Their community, San Felipe Lachillo, is part of the Santiago Xanica Municipality. Within the community are over 200 school children who live in "extreme poverty" with little food or other needed supplies. How, how Luis Alfredo Estavillo Chavez, owner of Onix Restaurant in LaCrucecita, ever learned about their struggles and found them is beyond me because the village is miles inland, slightly northwest of Huatulco, and without roads or rivers to or from its location. Like too many I want to know what Frank was doing in the stairwell anyway. We always sat over in the corner & there was a good breeze. Maybe he was ponied up to the Just be careful with VOIP over a wireless connection. Ask someone who has it to use their Vonage and see if you like it. The reason to sell my truck,we move to california, i need a vehicule here, and dont want to leave that truck park in my house in puerto for a year. I You could go to the Hotel Sands in Bara, the pool is free and there is a poolside I was wondering if Mexican insurance bought in Canada via e-mail . Would this policy cover the motorhome on the trip down (through Canada & US) ? Also the 10 year permit on a motorhome , will that allow me to leave the motorhome in Jim, USD$2250 for a hotel room???? Did you mean USD$22.50? Elke Right before I moved to Barra I bought a new Verizon phone, then found out it doesn't work in Mexico on the no longer "Mexican Plan". I retained my California phone number and use CallWave software to call anywhere in the US for free. The people I've called said it sounded clearer than a cell phone, like I was next door. Plus the caller ID shows the CA number. If anyone wants to call me they call my CA cell phone number and I retrieve the call from my computer or it goes to an online voice mail. I like it because it's not necessary to call computer to computer and the person I call has no idea that I'm not on my cell phone in California. I signed up for Prodigy Wireless Broadband through Telemex and I've if anyone out there knows or has moved a 20 foot container van down to mexico from the u.s. via a commerical carrier i would like to hear from them, i would like to ship from seattle wa. to barra de navidad, i already have my fm3 got it mid 2007, and im flexible about where to start from, like maybe san diego etc., thanks for any info... p.s. if you have a price to ship please include with There's one in de Barrio and I also know a guy that restores and sells older bikes. I am doing the trip again in Jan. so will keep better records . Jim Thanks ... I got 3 bikes from a shop in Cihuatlan. He made me an offer I couldn't refuse. We did not buy it to rent it Try Tostado's for Aztec soup, Agave has lots of great choices and good sangria, Onix is a favourite, nice location, Terra Cotta has amazing ice cream - these are all in La Crucecita around the main square. In Santa Cruz try the little bakery and restaurant in the yellow building facing the marina, excellent pastries in the morning. Also in Santa Cruz try Hecho en Mexico across from Ocean Park condos for great tacos and cold beer. Cafe Vienna in Chahue is also very good These same half dozen or so restaurants plus a few more have been discussed in here ad nauseum. Do a search. Aside from the Beach Club, nothing much Don't do All-Inclusive. There's lots of great restaurants, but AI bland at the resorts doesn't do it. There are houses and condos for rent - many advertize on this website. Get out of the resort zone frequently; this is a VERY safe area. Rent a launch and have them drop you off at a beach all your own for a day. Or rent a house or room in Conejos, where the neighborhood beach is often vacant. Apparently they also eat cockroaches which down there are the size of frogs almost. I am on the side of gecko. They are shy, don't bite and are cute.	869

Why not try When you enter Mexico your Canadian insurance is no longer valid thats why you get Mexican insurance. Save a bill from that day till the day you re-enter the U.S. and you will be partially reimbursed from your Canadian insurance Have been putting my two vehicles 'on hold' with my insurance company for years. We just keep the 'comprehensive' portion active (inexpensive). The insurance company treats it as if you were storing your vehicle for the winter. My annual rates / payments reflect the reduced coverage, and it helps with the cost of our Mexican insurance. Proceedures may vary, depending on your insurance company, and where you live...we're in Ontario. I am planning a trip to Zipolite (Mazunte or Augustanillo) over Christmas and New Years for two weeks this year. I have some questions. I initially wanted to go to Zipolite as I heard it was a beautiful, very chill, hippie spot without any of the built up bs of the big resorts and tourist traps in Cancun, Puerto Vallarta, etc. A couple of people I have talked to said Zipolite was great, while a few others (and reports on forums) have said it is "sketchy", "commercial" and "dirty" which all go against what I am hoping for. Can anybody let me know what Zipolite is like during the holiday time period? I have been to other hippie beaches around the I was out walking this morning, and I passed a new location for Penny's Deli. She has a bold new sign and the place is much bigger than the one in the market. It is located on Carrillo Puerto in Melaque. It is one block west of the north, south main street. Looks like she will have table seating and the floor is For years, Zipolite has been plagued by periodic outbreaks of sometimes violent crime. This is why visitors are warned to be careful about their selection of accommodations, since this is where your valuables will be while you're in the water. I normally recommend La Chozza, Emmanuelle, and La Alchemista. Also cautioned against are solo walks late at night. 				Glad to see that Dennis is still selling the video. As to my report being "biased", I will again disagree with Dennis. The views aren't just "neat" they are kick ass shots that awe me every time I watch. Also Dennis, while we did in fact film one pass at 20 feet (pass number two, from the Santa Fe along zicatela with Bon Jovi blasting out "It's my life" before an astounding zoom climb at the point) the best pass was really 10 feet. Dennis stood between Wacko Jacko and me filming thru the windshield and my side window, as we zoomed along. When Jacko pulled up the Gs flattened Dennis and the camera into the floor. Watch that first pass closely, the water passing below my window looks like you can't see it and won't. Too far away.... Roberto

