good words here to justify her job which see gets no pay, just play, she is hurtin for certain. if you or they want to see what see does for people, check it out. she is there most days, but sometimes she is out. but is is "Anthropologist Finds Earliest Evidence Of Maize Farming In Mexico" Science Daily — A Florida State University anthropologist has new evidence that ancient farmers in Mexico were cultivating an early form of maize, the forerunner of modern corn, about 7,300 years ago - 1,200 years earlier than scholars previously thought. Professor Mary Pohl conducted an analysis of sediments in the Gulf Coast of TABASCO, Mexico, and concluded that people were planting crops in the "New World" of the Americas around 5,300 B.C. The analysis extends Pohl's previous work in this area and validates principles of microfossil data collection. The results of Pohl's study, which she conducted along with Dolores R. Piperno of the National Museum of Natural History in Washington, "Genetically Modified Maize Not Found In Southern Mexico" Science Daily — COLUMBUS , Ohio Contrary to what many scientists thought,genetically modified (GM) corn has not yet spread to native maize cropsin southern Mexico. After analyzing tens of thousands of seedsfrom maize crops grown in 2003 and 2004, researchers from Mexico andthe United States found no evidence of transgenes in these indigenousvarieties. The finding surprised the researchers, said AllisonSnow, a professor of evolution, ecology and organismal biology at OhioState University . She helped lead the study that appears online thisweek in the Early Edition of the Proceedings of the National Academy ofSciences. The study is the first published report to survey the frequency of transgenes in native Kurt Vonnegut dead at 84.... So it goes. On a trip to Puerto and Central America in 1978 I read eight or ten of his books. Of course I have read more since but that trip was somewhat defined by reading those books..... and the good waves. 				You should make an effort to get your FM3 stamped or whatever they do. It could turn into a fine. Probably not but since you show your FM3 every time you enter and leave and when you renew there is a record. Unlike a FMT. While it may not be a hassle entering and leaving like what happened to Dennis, when you renew it there might be a hassle. Like you are not doing your job regarding the FM3. It is very easy to drive out of the country without returning your car papers but when you return they have a record that you brought the car in but never took it out. On your FM3 there is a record of you leaving, leaving, leaving Here is a good report about Vonnegut and there are three other interviews with him. I'm not sure if they have indoor dining or not but we sat outside where there is a small bar and couple different levels for eating and drinking. This is a small boutique type hotel. We dined at sunset with a magnificent view of the bay and the hotel zone. Tomzap pegged this place as PB's comments make perfect sense to me. I thought exactly the same things after I wrote the above post. For me, I'm going to try to make sure somebody at They're on the west end of Melaque and have an ad on costalegre.ca. I just Probably the captain was not thinking when the ocean waves were too bad to go out, Plus another boat sunk and the people were in the water for 40 minutes getting bit by Baracuda fish and other fish. The captain of boat finally called someone on his cell phone after trying for 40 minutes for a signal with his hand If anyone cares two adults and two poor kids were in the water for at least 40 minutes. A boat finally from Santa Cruz when to get them after being notified by "Bitten by barracuda..."? Before publishing more of this alarmist nonsense, please try to get some facts rather than hearsay and innuendo, please. I was hoping Roberto from Hurricane would jump in on this one as I feel his expertise might be a little better respected than mine own, but these folks weren't being bitten by barracuda. Pesky damned triggerfish, maybe. But not barracuda. Cuda Casa Mayor also has a new place in Plaza Madero mall in La Crucerita area before you get to the main park area. It is two shops down from Baldi's pizza, no food yet, like the first coffee shop they have, mainly coffee and drinks. Wi-fi I agree with johnzap I often swim in the ocean here in huatulco many times for more then 40 minutes and I have never had a problem What happens sounds horrible but the part about barracuda sounds a little over the top. 			There was no immigration agent at the Mexico City airport. At least not at 5:30 a.m. I checked in my suitcase at the Alaska Airlines counter. They didn't even check to see if I had a passport. In fact passengers were required to check themselves in on computer kiosks. Then I went through airport security and then I was in the departure lounge. I had to show my passport and ticket to go through security and to get onto the plane. I kept looking (but not asking) for an immigration office. I wanted my FM 3 stamped. Worst FM3 story was entering Mexico by car in Nogales at dawn. We got the red light and the car was examined. I asked the agent to stamp my FM3. He said he didn't have the

3801	12 jerdee	Re: beach fishing	tdavidson, Flick has the right attitude but he may not catch many fish. Most surf fishermen use spinning equipment with 3/4- to 1-ounce silver spoons. Also, I'd use 20-lb line. I once tried 12-lb line and the line simply snapped. I tried to play the drag because the fish was going for a run. 3805	5 Eric S.	Re: A Great Writer Is Dead	Thanks for the info, i'm bringing down some special "smelts" for bait T I love to fish the beaches in Barra and surrounds. I was down in March for 2 weeks and fished every day. I don't catch that much, but that's why its called fishing, not catching. I probably have one fish for each 4 hrs of fishing. But I could better this ratio if I just fished when the fish are present, vs fishing because I really enjoy it. Fishing when the fish are there is really the key. Train your eye to watch for "feeding" schools of fish. I call them "boils". Very obvious when the occur but often they are beyond casting range. These are general Jacks (aka Toros) and they fight like hell. I have caught 20 pounders off the beach and can take you from Barra to Melaque -- up to 45 minutes to bring in.	362

Livi Sanchez, mayor of Villa Obregon, is accepting clothing especially for senior citizens in the Villa Obregon-San Patricio-Melaque area. There are also adults and children who are in need of clothing as well. Clothing need not be "Brand New", but the newer the better. We all have clothing that sits on a hanger and never gets worn. Someone could benefit from your donation. One or two pieces of clothing does not take up that much space in your suit case. And, like myself, there are a great many of us who drive down to this beautiful paradise and can bring more. I've always seen the earth as a living being forgiving and just balanced and beautiful earth deserves our love our care and our trust for she will always be there till we've all turned to dust as dust she'll accept us and renovate our souls If an instructor doesn't push the student, he sure as heck won't be able to catch a wave. 				I think the main focus right now is for children's donations with 'Dia de los Niños' being on the 30th of this month. Schools are collecting also. If the few snow birds that are here, vacationers (or full timers) don't have kids clothes around they might pick up a few things at the Tianguis. The Ocampo address is the family house address and Tito's house is around the corner facing the lagoon. This place is far from crowded right now but the pace of the locals is normal which is really nice to see. Laguna Del Tule is still great and I love the wireless access that works with my newly purchased "slingbox" viewer. I glad I can watch the Canucks kick the Star's rear ends !!!!! I have a box with maybe 40 new tee shirts and and equal number of new ball caps. The shirts are no good because the team changed colors and the kids didn't like the hats because the backs are a mesh material. Go figure. May have to name one of the teams Spring Creek Little League. That what the shirts and hats read. Brand new! This team has sent some great stuff already. Thank you to all those who responded in a hi dbgrover, i joined the rotary club in 1985 in canada and think it would be great to have a club here. i just feel as probably you do that it has to be formed accordingly. there was a statement made by someone in this local group that"fund raising is too much work"anyone starting with that attitude had better You've heard from Puerto's kneejerk know-nothing 30% club. But it takes voters to "fire" leaders, and Pelosi's approval is over 50% (nationally, though she represents a district in California). And, despite heavily slanted reporting by the Repug controlled MSM, 61% say bring troops home NOW OR WITHIN A YEAR (and another poll echoes this): "Poll reveals most negative assessment of Iraq war yet" WASHINGTON (CNN) -- Pessimism about Iraq has continued to mount, even before the news of Wednesday's bombings in Baghdad. In the latest CNN/Opinion Research Corporation poll, taken April 10-12, 69 percent of Americans say things are going badly for the United States in Iraq. That's the Great post JLE. I also have a little experiance with intelligent life. My father built his desert home using a 69 dodge van as a powerhouse for all his electric tools. He put solar panels on the roof and a big inverter in the van. Then he built a home out of wood from solar power 100%. When he finished the insulated 1 bedroom home, it had solar panels on it's roof too, and a battery shed. Inverters in the home allow microwaves and stereo systems to run great. The place is positioned so in the winter the sun enters the big living room windows and warms this high desert pad naturally. The summer months the sun never touches the same windows, keeping it cool. The water is also heated just by a Drifter, just keep my kids off your dirty little mind. They are in the best schools. And they kick ass in everything they do. You wish you could have produced such fine children. But, that would be absolutely impossible i'm quite sure. Are you the man who I helped save his life when his hemoglobin was down to 2.4 at the pochutla hospital? The dude who needed type A- blood? 				Flat cement roofs double as a rooftop patio, where you'll spend 70% of your time possibly. A steel framed metal laminate roof over that patio, with flatter runoff angle is an economic choice and the lightest weight roof. I'm covering about 90 sq. meters with the steel framed (3x2 ptr steel tubing, 2x2 ptr crossbars for attaching steel laminate sheeting) steel sheeting over the top, green color for about 5000 dlls american. It'll look kinda crappy from the underside, but it's economic and lasts forever with good primer then flash coat over that. Block can used for underground foundation and interior walls if you want to save a little on your interior walls. Block walls tend to get more cracks in them though, so buy hard ones that the corners don't chip off when you apply heavy thumb pressure on the edge. 				Well- life is a game of chance, you take your chances in everything you decide to do. So, as adults when we go to Melaque we don't drink the tap water, we brush our teeth with purified water, we keep our mouth shut when showering so as not to get polluted water in it, we wash all vegies and fruit in some desinfectant; we rely on our knowledge of sanitary conditions so as not to get sick from polluted water and general poor sanitation in Melaque/ Barra. So, how are you gonna tell a baby not to stick its fingers into it's mouth, not to get bathwater into its mouth, not to lick anything it feels like it because there might be dogshit from oodles of loose dogs running around, or other pollutants on it.

They have developed a stand-alone hydrogen generator slightly larger than a coke machine, to be placed along their hydrogen-vehicle-only highway ring. Who benefits economically? Those building the new cars. Those building the hydrogen infrastructure. Those maintaining the vehicles. Who loses? Overly-entrenched conventional car manufacturers. 4557	12	danpatman	Re: Hotel Mayto	Hi Jeff, The hotel is usually open year round as long as you let someone know you are going to be there, as in low season they receive few visitors. The phone number is: (01) 333 1772184 and the manager's name is Jose Lozano. The hotel is very nice. Rooms are clean and comfortable and it has the extra bonus of being on a nesting beach for sea turtles, although we are still currently in low season. Thanks so much for the info. My main concern of course is the return trip as our car and baby will be travelling by themselves and would hate to miss the plane. A lot depends on the bus running on time. It is probably much busier in Feb of course. Is it far from the bus stand to the airport? She would take a taxi from the here is some comment in another thread by rosch who recently was looking in the zicatela area: Thanks everyone for your suggestions regarding housing. I actually had not logged in here in some time as I have already found a place and am no longer looking. I was looking for something specific that will not fit everyone's needs, but I found Dan and Carmen's, Cabanas El Maguey, and Neptune House, to all be very accomodating. All offer kitchens. Cabanas El Maguey and I returned yesterday from the Huatulco area, where we spent nearly three weeks. Speaking with many of the local people, the rain season normally begins in June and will last thru our summer. I was told that the best time to visit Huatulco is during the last two weeks of November, when the rains have concluded, yet you will find the area very green and not yet overcrowded with visitors. My findings. During the late afternoon, the on shore winds increase and thunderhead clouds form over the mountain areas. Later, these clouds drift toward the shoreline and precipitation may fall, which may last anywhere from 20 minutes to two hours. During our stay, on days that it rained, it occurred Greetings to all. I am a new visitor to the blog and have found all the comments very interesting and entertaining. I have the intent to come to Zipolite from the month of July 'till the end of the year to live, work, be at the beach. I would appreciate all help in locating a private room with private bathroom, fan, clean but not fancy, basic is better but with good security. Price is most important. Can you pay cash in advance for whole term for best deal or will consider trade for my car? If you are overweight or at all affected by humidity, wait until October or November even. If you're just gonna lay around by the pool or on the beach, no problem. But if you like to walk, your clothes will stick to you from the humidity during the month of July. IMO the Roca Blanca area of Zipolite is the most active. However, it won't be very busy in July, but there will be people. I would suggest Hoteles: las Brisas Marinas, La Chozza, and San Cristobol for lodgings in the $15-25US per day. No need to reserve or pay in advance. Also, there is no need to pay for more than one night at a time. This will leave you open to explore other possible lodgings or house rentals. Finding a job as a cook is possible but technically illegal in Mexico. I have not known the Cihuatlán Plus 9:30 am first class bus to run late. Any time I have taken it the arrival in PV has been on time. If you are that concerned though she could also take the 4 am Flecha Amarilla first class bus which would get her to PV around 9 as I recall. I took it once intending to check my bags at Alaska and go into old town for a bit of a ramble. However, upon arriving at the airport I found out that the Alaska counter opened at 12:30 so not wanting to haul my bags around PV with me I passed a I definitely suggest that you call and make a reservation at the Hotel Mayto. On two occasions when we've been there on what should have been slow weekends we found the hotel and grounds (tent camping on the grounds) fully booked with groups. If you do find that you can't get into the Mayto when you want to be in Tehua both Candelaria and Loreena's restaurants in Tehua proper, right by the jetty have clean rooms with private bathrooms for rent. The pilot landed long and hot on 05R and really had to use reverse thrust to get us stopped on the very end of the runway. As usual the air quality in Mx was terrible. Ran into a friend and PE resident Annie in the waiting area. The Click flight was only 15 minutes late taking off. Arrived to bright sunshine and temps around 88 in Puerto. As we circled down over PE I was surprised how much new construction seems to be going on. My friend Bill picked me up and also gave our friend	84