				Can you say BIG DUMMY? If you're in the area it's a must. It really is an amazing place with great music. I typically don't like most mexican music, but the two bands that play there are killer. We went there on a Tuesday last spring and had a blast. Good botanas just like downtown but mush better music. The singers in Angels de Fuego are beautiful... That doesn't hurt. Great music every day. It's on the highway between Colima & Comala. The band leader Jesus or 1 down 12,000,000 to go..keep up the good work ICE Does the space shuttle have a green plan? I wonder about those military tests too? Any green plan for war? So much wasted fuel, and major exhaust fumes, just to test all that war crap. Kinda ridiculous for me to buy a smart car, while the rest of the world just burns rocket at will. It's a gullible crowd that believes the global warming can be altered by a few caring humans. Those few are way outnumbered by muchos gas hogs. Every sports event has major traffic, no ones cancelling those events. I personally like drag racing, all auto racing for that matter, not too global conscious some might say. The space shuttle pokes holes right through that ionosphere were so worried about. But no cancelling the Thanks for the advice John, you may be correct in what you say about Toyota being a good 4x. But since I own a cj7 up in L.A. and used to offroad it as hard as a truck can be driven, I know what a jeep can accomplish. I had a few great experiances watching toyotas, nissans, fords, dodge, all fail miserably when it came to hillclimbs. Big steep dangerous hillclimbs are in my opinion dominated by jeeps with competent drivers. I saw the rest of the pack lack torque, or have too much power, or some got part way up, then rolled back down. My 6 cyl. Jeep and I were an unbeatable match, and jeep has won my money hands down.

				New Ecocides Sweep Mexico's Coasts Undergoing rapid development, Mexico's coastal zones-and its tourist beaches-face a deepening environmental crisis. Untreated wastewater, boat discharges, discarded plastic bottles and bags, and streams of chemicals transported by rivers increasingly degrade the nation's coastal waters. Massive resort developments, new roads, commercial fish farms, countless condominiums and ubiquitous shantytowns lacking connections to municipal sewerage systems are stripping hillsides of vegetation, threatening mangrove estuaries and contributing to the waste flow into the ocean. In a statement distributed on the Internet last month, R.C. Walker of the Puerto Vallarta Ecology Group, contended that the recent conversion of four city parks

I'm headed on my first (almost) trans-continental drive ever. From Oregon to Puerto, and I feel like I'm flying blind. Thanks again to those of you who offered suggestions and information for making the drive - we've decided to not make any set plans as far as route until I'm holding a Guia Roji map in my hands. I'll cross at Tijuana on Tuesday, I've got a import agency handling the paperwork to legalize my truck now, and everything is supposed to be good to go by then. The Mr. will arrive by plane (from Puerto) to Tijuana Tuesday morning to help with the driving and such, so We just drove down from Portland, arrived in Puerto on Tuesday. The route we chose was Tucson-San Carlos (Guayumas)-Mazatlan-Guadalajara-Cocoyoc (Cuernavaca)-Puerto (via Acalpulco). We drove the Cuota or toll roads and they were very fast with very little traffic but expensive. We didn't add up the receipts but it was $200 +/- . It took 5 days of driving in Mexico, we could have easily done it in 4. Driving in Guadalajara and Mexico City was not my idea of a good time but we did just fine once we picked up a detailed city map. We decided to bypass Acapulco and turned off Hwy 95D outside of Tierra Ghiorada to cut over to Hwy 200. The route was a narrow and very slow winding 2 lane road through What 'point', wayne merely offers his own lucky experience; and i was glad to read it. good mexicans are still at work behind the stereotype. There is also the belief that a man can become 'mas potente' by eating those eggs. This type of belief is often associated with consuming eggs (of any kind). The egg is a symbol of fertility and so, if you eat it, you will become more fertile. These days, most people realize this to be more of a myth than reality. However, eating the eggs continues due mostly to custom and personal preference. The eggs are not at all like chicken eggs, they have a soft shell and are round - quite resembling a ping-pong ball. Last year I paid $ 15.00 for Skype-out and that lets me call from Mexico to Canada, or Canada to Mexico for about 2 1/2 cents per minute. In addition to that there is also a small connection charge applied to a call. Other countries have different rates. You can NOT buy it once you are in Mexico, it must be purchased at home. This will let you call anywhere. They also have a plan where for about $ 35.00 you can make unlimited calls to anywhere in Canada and to the USA for a calendar year. Jan 1st to Dec 31st. 				Thats a funny one. We all have our moments don't we? In the overall, people are generally pretty dumb, or gullible, me oh so very included. Just watch the news, the E channel, the general life we apparently choose for ourselves. It's entertaining, just barely. None of it can be taken seriously though nowadays. Usually someone is getting rich from the news being beamed at you from every angle. You gasp, you buy, you laugh, cry, somewhere there is a profit being made. You've been used. Boo hoo. Everyones a politician, everyone has the answers to save the world, and yet, your wife may be cheating on you, your cars broke again, your neighbors won't keep it down and your jobs a bummer ect.

				Global Warming May Pose Threat to Heart By MARIA CHENG AP Medical Writer VIENNA, Austria (AP) - Global warming may be melting glaciers and forcing polar bears onto land, but doctors warn it could also affect your heart. "If it really is a few degrees warmer in the next 50 years, we could definitely have more cardiovascular disease," said Dr. Karin Schenck-Gustafsson, of the department of cardiology at Sweden's Karolinska Institute. On the sidelines of the European Society of Cardiology's annual meeting in Vienna this week, some experts said the issue deserves more attention. It's well-known that people have more heart problems when it's hot. During the European heat wave in 2003, Hey Rice, good for you!!! Sounds like you have at least enough income to try and if it does'nt work, oh well. I like your attitude, and I have no idea whether or not you will succeed, I hope you do, but you know if you don't try, you can't fail, and what a great place to try. We will be down in early Dec. would be nice to She had mentioned she was leaving the Huatulco permanently, you say for the winter? How bout an update on her cat? Let's see leaving Mexico and heading Go for it! I would like to see a Subway sandwich, or a Marie Calenders, or a Dunkin Donuts with the whole selection including real jelly filled donuts. They have some non flavored red stuff the use down here. A cotton candy machine too, where you can make regular big cotton candies instead of the little ones Hey info, maybe your right after all.
7473	5	Farkem	Re: What Global Warming? 2	ricenbeans, We have several bars in town, which "cater to the locals and year-round residents as much, if not more, than the tourists". Two of them have a dart board and one has a pool table. I think you'll have to come up with something different to make waves, or even a ripple.... Starting and/or running (a succesful) business in Huatulco is very difficult in my experience. As for safety, I consider ...so did the surfers have meningitis??? Very unjust and horrific story... perhaps things would have been different if they'd been in the old van mentioned instead of riding with over $1'000'000pesos in gear and vehicles... It ain't right regardless and is sure to damage tourism and foreign investment. I don't think the perpetrators give a damn about either. Tensions are high as Humpty Dumpty He has moved back to Canada, took cat....	122