You need an antenna for both. One comes from Casa de Marco in Barra and the other from an antenna in Colimilla on Isla Navidad. Rodriguo in Cihuatlán can set you up with either - he speaks English. You can also just contract high speed through a phone line directly from Telmex the phone company. Paco Barriente in Barra offers Spanish lessons year round and I believe that Diana at La Terraza in Melaque does as well. Spanish is the mother tounge for both of them and they are both fluent enough in English to explain things. I don't know of an English speaking pharmacist but both Dr. Crespo and Dr. Rubio in Barra have pharmacies and speak English. From Barra there are vets in Melaque about 2 miles away. Alleygata, Like Nan said..... There isn't a better source on TOMZAP "Power Elite Americans" I like that one, can I use it? Anyway, we're coming and guess what for a good long If you read my post you will see that I did not refer to you as a power-elite American Doc, I merely noted that you post from Minneapolis and are therefore not a part of our community here in the Costalegre. Rest assured you certainly Nan your clarification is duly noted and you are correct, my apology. 				, Doc , chill out your talking about one of the nicest unspoiled places that I have ever come across in my many years of travelling the world . LoL both Melaque and Barra have been my preferred destination for the last ten years or more . These two towns surpass Puerto Vallarta and Acapulco for having nice genuine caring people , the kind that always say buenos dias to passersby even though we are strangers . Ali I am sure that you will enjoy your new adventure in Barra , and live there for many years . Who knows you may even get to meet Doc . Doc , I have to ask you this question were we talking to you at Bigotes this year , my did the para-glider have on a para-shoes? if not when he landed he might of needed a para-medical for he could get para -lysed if he landed wrong...he didn't be careful who you give your cat to,,,they eat them in the villages from what i alleygata no one hijacked your forum, do you forget what you wrote in your opening try looking at the 17th paragraph. i, in particular, would not have responded without you labeling me as a power-elite american out to destroy the culture/serenity of the area. please tell me how one would do so, the whole destroy the culture bit? is it some special herb or voodoo spell or maybe a special dance one does whilst the coyotes howl. look, i have no ill feelings towards you but consider that my very first post on this site was to gather info on a condo development only to have 2-3 "transplants" label me as idiotic or foolish for even considering. Another time i simply commented that i thought it "terrific" (sigh) i figured someone would make a comment like that. Um, seriously. I'd like to take my cat north, but it'd be quite an ordeal for him, i think. I've checked with both Mexicana and Continental, and apparently the small regional jets that service HUX, PXM, or OAX will not take live animals as cargo. He's a big cat and wouldn't be very comfortable crammed into a small box under the seat. I think the only way I can fly him back to Vancouver is to put him in a decent-sized pet container and get a ride up to Mexico City (12-14 hours), check in (3 hours) It was 70 when I started my morning patrol at 0630, a cool mountain breeze making it feel even cooler. It's clear but hazy here, the sunset was obscured by the sea mist last evening. Doubt that I'll get to see any green flash sunsets while I'm here, although I do like to be surprised by life so who knows. I had breakfast at Mangos, down on Zicatela, my favorite breakfast hangout. The organic coffee was wonderful as was the omlete vegetariano. two dozen surfers are out getting pretty good rides on waves as high as 8 feet or so. I watched from the lifeguard stand and saw some really nice rides, both on boards and boogie boards. I had the desire to break out my boogie and give it a try. Probably not today however I, for one, am glad to see the Jarhead is back on patrol in Puerto. Keep the posts coming so we can live vicariously through you while we are working at the As I said Doc, I'm happy to discuss volatile issues in private messages, but not in the public forums. I agree that I should have better explained what I meant in paragraph 17. What got me going was your viral attack on Sparks' point of view and bashing Barra. It seems many US doctors are (or come across as) explosive when someone has a view different from theirs and seldom just let things go without setting people straight. Large corporations expanding in Mexico is a double-edged sword and I, personally, do not want to see the same thing happen in Mexico that has infected the US. Mexico is about family, culture, and friendships, large corporations are solely about money. I apologize for directing my frustration towards you. You seemed to fit the type of person that Get your mangos while you can jarhead, after the first rain they ALL fill with worms and are no longer pleasant to consume.It may be too late already. Parota trees are rumored by mexicans to have demons under them at night. They can be creepy in the dark, but ghosts n demons? Hey, add a few owls, and you got Well the season is gone and usually everyone has gone back to the North..If you live around the area or are coming on vacation and want to take Spanish Lessons in an easy and fun way . I use to have a different cell but it got stolen so you can surely get in touch with me in this I know it was a kite parachute, and in the USA we call them both, Thank you, from my view he looked too low, and that he was almost going to hit the trees, When I caught the bus to work this morning, I noticed several Army heavily-armed soldiers standing outside the OCC bus station. I thought this was unusual, because while there is a local Navy base, you don't see much military presence in the town itself. It turns out to be quite a story. Here's an article in Spanish from a national newspaper: < http://www.eluniversal.com.mx/notas/423869.html > The article says that Tuesday night the police had a routine drug checkpoint and at about 4 AM stopped a local mechanic to check over his vehicle. Apparently three SUVs and a motorcycle raced up suddenly to the checkpoint. If I understand the article correctly, one truck and the motorcycle turned around and How do you go from: "A man was flying a hangglider ... and almost crashed" to:

			So, let me get this straight when the "doctor" responds to another's point and the "doctors" point of view differs then the "doctor" is virally attacking. Hmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmm, interesting. By the way which corporations do all this nasty infecting are they the ones that perhaps built the airplane or bought the airplane that flew you down to Barra? Perhaps the automobile corporation that built the car that transports you to Barra from the airport? 4644	12 Flick	Re: serapes	Just a quick report from the Lake Chapala area of Mexico. May 10 is Mother's Day in Mexico, not the second Sunday in May. Our neighbor across the street, who used to work for us, has recently opened a flower business. We took her to Guadalajara and showed her where the main flower market is located and she is a fast learner! At 9:30 there is a line of about 20 people in front of her house waiting to buy flowers. At least in our area, this is by far the biggest holiday of the year. Christmas Eve is second but in our six years here, nothing else compares. Her son brought back a full load of flowers this morning in the back of his full-size pickup truck. They will never last until morning! Around midnight or Svignale, I'm sorry that you had a disappointing dinner at Sambuca Restaurant in Barra. Perhaps it was a bad night for the kitchen. My family and I (from Portland, OR) have had 3 luxurious dinners at the Sambuca restaurant, and have simply been impressed by their quality and attention to food preparation that is above and beyond to those in the states. There are restaurants in Barra, including Sambuca, that are equal to those in the Pacific Northwest (where we are from). I haven't bused very often in the last 5 or 7 years so I'm guessing the current prices, but I know it is cheap. Also if you qualify & go through the red tape to get an FM3, (permission as a full time resident) you can bring your Canadian or US car with you and leave it in MX for 5 years. If there is/are any abbarotes (small Mexican store) in Tenecatita I have not seen one and if I am not mistaken the same would be for Cuastecomate as well. 				Welcome to Paradise? This is not the only shoot out or extremely violent crime that has occurred in Huatulco recently, it's one of several I'm aware of in the past six months. Unfortunately Huatulco is rapidly becoming a haven for drug gangs. It appears Huatulco is a strategic and very lucrative area for drug smuggling and the drug gangs are now fighting, and killing, for control of this area. Huatulco is definitely losing some of its charm and even though the local authorities try to sweep events like this under the rug the word is quickly spreading and people Snickers: Probably best to make this post on the Mazunte board, not many people in Huatulco know the local scene in Mazunte.

				Hazy and sultry here on zicatela this saturday morning. It was 76 with no mountain breeze at 0530, the patrol did not start until 0630 as it was dark and I do not have my night vision gear on this trip. Visibility is no more than a mile due to all of this smoke. About a dozen surfers are spread out from main break to cafecito but the waves are only fair. I did see one get a great tube ride that just went on and on but mostly the rides are few and far between. I noticed a few guys at the point last night and a few this morning but still it seems slow for a saturday morning. I had the vaginataranno omlete this morning at my usual table on the sidewalk at Mangos. It's hard to beat good food, great service and a view The beauty of any of those people rumored is that if it is indeed true they will be there messing up the peace and calm of the area about 10 days a year, if that.

4687	12	Andy in Arkansas	Re: The Big House	The rest of the 40's are above the restaurant as Jim says but #40 itself is in the same building as 33 and 38....north of the pool...right again Jim. 33 faces the pool from the second floor. Right near the stairway I think? 40 is at the very top around back of the same building. It has a small private balcony off the bedroom that looks over at Jim's building and down both streets. Although blocked by a few trees it has a sunset view. The stretch of balcony that leads to the door has room to sneak a couple of chairs too. I can't recall if you walk past 38 to get to 40 or not....could be on the ground floor for all I know, but it's in the same building somewhere....probably facing the pool? That's how messed up the That's an excellent one Andy. "I hear it is Paris Hilton's new drug rehab center that she will run as soon as she gets out of the slammer."	79

Mackerel, are related to tuna and albacore too I bet, though the meat is a world apart. This list of Mackerel info below, clued me in to some valuable advice on the mackerel. When I was a lad, working on the Lenbrook or Speed Twin commercial fishing boats out of Malibu pier, we would be stoked to catch a Bonita, but would just give the Mackerals to the bums on the pier. There was a distinct difference between the two, in their fight, and taste. Neither was a specialty though. But as I have Call the IFOPE Emergency response Number 044 954 540 3816. Once you get to the top, the view of the bay is gorgeous. A view of the bay is the bottom picture on the Cinco Playas description on Nan's 5-8 hour bike tours. The Colonial Sierra to Sea ride is one of my favorites. You can view pictures of the ride taken by Lisa Parson, which is on the bottom of the description. I am appalled at the actions of those who are committing these terrible crimes. It saddens me deeply. I realize that crime and violence happen all over the world, and yes, even in Canada. But these crimes are happening at some of the major resort area's that Mexico has to offer. That is a scary situation. I have only witnessd a very disrespectful treatment toward americans by a few trouble makers. Just yesterday a drunk thought it was a funny idea to harrass an old man with a chronic heart disorder. The old guy split the scene as his heart raced into the heart attack range, he's lucky the harassment didn't kill him. I saw his 168 bpm cardio rythem personally at the dr.s office. The sea surface temperature around central, western and southern Japan has climbed by 0.7 to 1.6 degrees Celsius in the last century, far higher than the world average of a 0.5 degree Celsius increase, a survey conducted by the agency showed. The findings were based on data collected by research and commercial vessels that started in the late 19th century. 				Rapid rise in global warming is forecast Lewis Smith, Environment Reporter The oceans are losing the capacity to soak up rising man-made carbon emissions, which is increasing the rate of global warming by up to 30 per cent, scientists said yesterday. Researchers have found that the Southern Ocean is absorbing an ever-decreasing proportion of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere. The excess carbon, which cannot be absorbed by the oceans, will remain in the atmosphere and accelerate global warming, they said. The reduced ability to absorb carbon is thought to be a result of high winds acting on ocean currents bringing deeper waters that already contain high levels of carbon to the surface. The higher