My kids were trippin, they loved those donuts. They want to go back to Huatulco just for the donuts. I think that place is the only one that really knows how to make them on the whole coast. Too bad they only have three types, none being jelly filled glazed or a bearclaw. A good selection with coffee and of course you'll have friends/clients daily. I Great map, one addition: the Oaxaca Lending Library, 519 Pino Suarez, one block south of Parque Paseo Juarez (El Llano), should be included. The library is a great resource to long time residents as well as Oaxaca visitors. Wish I could do something similar. I read a great quote just today that I thought I would share.... "When you put a date on your dream, it becomes a goal. Or a hit on a certain honest soul... At least it was up north and not down here. Down here the cops love us. As do the politicians. And even some bad guys too. T.J.'s a mess. It might have happened the way the surfers suggested, or maybe there is an insurance scam going on. Seems like an inordinate amount of expensive equipment to take on a 5 day junket (and two of the days will be taken up by driving). If the robbers/muggers/murderers were already in with the cops, then the whole second half of the story seems unlikely. . . unless there is more to the story, like a drug debt, a vendetta, etc. . .They say only truth is stranger than fiction, but if you analyze the story, there sure is a lot of strange behavior and paranoia. 			That reminds me of a story about the Mexican Navies first Mexican submarine. They took it out from Salina Cruz port and made it all the way to Huatulco. They arrived on the surface still and decided Huatulco was a good as spot as any to safely try for some depth. So the captain barked "Vamos abajo unos 10 metros!" and down they went ten meters. A small leak sprung out from the hatch ring, and the captain ordered the crew men to throw some tortillas on it. The tortillas plugged the leak good. So the captain barked out " Vamos abajo otros 10 metros!" And down they went to a total depth of 20 meters. Another leak sprung from a floor joint so the captain ordered some tortillas thrown on it. Such a loss could have profound effects on mammals dependent on the sea ice, such as polar bears, now being considered for threatened species status because of changes in habitat due to global warming. It could also threaten the catch of fishermen. In Those of you annoyed by certain list members may notice a new Tomzap feature: the "ignore messages from this sender." One click, and you forever

				Andy, as a real estate broker who is very skeptical of rapid growth in non-urban areas (such as Barra and the rural area where I live in NC), I understand what you are saying. There needs to be a balance between reasonable growth and unfettered development. I have no knowledge of the process for getting projects such as Playa Grande and Paradise of the Mermaids approved, so I can't comment on what oversight and control the local or state authorities exercise in these cases. I hope it is substantial. It appears to me most of the "action" in Barra is on the Playa de los Cocos and it appears there is plenty of room out

Real Estate markets are cyclical and function on supply and demand making a property worth exactly what someone is willing to pay for it at a specific point in time. This can hurt speculators who buy properties to flip if they enter the market at the wrong time, but it shouldn't impact greatly on buyers who buy properties for long term use especially if the property is well constructed, has some special quality and is not over financed. 				I believe the factory ground clearance on the NB and my Jetta would be about the same, just under 5". Some of the TOPES (Speedbumps) are higher than that. If you have low profile tires on your car, you have reduced that to less. First thing I would suggest to re-install your original wheels and tires if you still have them. Next look up this website < http://www.evolutionimport.com/Volkswagen_Skid_Plates_s/17.htm > out of BC. I would suggest to buy the aluminium skidplate from them for your car, the plastic one sucks, a friend had his oil pan damaged on his Jetta and it cost him over $ 600.00, he was lucky and did not damage his engine. 7669	5	doodah	Re: Driving from Acapulco to	Something else I should have added. Whenever the choice is given to take the toll road (CUOTA) or the free road (Libre) my suggestion is to take the toll road. It may cost you some money, but the driving is easier and faster, since you do not have to go through every little village or town. The speed limits on the cuotas is usually 110 Km/h, but if you go 140Km/h the Mexicans pass you like you are standing still. All the little towns and villages have topes (Speedbumps) of varying kinds. Also the speed limit is higher on the couta, there are shoulders on the road and the cuotas are usually fenced in lessening the chance of a cow, horse, donkey or other animal jumping out of the bushes in front of you. 				I drive the stretch at least twice a year. I have never been hassled or have had a bad experience. Well maybe I should say "or have had a horrible experience". "Bad experience" is relative whereas a "horrible experience" is a horrible experience. Night buses have been robbed though. Usually around Christmas or Easter but not limited to that I don't think. There is enough traffic during the day that there is no real reason to worry. That is not to say it can't happen but I'm not sure I have ever heard of it happening during the daytime and I would not worry about it.... During the daytime. 				No, a few smart remarks from people who may spend a few weeks here don't bother me in the least. Who this OPOL person is I don't know, possible new here, definately reaching and a bit frustrated. Just another example of how when people want to help ... they find the gringo community has not formed any kind of organization to assist. Not just disasters but lots of normal, day to day problems or even educating ourselves about life behind the scenes. (more on that another day) I agree that we must be satisfying ourselves with these seasonal fund raisers that don't represent/include the local gringo population or often times relate well to the needs of the locals (not democratically run). The Ancient Records Help Test Climate Change EINSIEDELN, Switzerland (AP) - A librarian at this 10th century monastery leads a visitor beneath the vaulted ceilings of the archive past the skulls of two former abbots. Just imagine the great officer Bill tearing around a corner at high speed (though the highway was not designed for that speed) and smashing into some old hunched over lady who survived 85 years down here. All she wanted was a soda from the other side of the street, and after eating dust from a group of hurried tourists looking for a poolside lounge, the old lady swaggered out into the street, the only street in her neighborhood, just to become the next contestant on "Name that white cross". Ever notice all those white crosses? You know, the ones that family members always visit and leave flowers on. Well, I was under the obviously false impression that users of the Forum were lately showing a little restraint on personal, direct attacks on individuals. Seems like folks could just go lean over their neighbors' fences and shout invectives rather than showing their bile and limited intellectual capacities to the rest of the people sharing this forum. Regarding the white roadside crosses: The number of those involving speeding gringos is a tiny percentage. The portion involving over-consumption of alcohol is HUGE. We could go into the Asian influence on the Native American genotype and how that affects the ability to metabolize alcohol, I have driven 200 from Guaymas to Puerto Escondido, so I didn't have to wait until I got to Acapulco to enjoy a beautiful two lane highway down the coast. 7955	12	Spoolmak	Re: New ATM in Barra, hotel c	Over the years I have personally dealt with the Instituto Nacional De Migracion (INM) regarding the yearly renewal of FM-3 or similar permits. I found the process has become increasingly more time consuming and tedious over the past few renewal periods. This year I took the advice of a friend and elected to turn this daunting task over to someone to represent me and assemble the renewal package as required by INM. I chose Helena Szustka, also known in local radio circles as Lucy Sonido, to perform this task. I am happy to report that her work was well done and graciously accepted by INM without any glitches. I also thought her charges for the time expended on my behalf were very Going to the ATM in Barra was like going to a Casino. Sometimes you get money. Often you don't. This second machine will greatly increase your odds. A welcome site indeed. The ATM's are still the best cambio I've found. The ones I have gone to charge me a 1% fee. My credit union charges nothing. Last week I averaged 11.22ps/$US. Not so good this week. I'm still a little peeved that tiendas that accept Visa debit cards nail you for an extra 1%. I'm certain it's the Hi Nan, a question for you, for those of us that are lucky enough to spend more than 30 days down there., where did they move the post office to, it looks like after going back and looking at the pics again, i see that the new atm is to the left of cop shop not to the right, so imagine the p.o. is still in same place.	41