Oakland is scarier any day of the week. I remember a big black guy who pulled up next to me once in Oakland, he had a huge gold Cadillac emblem as a ring on his wheel hand. Dude looked over and smiled, a mouth full of gold teeth shone brightly. Then he proceeded to do a standing burnout with his ride, while we all anxiously waited for the red light to turn green. He smoked the intersection and peeled off, my Honda Accord was no match, though we tried our best to boogie on down the road too. That was a shroom trip to remember, If the effluent from this "sewage treatment plant" is dumped into the ocean, there goes the beach, Puerto's main asset. Since Zicatela has very little (like no) continental shelf, that means the outfall pipe can only extend to the edge of the marine canyon that gives Puerto its famous surf break. (California, by comparison, has a 60-mile continental shelf. Puerto has none -- there is a deep spot just below the lighthouse that registers 1,200 feet.) Those swells are seperated by different distances too, depending on the size and the distance they have travelled. You measure that seperation by interval seconds. Ideal swells are very distanced or have a large interval, like 20 seconds. If someone tells me the interval is 20 seconds I already know from that info that the swell will be a monster, 10-15 foot backs! Which depending on what beach it arrives at will do different things. For example, big swells arriving at zica from the south go through a few interesting hydro dynamics such as surging up an underwater canyon, toward a shallow (Exactly, a short interval (14-16 seconds or less) makes for choppy bumpy guttless waves, but lots of them. Any places in the old Tropical Storm Barbara Weakens in Mexico MEXICO CITY (AP) - Tropical Storm Barbara weakened off the southwestern Pacific coast of Mexico on Thursday and forecasters said the storm was unlikely to become a hurricane. Barbara's winds were clocked at 40 mph, down from 54 mph late Wednesday, and it was inching along about 155 miles south-southwest of the coastal town of Puerto Angel, Mexico's National Meteorological Service reported. The U.S. National Hurricane Center in Miami said the storm could still dump heavy rain and cause dangerous flooding along the Mexican and Guatemalan coasts by Saturday, but was unlikely to become a hurricane. The first tropical storm of the eastern Pacific's 2007 season, Alvin faded at sea Thursday. Only twice before Elite are not quite as luxurious as ETN but they are pretty nice. 				You are such a hypocrite, Eric. Who do you think you are, Bebe Rebozo? Do you really think you have some currency with these people? If you really believed the crap you spew in here, you'd return to the country you claim to cherish, & work out your legal problems. Instead you hide out like a coward singing praises in hopes that your platitudes will set you in better stead with the very people who hold you in contempt. You are the poster boy for the ignorance that allows these clowns to remain in power. You have absolutely nothing in common with people like Bush born with a silver spoon in his mouth. It is just laughable that you are so easily duped into believing he & his cronies have your But of course it's a CLASS "strip joint", with only the most beautiful, drug & disese free entertainers, fully endorsed by Eric. I have never EVER claimed to hate the US. But good try to deflect from the true subject, Eric. And as far as not having the balls etc, I lived in Mazatlan long before you were ripping apart the Barrio. I've also lived in Australia & have been around the world twice now having visited over 70 countries. So just exactly what the hell are you talking about? I will be happy when predominately honest, moral & idealistic people of either party are in control of government again instead of these self absorbed crooks & liars you identify so much with for obvious reasons. I will be happy when we balance the budget again like we are forced to do as individuals, & Clinton did before leaving office. 				During a catastrophe, everyone blames the president if things aren't organized and correctly, promptly dealt with. So, since he gets the blame for every one elses miscommunications or lack of honesty ect. in dealing with emergency situations, it might just make sense that DURING a CATASTROPHE, and only then, the president have the final word and absolute control on the handling of said catastrophe. Why not, then at least if he's blamed for screwing up,there's no one else to point at. You have to pay tax on whatever you make down here, that's the 'non liers' route. And from what This is the answer I got on the other board concerning building permits and plans. We already have a builder (we hope) but will need some decent plans. A good set of plans will be easier for the builder to follow and avoid confusion down the road. ----- Yes you are supposed to have a set of plans. The days of a sketch (un croquis) on a scrap of paper are fast disappearing. They don't necessarily have to be done by an architect but the plans must include details of the foundation and drainage, the sewer system, structural details such as support columns etc. Also a cut of the facade and information on the owner, lot location and lot sq. area, type of construction and You my try going to talk to a notario publico, in Puerto escondido or Huatulco, they are the ones that will draw a lease for you or advise you on how to buy this	18

Court tells FCC to go fk itself... for now: "Court Rebuffs F.C.C. on Fines for Indecency" By STEPHEN LABATON nyt WASHINGTON, June 4 — If President Bush and Vice President Cheney can blurt out vulgar language, then the government cannot punish broadcast television stations for broadcasting the same words in similarly fleeting contexts. That, in essence, was the decision on Monday, when a federal appeals panel struck down the government policy that allows stations and networks to be fined if they broadcast shows containing obscene language. Although the case was primarily concerned with what is known as "fleeting expletives," or blurted obscenities, on television, both network executives and top officials at the No cussing on t.v. There is no way to control it, when it jumps out on a live broadcast like the MTV awards the other night referring to Paris Hiltons oral video. That was way out of line, there are children watching and when they see these vulgar comedians they lose their innocence and the world just gets uglier all the quicker for them. The president being "caught" on tape in a private conversation is very different than a cussword being used on live t.v. or in a televised program. My teeth hurt for two months after. I went to a local dentist of good reputation (Dr. Wiseman in Silverton B.C.) to see what was up. He was not impressed with the workmanship saying that Canadian standards and training are a lot higher than in Mexico. Three of the fillings had fallen out and had to be redone, he almost had to do a root-canal on one because it was so screwed up. 				To say this thread went a bit off topic is an understatement. Looks like hate dominates. Johnzap, Puerto Bill Heavy etc. have moved an attempt to bring a discussion on the serious situation in Darfur to the TOMZAP chat theme of I hate Bush, America and Christians more than I would like to see a discussion on anything else. Johnzap leaps the farthest in the discussion of Darfur. "A "Christian" evangelical calling for assassination of Hugo Chavez is no better than an "Islamic" cleric calling for a fatwah on Salmon Rushdie." I agree, Pat Robertson was way off the reservation in calling for the assassination of Hugo Chavez. Chavez is alive and very public, Rushdie is still in hiding. Mohammed I did grow up in a van after all, and haven't studied much I'll admit. But, just looking around on any given day, I can see how a hate factor makes considerable impact on certain folks. It's easy to find aggressive followers when you preach hate. Any rational mind can understand that most Taliban, Al Queda, or extremist Islamic fighters are just regular poor guys who have been taught to hate and conquer an 'opposition'. Though, the opposition could be their friend, and help them live better, even moreso than their leaders to whom they waste their lives dying for. Now to the part about Puerto. It was good to see the pictures of Brad's new digs out at Jardin Real, I had forgotten the swim up bar. That pool should be lots of fun during my next Innkeeper - I know Pete personally, we've been to his house and have seen his setup. We own a house at Lake Chapala, where we have Starchoice for our tenant and have used a satellite dealer there for the setup and installation. Very expensive. He looked, said "ya", you got an eye infection. So he prescribed me some eye wash solution, and some drops. My cornea fogged up a day later, the following day even more. So, I went to a real opthamologist, I had a corneal ulcer. I got the right meds now, (I googled the hell out of them), but I lost my sight in my right eye. It's all smoke covered and it ain't coming back anytime soon. My fault, I should of not been so lax about this eye infection. I should of not went to the eye glass guy. 				I can speak about both Dr. Shelena (up from bus depot) AND Dr. Pimienta Woo's work. About 5 years ago, I went to Dr Woo for a crown. When he was putting in the permanent one, he cracked and broke it, so I had to wait another week or so for another permanent one to come. He put that in, and right away, I noticed a problem in that it collected large chunks of food (meat etc.) on one side. I went back after about a week to talk to him about it, and he looked at it and told me it was fine, and I just needed to floss after every meal. SAY WHAT???? He would not do a thing about it. 				When in Huatulco, I have never felt threatened, but here in Puerto, more than once. It's a very different policing, Huatulco has no drunks on the street who beg for beer, Puerto is full of them. I've never visited a more relaxed town in Mexico. Huatulco is something special, the illegal buisness is really all around Huatulco in smaller communities, and doesn't thrive IN Huatulco. Why do you think the cops were just shot there? Because they were doing their job most likely, and Is this "oaxaca's biggest land fraud"? Huatulco's presidente municipal appears to have gone into el beesne for himself, secretly selling a vast tract of public land to private developers, that was intended for low income housing. Some 450 thousand m2 are at stake. Developers bought at 160/m2 and now get 800/m2 on the resale. Wonder if the buyer's title is valid in Sector H-3 ? Some of you may know just where this property is located... Sony did not license their format to anyone in the early days of video taping. When they finally did it was too late and the world had passed them by. Macintosh/Apple did the same thing, though about 15 years ago they decided to license their format to be manufactured by others and then after 2 years they cancelled these licenses. Having a MAC means not having as much choice in machines and internal parts. Having a MAC means having to pay high prices for these machines since there is no competition. Having a MAC means your choice of monitors etc. and other peripherals is quite limited, but of course in some of them it is a one piece machine with no means of upgrading anything. you left out having a pc gives you access to all the viruses available in the world... 				Researchers: Antarctica Ice Sheet Stable Jun 27, 1:56 AM (ET) By RAY LILLEY WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) - An ice sheet in Antarctica that is the world's largest - with enough water to raise global sea levels by 200 feet - is relatively stable and poses no immediate threat, according to new research. While studies of the Greenland and West Antarctic ice sheets show they are both at risk from global warming, the East Antarctic ice sheet will "need quite a bit of warming" to be affected, Andrew Mackintosh, a senior lecturer at Victoria University, said Wednesday. The air over the East Antarctic ice sheet, an ice mass more than 1,875 miles across and up to 2.5 miles thick centered on the South Pole, will Humping my personal reality is a victimless crime. However I feel a lot of posts made on this forum are not worth responding too. I'm a young male living Huatulco for some time now. I don't feel threatened in any way shape of form from the shootings or should any tourist. I feel the Mexican government is making progress on it's war against drugs. It's going be along process in general & unfortunately the will be a lot more blood shed until the government can get on top of it all. If the wasn't a foreign demand for drugs, maybe México wouldn't have the problem that it has. I not a person who is going to stop enjoying life & living life. The writer resides in Oaxaca and describes the new developments from a pro-APPO perspective: This Week for Education in Oaxaca ...By Nancy Davies / Narco News /Thu Jun 28th, 2007 Here's a note for comic relief: Section 59 of the teachers union has established a plantón in front of Government House in Santa María Coyotepec to demand a dialogue with the governor, Ulises Ruiz. They want URO to attend to several of their educational demands. These demands are a direct result of taking over schools and classrooms without the normal administrative support system. You may recall that Section Here it makes the water a dirty reddish brown colour and it smells bad. It is normal to have red tide each year in April or May, whenever the warm current comes back and the water warms up. We had it in the Barra to Tenacatita area around May 16th this year. I remember the date because I had a fishing charter out during the red tide that brought in Sailfish and Marlin - they went out beyond the red tide zone. It affected the water about 10 miles out to sea and it seemed Wayne, using internet "handles" or "identities" is not unique to this forum. People feel more comfortable not identifying themselves and become more open when they hide behind an anonymous name. And frankly (no pun intended), I like the more open atmosphere when people let go of their inhibitions and say what they really feel. People who use or frequent forums feel that they get to know the other people on the forum and it becomes a community, so to speak. It is just a phenomenon of the forum atmosphere. Because people begin to think of the other posters on forums as their "family of friends" or acquaintances or enemies (in some cases) they tend to start talking/writing about more than the forum was Mysterious Clouds Creeping Out of the Arctic By Dave Mosher, LiveScience Staff Writer posted: 28 June 2007 05:38 pm ET A new NASA satellite has recorded the first detailed images from space of a mysterious type of cloud called "night-shining" or "noctilucent." The clouds are on the move, brightening and creeping out of polar regions, and researchers don't know why. "It is clear that these clouds are changing, a sign that a part of our atmosphere is changing and we do not understand how, why or what it means," said atmospheric scientists James Russell III of Hampton University in Hampton, Virginia. "These observations suggest a connection with global change in the lower atmosphere and could represent an early warning that our Earth environment is being	19