			Sea Level Rise Could Flood Many Cities By SETH BORENSTEIN AP Science Writer Ultimately, rising seas will likely swamp the first American settlement in Jamestown, Va., as well as the Florida launch pad that sent the first American into orbit, many climate scientists are predicting. In about a century, some of the places that make America what it is may be slowly erased. Global warming - through a combination of melting glaciers, disappearing ice sheets and warmer waters expanding - is expected to cause oceans to rise by one meter, or about 39 inches. It will happen regardless of any future actions to curb greenhouse gases, several leading scientists say. And it will reshape the nation. Rising waters will lap at the foundations of old money Wall Street and the new money They have not moved the post office, it is still next to the Banamex ATM on the corner of the Delegation building next to the Jardin.

				Hola a todos: Leí aquí mismo en Tomzap algunos comentarios negativos sobre el minisuper 69 y sus propietarios. Yo quiero dar a conocer mi opinión particular al respecto: Creo que es muy fácil darnos cuenta de lo negativo antes de lo positivo y criticar, pero quiero que sepan que la Sra. Debbie, quien es la dueña del minisuper, es una persona por demás admirable y trabajadora. Basta ver su preocupación por los animales para darnos cuenta de esto. Así como nosotros los humanos tratamos a los animales, damos un reflejo positivo o negativo de nuestra calidad humana, de nuestra sociedad, de lo sensibles o insensibles que somos. Del lugar hacia donde llevamos al mundo... Si el servicio no es del todo de su agrado en el minisuper, antes de quejarnos o criticar, tomemos en cuenta I agree with sparks. Could you shed some light for us on what Hey, Nan, As a long-time sailor we can tell you that a prow is any front of any boat, pretty much. But if there is a platform of any kind projecting outward from the bow (or prow if you will) it is known as a bowsprit. Furthermore, there is often a cable attached to the front of the bowsprit that connects to the front of the bow near where it meets the water. That cable is often tensioned by a wood member projecting downward toward the water known interestingly as a dolphin striker for obvious reasons. This is primarily used on sailboats. I don't know much about what all that stuff is called on a stinkpot! We will be down earlier this year - was at the bus station wensday and no UNO they only go as far as salina cruz....I really like that line because the seats go flat for sleeping and only 25 possibly he can through in a few good phone numbers on that cell for some night time entertainment and also possibly the playboy channel on cable and are there any in huatulco?	475

				UN Chief Urges Immediate Climate Action UNITED NATIONS (AP) - U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon told an unprecedented summit on climate change Monday that "the time for doubt has passed" and a breakthrough is needed in global talks to sharply reduce emissions of global-warming gases. "The U.N. climate process is the appropriate forum for negotiating global action," Ban told assembled presidents and premiers, an indirect warning against what some see as a U.S. effort to open a separate negotiating track. The U.N. chief also addressed a chief U.S. objection to negotiated limits on greenhouse-gas emissions, that it will be too damaging to the American economy. "Inaction now will prove the costliest action of all in the long term," Ban said. From California

8118	12	sparks	Re: Offshore fishing in the are	Okay, I did some talking to the guides and they tell me that the Blue Marlin, Dorado and Sail Fish are always around, along with Pargo and Huachinango (two kinds of Snapper that people like to eat). The concensus is that the fishing for Blue Marlin is best November through May and for Sail it is best in January and February with Dorado fishing the best anytime from September through February. The striped Marlin are around from January through July but the best fishing for them is supposed to be in June and July - which means that most of the foreign tourists miss the best of this fishery. The Rooster Fish, Yellow Fin and Wahoo are the most seasonal of the game fish in the area. The time of the Thanks all for the input. I have done the charters from the cooperative before and enjoyed every minute of it. The last time out we had a couple of wives with us so the facilities aboard the "Sea Hawk" were a very welcome addition. Not all are shy but they just found it more comfortable being able to duck below rather than with a towel wrapped around them, also they were able to stretch out up Hello hcrogers At La Bocana beach A english gentlemen named Adam both rents boards and also gives lesson his place on the far left as you drive down to I'm glad to see that nobody told Farkem what I had to say about him!J I have used that route for years and tried a new route going North in Sept, 2 hurricanes hit there earlier and Dean was hitting when I was ready to leave, after I drove through in early June. I wasn't impressed when I drove it the last 3 times I hasn't been repaired since Stan in '06 it is a day and 1/2 longer than the route I took North. I also didn't have to go through DF only the TOPES from Acapulco to Puerto. In fact I made it to PDX in less than 4 days with 2 dogs and myself. I think it will be a long time before it is repaired driving down in June a long section of Autopista was closed for repairs do I think they finished them before Last year we had contact with Paco Barriente who did some spanish translation as of today we have not been able to contact him or get a reply to our "e" mails Keith, these are the email addresses that he left here last May. Hope one of them will work for you. pacobarriente@hotmail.com or The account is up to $325.00 USD, (almost $3,500.00 pesos) and the money will be taken to Dr. Ernesto tomorrow, Saturday. (AP) - Drought and mild temperatures have pushed Lake Superior's water level to its lowest point on record for this time of year, continuing a downward spiral across the Great Lakes. Preliminary data show Superior's average water level in September dipped 1.6 inches beneath the previous low for that month reached in 1926, Cynthia Sellinger, deputy director of NOAA's Great Lakes Environmental Research Laboratory, said Sunday. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which uses a different measuring technique, calculated the September level at 4 inches below the record, said Scott Thieme, chief of hydraulics and hydrology for the Detroit district office. There are short sections of autopista between Matamoros and Salina Cruz and they have been compromised slides around Pozo Rico and areas around Lauguna Verde, Cardel and Veracruz. The road from Tampico to Tuxpan then Veracruz is MALO it has not been repaired fully since Stan in '05 and 3 other hurricanes have worked it over since July this year. I hate driving that route when the roads are trashed all the semis with doble remulques and the Insane towers going to Central America it is unreal what these guys hook together and head out old school buses. ratty semi tractors with 2-3 trucks hooked together and these have smaller cars or pickups inside them. All three are of local Mexican folks, and children who live in the area. I have made 8X10 copies of them, and would like to give them to the people involved, (total strangers), this coming winter (uno regalo). Is this socially acceptable? I certainly don't want to embarrass anyone, or After various trips, various routes my preference is Laredo>Monterey>Saltillo etc. AutoPistas as much as possible right down the middle, bypass DF either east side continuing Puebla, Oaxaca or west side Toluca, Tasco, Iguala hooking back up with the Autopista Acapulco. the last 6 hrs are the most trying anyway Pelos says that he would not mind that at all or find if offensive, he thinks it might be a nice surprise for the people in the photos.	115

If you get there about 4:30 pm for the 5:00 pm show you also get complimentary food, hence the name "Botanero" as far as I know. Either one can be attended by couples and there really is nothing offensive unless you are an absolute total prude. Not that I have I agree. Warren has hung in there through thick and thin. Recently, he's gone to a glossy, color cover. Way to go, Warren. First thing I do when I hit Puerto, is pick up a copy. He outraised most of the same olds, same olds with $20 internet contributions. Google him to see if you agree with what he has to say. I know Frog will disagree 100%, but that could be the best endorsement Here's an idea. If you lucky beach bums in PE want to come to the city for shopping (and whatever), give me a holler. I have a centrally located home, patio/garden/ morning coffee/fridge space (no cooking please). 150 pesos pp/per night gets you a large, light, airy, clean room. PE is my favorite getaway. I If you don't use it, you may lose it. So it's a good idea to use your American credit cards from time to time in Mexico. I just tried to order something from Home Depot in the U.S. to be shipped to an address in the U.S. using a U.S. Visa card and the order was rejected. I guess they could tell that I initiated the order in Mexico and they figure the card was stolen. Home Depot's 800 number Thanks Nan, That's exactly what I wanted to hear. Should have notified the authorities before the thief. The fence is always secondary but the thief that lifted the gold jewelry is another matter. Its going to be another forum funny! 3000 pesos for a cd book, um prices continue There are not so many hotels or restaurants right in the vicinity of the main bus station but there are several hotels and lots of restaurants to be found around the bus stop at Carranza and Aguacate in the "Romantic Zone". The buses all stop at Carranza and Aguacate after leaving the main terminal so many people choose to spend the night there instead of out by the bus station or in the marina, the marina is pretty close but still a distance away from the terminal. Many of these hotels in the Romantic Zone are very affordable and clean. The Romantic Zone is nice to stay in because it is right by the beach and the malecon and the mercado by the rio cuale in the "old town" part of Vallarta. One There are many hotels in all price ranges on the south side of Vallarta. There also is a bus stop there for the bus to Melaque. You could stay at one of these hotels and walk or taxi to the bus stop. Check out Jr's Bulletin Board:

			Mayor Begs Residents To Conserve Water ATLANTA -- The commissioner of Atlanta's Department of Watershed Management made a plea for conservation today because of the severe drought that has forced restrictions on 61 counties in north Georgia. Robert J. Hunter called it a drought "of historic magnitude." He said everyone must come together to protect and conserve limited water resources. The storage for Atlanta's water supply is Lake Lanier, located north of the city. Hunter said it provides water for one-third of the residents of Georgia. 				"We have always known that heedless self-interest was bad morals," said F.D.R. "We know now that it is bad economics." These words apply perfectly to climate change. It's in the interest of most people (and especially their descendants) that somebody do something to reduce emissions of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases, but each individual would like that somebody to be somebody else. Leave it up to the free market, and in a few generations Florida will be underwater. Which brings us to the biggest reason the right hates Mr. Gore: in his case the smear campaign has failed. He's taken everything they could throw at him, and emerged more respected, and more credible, than ever. And it drives them crazy. And now that Mr. Bush has proved himself utterly the