				It's time once again that I update my "airline information web page" and I found the post below on the La Manzanilla forum. If anyone has heard anything about these new scheduled flights from Canada please post here or email me directly at nan@seatosierra.com and I will include the information on my page. I tried the WestJet site for information but can't find anything about flights to any part of Mexico on their Vacations part of the site and the regular booking site won't load on my machine. Good news for Canadians Posted by Jim on June 23, 2007, 6:13 pm 24.69.32.52 WestJet Airlines Ltd. has been given clearance by Ottawa

				Dude what are you guys talking about? I haven't read the blog, I just got back from the best week of our year so far, surfing barra with the coolest bunch of guys I have talked too in a long time. They gave my son a wristband, so he could surf, and he got some cool barrels. I video'd the whole dang week, it was great! The guy in charge was a real cool guy, invited us to free everything, food, drinks, shirts, n stuff. I bet the local town was just trying to get some folks out of the water who didn't listen when they said CLEAR THE WATER!! They mean what they say, and i'm sure they wanted to kinda give the pro's a chance to hold there event. The goodwill tour. The rock thrower, maybe he's thrown rocks at so many things, he knew he wasn't gonna hurt anyone? I doubt that though. I mean his aim can't be so good to know he won't hurt one of these girls. I ignored him, and he was gone. The rest of the guys were cool though, it was the towns henchmen who were obviously unexperienced in dealing with the situation. The surfers just wanted a private beach to practice two days, and hold two contests, which they did. The locals were in the first one, the top four locals were placed 2 to a team,	335