I think it is correct that if you import a car and bring it with you into Mexico, your car can only stay as long as you do. So if you are on a tourist visa you must take it with you when you leave. If you are an FM3 you can keep the car in Mexico as long as that visa is current. Do I have this right? What about I have used FedEx for several years for pick up in Manzanillo. FedEx turns the package over to Multipack in Guadalajara and it is usually in Manzanillo 2 days later. 			Gosh, Jimbobwe, I would say that the $250.00usd installed price qualifies as good news. Even better news is that maybe some traveler will avoid even stopping by the business that tried to rip him off. One of the primary reasons this site exists is to save travelers from rip-off artists. This is secondary only to telling visitors about great experiences to be had. The entertaining reparte is a Winsheild repair NO GO At the intersection across from the entrance/exit the middle road to Bococho near Domino pizza is a windshield repair place. Big rip off. 				Drove down twice from New York to Puerto. I can truly say I'd never do it again. 8,000 miles at least round trip. 380 gallons of gas. ($1,368) The problem is that it cost me between $8,000 to $10,000 each trip. Very expensive. My plane fare with my wife and myself comes out to $1200 to Huatalco from Newark... an eight to ten hour trip versus AT LEAST TEN DAYS.... probably 12, however. These are 10 hour days of driving. The driving in the US is worse than Mexico because of deteriorating roads and crazed semi truck drivers. Looking forward What the original OP does not mention is how long he/she is going to be in Mexico and also what has not been addressed is this. Unless a phone line is already present in whatever accomodation, then to get one is not exactly cheap to have it installed. How long that might take is another question. There are also some locations/areas where you may not even get a phone line installed for whatever reason. If the OP is only there for a short time it would definitely be less expensive to go to the Internet cafe and Skype route. To be in immediate contact would be to have a cell phone with a Telcel chip (SIM card) installed if you already have one of those phones at home. It HAS TO BE UNLOCKED to	569

8790	12	Leone	Re: Huge benefit concert for fi	We went out strolling around the main square at noon, bright sunshine, shirtsleeve weather most of us left our jackets at the hotel. Not a smart move as it began clouding up, but I was told that it wouldn't rain until november. We found a nice restaurant on the square. On the menu was guiney pig and alpaca steaks which some tried, I had a pollo sandwich. Then it really got dark, started raining, then sleeting and snowing! The temp dropped into the 40s and the mountains and town were covered in snow and sleet. We went to the alpaca store and I bought a traditional Peru cap with ear muffs. With 13 ladies and two guys we were there shopping for a bit. We learned about the llamas, alpacas, vicunas I took a cab from the a/p and made the old town stop in time for the 4:00 1st class a couple of times when I landed just after three. As long as you make it out of the a/p parking lot and head south to old town before the bus leaves the bus terminal that is north of the a/p you will make it. Actually with a little encouragement the taxi drivers will beat the bus even if it's going by as you pull out of the a/p. Buses and other large vehicles have to stay in the lateral traffic lane where there is one and taxis don't have that limitation. I always come home with too much luggage to bother with crossing the walkway to save a few dollars	921

8804	12 sojo777	Re: Oswaldo Uribe Araiza Em	What I would suggest to you is, if you have a laptop install the newest Skype version. Before coming to mexico buy a Skype capable USB phone to use instead of a headset. Actually a phone instead of a headset has another advantage in that two people can listen and talk to the person at the other end. An example of one: http://www.directdial.com/USR9631.html Then when you go to a Internet cafe, use a net cable to connect with rather than wireless. What you may have run into is broadband throttling where the ISP restricts the bandwidth and then too many people are trying to use a limited space. Sort of like cars all trying to go from 4 lanes on a road down to two lanes. Right afterleaving the station we saw a hiking group on the Inka Trail, a four day hike along the old ancient road. By the way they spell Inca, Inka down here, so I guess the correct spelling has a k. We hit the hot spring this afternoon, wonderful concrete pools with about 92 degree mineral water and very good for you. Then a storm blew in, it started lightening and we had to get out. 				Drift makes a very good point regarding parts and repair expertise for the ubiquitous Nissan Sentra/Tsuru. But let's extrapolate a little. Let your eyes drift to that shady spot where the camionetas are waiting for their load of human and other cargo. Lessee, you probably don't need that hooped canvas cover over the back nor the benches, so what's left? A four-door Nissan pick-up with that familiar Nissan four-banger like the Sentra/Tsuru. You probably don't need four doors, either... Used to be that the used car carriers would stop in San Antonio to decide which border crossing to use, as each border state set its own tariff and it varied from model to model. This extrapolates to a great deal of expertise The 10 hour train ride from Cusco to puno was outstanding and I highly recommend it to any Peru traveler. Absolutely first class accomidations and 5 star service. the best part was the fashion and jewelry show put on by some real cuties wearing black leotard type outfits and high heels and nothing else except jewelry. The train climbs slowly out of cusco passing through bright green farm fields with corn, potatoes and lots of euoliptus trees. reaching the high planes or alto plano things change dramiticy, it's flat, with only scrub type brush and herds of sheep, llamas and a few cattle and horses. it looks like a very tough life for the shephards and cowboys. lake Titicac, the highest navacable lake in the my wife and i are headed to melaque via PV, as we arrive at 5:15pm atPV airport we have booked a room at Hotel Belmar for our first nite. It was the week before Easter so I wasn't even gonna try. Here is a link to some photos from the Partly cloudy and probably mid 70s as I type this at 1320. Our flight from Juliaca was interesting, our bus took us through a pouring rain storm that lasted the entire hour long trip from Puno to Juliaca. The Juliaca airport is 3825 meters high and our takeoff was delayed more than one hour from high water on the runway which would have added too much drag to the tires as we accelerated for lift off. So they announced that some baggage would be off loaded to lighten the plane. I had a window seat by the front baggage hole but although they did open the baggage doors, no baggage was taken off that I could see, also the rain stopped and the airstrip dried enough for take off. A week of heavy rains caused rivers to overflow, leaving 70 percent of the Gulf state of Tabasco underwater, and forcing thousands of people to cling to rooftops or flee to shelters. It is the worst flooding the state has seen in 50 years. Nearly all services, including drinking water and public transportation, were shut down in the state capital, Villahermosa, 80 percent of which was underwater. "The situation is extraordinarily grave: This is one of the worst One million people affected by Mexico floods Rescuers worked Friday on rescuing hundreds of thousands of people trapped by the worst floods ever recorded in Mexico's southern state of Tabasco, with more than one million resident affected. The oil-rich state the size of Belgium is now 80 percent underwater, officials said, adding that they expect more rain in the next days. "New Orleans was small compared to this," said state Governor Andres Granier, comparing the disaster to the flooding caused by Hurricane Katrina in 2005. Area rivers continued to swell due to the non-stop rain, and more than 850 towns have been flooded in the Gulf of Mexico state, officials said. 				Tens of thousands trapped in Mexico floods VILLAHERMOSA, Mexico (Reuters) - Tens of thousands of Mexicans were trapped on rooftops and others clung to lampposts on Thursday after heavy rains flooded nearly the entire southern state of Tabasco. At least 500,000 people were made homeless and one person was killed in the worst flooding the swampy state has seen in more than 50 years. President Felipe Calderon said it was one of the worst natural disasters in Mexico's history. Television images showed rescue workers hauling people out turbulent, brown waters that rose as high as the roofs of houses. Children floated down a street in a plastic tub. "It is getting very serious," Calderon said in a televised address. Tabasco Gov. There was flooding in Melaque from a storm in late August early September - I remember it was around labour day because I called home from Lake Tahoe to check that all was well once I went on-line at my hotel and read the reports about the storm here on this forum. That storm caused a great deal of flood damage in Melaque but there wasn't any flood damage in Barra that I am aware of, by the time I got home a week later Barra looked just the way it did when I left, though Melaque was still pretty muddy then. The thermoelectric plant was most definately going although even from less than 2km away I couldn't see it through the haze/smog. That and virtually no wind to move it away didn't help. The van via Sole de Vega is 130 pesos. Most taxi drivers and hotels do not know where they leave from, but they advertise in the classifieds of the Noticias de Oaxaca. The trip is around 6 hours and they don't always stop for food, but do stop for a bathroom break. I've taken it many times. The down side is that the seats aren't very comfortable and although they (there is more than one company, each leaves from a different place) are scheduled to leave every 2 hours, they don't. Rather they wait until they have a mininum (4?) number of I rather doubt they would make the same offer to the one news seller in Puerto that they made in Oaxaca where there are many kiosks. When the Miami Herald was sold here they only got a limited number and you had to pay in advance to be guaranteed a copy. Beyond that, newspapers make most of their money through advertising, and in the case of the Miami Herald, at least, most of the advertisers were located in Mexico City of San Miguel Allende. But I think if Thanks Dan, I am not in today the office today (Tuesday) but Pelos is so please	352

				EarthTimes 11/5/07 Mexico City - Flooding continued to cause chaos and despair Sunday in the Mexican state of Tabasco. Some 80,000 people in 17 towns remained isolated by the floods. Most of them were out of reach for rescue teams and would have to wait for help until the water level falls, the Mexican Navy said. In the state capital, Villahermosa, there has been plundering, and the situation appeared to be increasingly out of control. Five people were reported dead by Sunday. Four of them died in the state of Chiapas, where there were severe floods in valleys and mudslides in mountainous areas. One person reportedly died in Tabasco. That's why they are valued in the U.S. over American and other immigrant groups. But as in any job it's always appreciated when the boss (you) takes an interest and praises the work. Good interpersonal (social) skills are important, especially in Mexico. Even if you know nothing about construction, visit the site everyday, if possible and take lots of pictures; it's another way to show you care, and, of course, you have great documentation. 				Sorry Dry House, I don't understand your question. There is a guarded gate on a dirt road behind Barra, past las Pearlas beach on the lagoon and that road leads to a sort of migrant worker's camp called Arroyo Seco and then on to farmland at the back of the lagoon. We have permission to run our bike tours through there but it has nothing to do with the Ejido in Obregon as far as I know but I don't set up the permissions, Pelos and Horacio do. We have permission from different Ejidatarians from the Ejidos of Aguacate, La Paz, Emiliano Zapata and Lazaro Cardenas to use private roads and trails that run through their property for our bike and horse tours. 				Ask for references. Check out the houses your architect and builder have built before. Talk to the owners. Get bids from more than one architect and builder. Know how to bargain. The architect's asking price may just be his opening position, same with the builder. Heck, I went to Zimat to buy a floor fan yesterday and managed to get 2 discounts - one for paying in cash and one for being a regular customer. Of course I had to know to ask for these discounts, saved me 40 pesos. Today I saw a similar fan (different mark) in another store for 100 pesos more than what I paid. Pricing here on everything is totally random. I went to three carpenters to get a book case made, specifying size and I have hired an architect who drew up my plans and he is also my liaison. He in turn, hired the maestro. I have had nothing but good experiences with my architect and maestro, and the job is coming along faster and better than we ever imagined. Getting one you trust is the main thing. We are happy, he is happy, and the crew are happy. And yes, I've heard the horror stories here about architects, but I've also heard the horror stories about getting just builders as It's around 9 pm and a truck has passed my house very slowly 3 times in the last ten minutes with a loud machine in the back that generates a smokey spray which is irritating to breathe. Roberto Hi Mike, Last year was our first year living in Melaque for the winter, and like you we managed our businesses from there. We used skype, the cost per minute is extremely low and we have a good internet connection where we stay, so we really didn't have any problems with skype. On my wifes side of the business, she had a lot of her regular contacts download skype, and then they could talk for free to each other. We also have vonage at home, and vonage will just email us our phone messages, and all of our replys were done with skype. Vonage will not acknowlegde some 1 800 numbers, so we would also have to use skype for this. Our neighbors had the Vonage V chip which they were very happy with. I have never been bitten by a scorpion, but over a period of a few weeks there were 3 in the apartment I lived in. What impressed me about these scorpions was how slowly and fearlessly they walked along the floor. They reminded me of the tanks in the video games of the early 80's. I now keep a can of Raid in every room, just in case. As to last night, none of the street lights on my corner work, My last message should have asked if you wanted books that are in english and espanol. Not very neighborly. I made the owner of my lot clear it up as a condition of sale. My crew used a vacant lot for storing sand and gravel etc. but they cleaned everything up at the end and they didn't use that lot to mix cement. As to neighbors, I introduced myself to the neighbors on my street before I bought the property to find out if there were any problems I should know about - flooding, theft, water pressure,etc. I had seen another lot that I liked, until by asking by asking around I found out that a Does anyone know the schedule of arrival for cruises ships into Santa Cruz Dec.1 till Dec. 8th? The only detail I noticed was the mentioning of why the white concrete bricks are used under ground, it's because the red bricks will deteriorate with the direct contact of the dirt here. White block is actually more porous too, just pour water on one side and watch it go right through. Cement block gets stronger over time also, while red brick under ground disintegrates slowly. The red brick being cooked, will resist soaking up water, but it will eventually soak it up too. Other than that, she's right I have 3/8" and 1/2" rebar in my house, but it's only one story. My builder used to work for Bruciaga and speaks well of his buildings like the Eglatina. (When I started construction I didn't even know what rebar was.) The state health insurance people came to the site with the forms. Someone from the health department also came to the site to give all the workers free tetanus shots. 				About health insurance for the workers. I disagree with Eric on this point. In many countries of the world, but not the U.S. so far, all workers and their families have health insurance provided by their employers. When I worked in the States my family had coverage through by job. My workers were my employees, so why shouldn't I pay for the insurance coverage required by law? Yes, it's expensive, but so is building a house. Most people I know here are satisfied with the health care they and their families receive from IMMS - the State health insurance. I