				Probably the EPR was NOT responsible. So who was? WASHINGTON — When saboteurs blew up several natural gas pipelines in central Mexico this month, temporarily shutting down production for U.S. automakers and other important manufacturers, a small and shadowy Marxist guerrilla group called the Popular Revolutionary Army reportedly claimed responsibility. Four explosions in the Bajío, a central region that's both the stronghold of the ruling conservative National Action Party and a big manufacturing zone, disrupted the flow of natural gas between Mexico City and Guadalajara, the country's two biggest cities, and paralyzed pipelines in Veracruz and Guanajuato states. Since it is relatively accessible from DF (as compared to Oaxaca), it makes it even more of a shame that I haven't explored it yet. Shame on me! I have somewhat compensated by eating tons of mariscos/pescado a la veracruzana and love the coffee from Veracruz. Does US transport authorities announced Friday that passengers would soon again be allowed to carry lighters on airplanes because the ban did not contribute to air safety. Additionally, a controversial ban on allowing women travelling without babies to bring breast milk on board will be lifted. From August 4, ordinary lighters will be permitted on aircraft although so-called "torch lighters" remain banned, the Transportation Security Administration announced. "Lighters no longer pose a significant threat," the TSA announced, noting that some 22,000 lighters are surrendered to security screeners every day. 6453	5	Puerto Bill	Re: FM3 and Other Documents	With the thread about the new immigration person at the immigration office I thought I would write a story about my experience last year. So for me it was that time of year to renew my FM3 visa. Last year I went through the ordeal by myself with the help of a couple unlucky friends. Last year was also the first time I applied for an FM3. Never had I been through such a nightmare in my entire life and I am not exaggerating in the least. I had to go back to the immigration office at least 12 times. At least that is the number that came up with when I quit counting. In the end the consensus was that they treated me badly. 6455	6	Gri-lango	Re: Some good news for a ch	I.H. is this the famous toll road, long ago promised, yet to be delivered? Is it The Olmec ruins in the area are very interesting primarily for their antiquity. If you go down to Tikal in Guatemala via Beliz, you'll see Mayan ruins in the form of pyramid shaped mountains reclaimed by the jungle everywhere. But the Olmec civilization which predates Christ by as much as 1500 years is one of the oldest in mesoamerica; & is credited with observing human sacrifices, blood letting, a form of writing & calendars, as well as ballgames, & beautiful artifacts of jade & magnetite- long before Aztecs & Mayans et al came upon the scene. If To be fair, I understand it takes around a year to get your green card processed in the US after you have submitted all the required paperwork, finger prints, etc. and it costs a lot more and the lines are a lot longer. Renewing an FM 3 is easier than getting your first one. They give you a form that lists all the requirements, including the cover letter. I just keep it in the computer and change the date. Also the application form is the same each year, so I just copied one that I had filled out (without signing or dating) and keeping using it. The photo shop gives you more photos than you need so those are good for 2 years too. In fact the only fresh document that I had to submit was my most recent electric bill. When I have walked through stubbly fields with the surveyors. A consortium is negotiating purchase of the right of way from various landholders along the I recieved an e-mail from one of my neighbors in Huatulco They tell me that Holiday Inn Has started a new Hotel in Huatulco the other day Villa Sol y Mar Every immigration case is individual, due to the very complex structure of the U.S. laws. The toughest category: If you are a Mexican citizen emigrating to the U.S. with your brother and sister, it can take up to 11 years to get a green card. Compared with what the U.S. does the process in Puerto is easy. What the U.S. does to immigrants should be against the law. The stories I have heard are Orwellian. It costs a fortune and the people who do the interviewing are evil. Going through the immigration process in Mexico is a lot easier than the U.S. but it didn't make me feel any better at the time. Also the documents requirements for a FM3 varies depending on what kind of FM3 you are applying for. The second time was much easier but I had expert help, the experience of doing it once before and the crew at the immigration office seemed to be nicer even though they were the same people. I think it was because of the person I Doc thats Lonely Planet material if we've ever heard it ! Thanks for the info ! And only edited 3 times. See ya in Nov. L.T.	680

			That's from personal experience Billy Bob. Haven't been to Lonely Planet in ages. When Tony Wheeler,his wife, & close friends started the Shoestring books in the early 70's, they were the back packer's bible. I used them all through Asia knowing that if Tony gave it thumbs up, as a kindred soul, I would probably like it too. But now Lonely Planet has become more of a "catalogue" guide book. They try to include every available option for lodging & eats,recommending hardly anything, while listing everything. And their prices are usually rack rates which make me wonder if they even stayed there, or just stopped by the front desk to pick up a rate sheet. There're so many people compiling the various books, you Take it L.T.

Last time I had a visa photo taken here the photographer made sure my ears weren't covered. At least they don't reject documents because your signature doesn't match. I've had a check of mine bounced because the signature was not identical to the one in the computer. I've even had a traveller's check refused - the two signatures on the check matched up but it wasn't It's nice to see another "story" from Puerto Bill. I remember his monte, driving, hardware stores(ferreterias), tequila, etc. posts from the past. I look forward to more in the future. I appreciate his subtle humor, interlaced with some facts. Yes, if you apply for an Alaska Airlines card.....in Canada it's Master Card not Visa, you get a $50 buddy pass every year.....plus you build up points. It really is the best air miles card that I have found. For 30,000 points you get a free ticket to Mexico as well and you get 20,000 miles just for signing up for the card. There is a fee but even with that it is great savings if you are flying to Mexico every year. Of course you always have to deal with the LA thing if you fly Alaska but the fare cannot be beat. If you book right now it is even less out of Me again....I just checked the website....on alaskaair.com the application is posted on the right hand side of the page right in the middle.....just click on this there you go again.....WRONG! 				Carmen, it is you who said "Not going to happen"? From the website you linked to it says it IS going to happen. The site administrator was a bit rude with his appraisal of Puerto Escondido though. "Puerto Escondido is to have it's own road from Oaxaca City for some bizarre(sic) reason only know(sic) to Oaxaca City government officials. Why a second rate resort like Puerto which is good for about 2 days max gets this kind of attention I don't know." I would bet Puerto Escondido receives many more visitors than Huatulco and has many more hotel rooms. Commerce in Puerto Escondido is probably more than double that of Huatulco. 				Study: Nevada Has Big Global Warming Temperature Gains RENO, Nev. (AP) - Nevada is among the states with the most dramatic increase in average temperatures the last 30 years, according to a new study that examines the impact of global warming across the country. The average temperature in Reno from June through August last year was 75.6 degrees, almost 7 degrees above the 30-year average, the U.S. Public Interest Research Group reported. The gap was the biggest measured nationally. Las Vegas' average temperature last summer was 3.6 degrees above the 30-year average from 1971-2000, while Elko's was 4 degrees above normal and Ely's was 2.1 degrees hotter, the report said. "The scientific evidence of global warming is incontrovertible, and Nevada Editorial from a paranoid canadian about Hemispheric government plans: "Canadians in the Dark About SPP Union with the USA and Mexico" By Kevin Parkinson/Monday, July 23, 2007 The purpose of the Canada-USA-Mexico meeting in August, at Montebello, Quebec, is to ratify the Security and Prosperity Partnership of North America In less than a month's time, on August 20, the most powerful president in the world will be arriving in Montebello, Quebec, for a two-day conference. President George W. Bush will be meeting with Stephen Harper and their Mexican counterpart, Felipe Calderon. So far, the silence from the Canadian and American media has been deafening. Citing current and former public health officials, the newspaper said the report described the link between poverty and poor health and urged the US government to help The airport is already on the road to the coast. Coming out of the airport, it's right for Oaxaca, left for the coast. After 20 or 30 km (if I recall) the road splits, giving you the choice of 2 roads: to Puerto Escondido or to Pochutla. As to which one to take, I guess you should ask at the airport, as rain damage can occur anytime. Assuming both roads are OK, I personally like the Pochutla road. It's generally in better shape and the views are much better. The section along the ridges up in the pine trees with views off to both sides is really spectacular. Pochutla is on the coast road, so from there, it's an easy 70 km to Puerto on a flat straight road. 				The airport is already on the road to the coast. When you leave the airport, turning right takes you to Oaxaca, turning left takes you to the ocean, about 250 twisting km away. After 20 or 30 km, if I recall, the road splits, offering you 2 routes to the coast: direct to Puerto Escondido or to Pochutla. The Pochutla road is generally the better one and certainly has, in my opinion, better views. You will have to check when at the airport to see about road conditions, as there is no way to predict in advance if there has been damage from the rains. You will probably be on the road no sooner than 1 PM, so it will be impossible to reach Puerto before nightfall. If you take the Pochutla road, there is lodging at the most

				First, I want to thank everyone for being so helpful and including such great detail. Awesome! But, I have to do the crossing at Tijuana. The Mr. can't cross the border yet and I'm using a specific importation agency to legalize the truck - because past family experience with that company has been excellent, and I'd rather not risk trying a new company or doing it myself at another crossing (The joys of being la guera). My stepdad has suggested TJ to Guadalajara to DF to Oaxaca... anyone been that way? If it's that much faster to go through Veracruz, I would consider it, but still have to cross in TJ... is it still worth it to do it that way? While I like the idea of having nice hotels and internet and such, the reality I've only ever found pickles in Huatulco. One 14oz. can in the whole store! With tuna flavor already added, too. Thank god I only wanted them for tuna salad. In the past, when someone's driving we have sent a stockpile with them to have around. As far as canning jars, I have seen pint size old-style with the glass lid and rubber seal at Ahorrara, but it's hit and miss whether they'll ever have them again. Good news is, you don't have to can the pickles! If you can keep them reffridgerated, you can just pickle them in a crock, jar, juice pitcher... whatever you got, just keep it covered and cold! SCHMID AP Science Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - The number of tropical storms developing annually in the Atlantic Ocean more than doubled over the past century, with the increase taking place in two jumps, researchers say. The increases coincided with rising sea surface temperature, largely the byproduct of human-induced climate warming, researchers Greg J. Holland and Peter J. Webster concluded. 				Here in Ajijic the best I have been able to get, on channel 299, is 47. However, it generally seems to drop down and float around 37. I have a fella here who has re-aimed it three times. Sometimes it drops as low as 22. The only way to get a truly strong signal is to get an even bigger dish, but I don't believe we can get the Star Choice dual-sat reception with Hi-Def unless that dish is oval. Note that channel 500 always gets the best reception, so never use that channel to aim. Also, IFC and Discovery Civilization generally are the weakest. Shanghai experienced its second hottest day on record on Sunday when the mercury touched 39.6 degrees Celsius (103.3 degrees Fahrenheit), with similarly high temperatures expected this week, the Shanghai Daily said. Sunday's heat wave caused power and water consumption for the 17 million people of China's economic hub to hit all-time highs, which posed a "grave supply threat", according to the paper. 				Dengue Fever Rages Across Asia By MARGIE MASON AP Medical Writer HANOI, Vietnam (AP) - Dengue fever is raging across Asia, prompting the World Health Organization to warn that the region could face the worst outbreak of the mosquito-borne virus in nearly a decade. The disease, commonly called the 'bone breaker' illness because of the excruciating joint pain it causes, has flared everywhere from ultramodern Singapore to poor Vietnam. There are four different types of dengue, but none have a cure or vaccine. Cambodia is now one of the most worrisome spots, where the disease has attacked about 25,000 people and killed nearly 300 children this year. That's about three times more

(AP) - Deep enough to hold the combined water in all the other Great Lakes and with a surface area as large as South Carolina, Lake Superior's size has lent it an aura of invulnerability. But the mighty Superior is losing water and getting warmer, worrying those who live near its shores, scientists and companies that rely on the lake for business. The changes to the lake could be signs of climate change, although scientists aren't sure. Superior's level is at its lowest point in eight decades and will set a record this fall if, as expected, it dips three more inches. Meanwhile, the average water I can't really speak for La Manzanilla or Melaque because I don't live in either. I choose to live in Barra and have done so for the past nine years because it is a very pleasant place to live. Here we have something for everyone. For example you can go to the lagoon beach or the ocean beach -- or the Sands Hotel pool. We have four distinct neighbourhoods that are actually very different from one another so you can choose your lifestyle. We have a variety of bars and a good assortment of restaurants offering quite different fare including Mexican beach palapa, Mexican traditional, French, Italian, Seafood, Chinese, Fish and Chips, Hamburgers, Steak and even deli food. Barra is also quite pretty. In Barra centro THIS SUNDAY'S statewide elections will be a referendum on the crisis. APPO & the teachers sindicato will be monitoring voting sites for problems. 				"Aztec Leader's Tomb Found" Aug 3, by MARK STEVENSON MEXICO CITY (AP) - Mexican archaeologists using ground-penetrating radar have detected underground chambers they believe contain the remains of Emperor Ahuizotl, who ruled the Aztecs when Columbus landed in the New World. It would be the first tomb of an Aztec ruler ever found. The find could provide an extraordinary window into Aztec civilization at its apogee. Ahuizotl (ah-WEE-zoh-tuhl), an empire-builder who extended the Aztecs' reach as far as Guatemala, was the last emperor to complete his rule before the Spanish Conquest. Accounts written by Spanish priests suggest the area was used by the Aztecs to cremate and I just checked out the website and it seems to cost just about US$ 50.00 If I recall correctly it does not cost that much when I enter Mexico from Laredo. I get to migracion at about 6:45-7:00 am and I am on my way in 25 to 30 minutes. Hmm I must have missed something then RGM, all I could find was the fee of $29.70 USD at the crossing or $39.60USD at the consulate. I have read..i say read many threads that are from people in the u.k. as well as other parts of the world who use google and are "cookied" users that continuously get Mex google in other continents. People who have never traveled here..So if the google cookie actually works, then why is this unless the Luis Alfredo Estavillo, proprietor of Los Portales Grill and Onix Restaurant in La Crucecita, has an idea to help out the children of the San Felipe Lachillo community in Santiago Xanica. 				Rod & Deb, I have done comparison shopping with all them on the web, most of them all use the same price calculator and come up with the same prices. Found Sanborn the absolute most expensive, Lewis & Lewis second most expensive. L & L also do not write you up for 6 months for one year only. I would suggest you get a quote from San Xavier and you might be pleasantly surprised. I did it all by Yes, "San Xavier" is simply the best coverage for your buck...so stop shopping and send them your credit card info. After several years, we have yet to find a better company with a greater reputation. Unfortunately, we have not been able to find anyone that has had a "real life" claim with them....(to find out how they handled that claim). Otherwise, just dealing with the Acostas has always been I think you have the wrong Tomzap. I think you may want <http://www.tomzap.com/ph5/list.php?12> for Barra de Navidad/Melaque. Puerto Escondido would be a superior choice for a beach town I think but since you are driving from Guadalajara you are thinking about the Barra de Navidad I'm pretty sure Nova Air is a charter airline, and doesn't have regular scheduled service anywhere. I googled then last year when I saw one of their planes on the tarmac in Huatulco. Back then their website claimed to own only 3 planes. It seems like they have expanded, because their website now lists Puerto as a Charter destination as well as many places in Central and South America. Let's ask everyone out there if anyone has had a claim with this San Xavier. How about it?