9416	12	Doc	Re: Rooster Sacrifice at our n	what appears, civil as you are about this. outrage, yes and very understandable Yes Eric S, on health insurance for workers your statements are valid that the workers do not get what they should from the insurance in case of an injury. That is not the issue. Number one, protect yourself. You can bet on it that the injury will fall on the uninsured. If you are a foreigner and there is an incident with an uninsured worker, my guess is that the total burden will fall on you. Commending Eric S for taking care of his workers doctor and dentist bills, I ask what would be the situation if the injury was of a serious nature or even resulted in a fatality. Would you go to that worker and his family every week for the years to come and pay them wages? Best way to go is above board. Farkum says that Since Eric asked, my house is 105 square meters. I kept very good records on all expenditures and have all my receipts for labor and materials. So I know how much everything costs. But I don't know how much it would cost someone else to build a similar house. For example, I splurged on tile molding and backsplait from Puebla which set me back around $500. It figures into the materials costs in my account book. If an architect or general contractor gives you a per meter cost, be sure to find out if that includes the glass in the windows and the iron grating. 				Experts to Complete Final Climate Report VALENCIA, Spain (AP) - The U.N.'s top climate official challenged world policymakers Monday to map out a path to curb climate change, charging that to ignore the urgency of global warming would be "nothing less than criminally irresponsible." Yvo de Boer issued his warning at the opening of a weeklong conference that will complete a concise guide on the state of global warming and what can be done to stop the Earth from overheating. It is the fourth and last report issued this year by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, co-winner of this year's Nobel Peace prize. 				I think the argument is flawed and should really be: Do humans affect the environment/ecosphere in which they live? We humans know too little about Earth's climate to understand weather patterns. To really see a pattern we need a couple million years of weather data and for variables like plate tectonics to stay neutral. It is impossible to state factually if we are heating up or cooling down the earth's climate. Arizona was once under water, it is now desert. Phoenix has heated up recently due to the concrete and pollution. One is a human impact on an ecosystem the other is mother earth being mother earth. About Ice Caps

				Thanks to both of you for a somber but enlightening approach to this. Since you both seem to have a wealth of knowledge of the systems here in Mexico, would you do us all a favour, and outline the hospital situation here and Manzanillo/ Colima ? I understand we now have several levels of hospital services and some spanking new ones in nearby cities. For example: If I break a leg, have a heart problem, poke my eye out with a margarita glass....where to go ? What specialties / services do these new hospitals offer ? Do they have CAT / MRI equipment ? How do we pay? (cash only? credit card ? insurance?) English spoken in the hospitals ? If any 'Zappers' have used the hospital services, how I resurected this post because I have a question that is topical to the posts above about the FM3. I heard on the news a few weeks ago that the government have changed the rules back to the way they were in the past for naturalization and now once again, only those with an FM2 and five years of residence in Mexico with the FM2 can apply for Mexican Citizenship. Has anyone else heard this? I went into the government site link that I gave above http://www.sre.gob.mx/tramites/nacionalidad/tema1c.htm and it does now indeed specify only an FM2 either booklet or photocredencial type. This doesn't affect As for the guys who you believe are better off in the system. I've known them too. And I think it's a sad day when a man is brainwashed or troubled enough to actually believe he can't be a productive, free man. Those childlike guys, minds of a child in a mans body. Maybe it's a genetic makeup or a very bad upbringing that sets them in this direction. Either way, they don't deserve to be forgotten in a prison. They are bonding with tough characters, a quality they have learned, which proves they can learn and be diligent in their belief. Even intense and difficult to follow beliefs which are found on prison yards. That belief, must be reprogrammed. The patient was later transferred to Guadalajara We had a 5 year old break his elbow and started with Central de Salud. It carried cattle feed, cement and steel. Every day, a hundred or more men and women jumped on its rattletrap cars and hitched a free ride northward. Few locals miss the train, which stopped operating in July. But for the Central American immigrants who pass through southern Mexico on a desperate, 1,200-mile odyssey to the United States, the line's closure is a disaster. 				Reminds me of a high school chum. He came from Honduras, the same way, and arrived in L.A. He was a big upper bodied guy, with skinny legs. His fingers were as big as jumbo hotdogs, and his chest barrel like, and boy could he run fast. He got jumped into a few real dangerous and highly respected gangs, the last of which was called CRS. CRAZY RIDERS, was a group of central americans mostly, who dominated anywhere they went. After beating the hell out of people just about every day for years, they had an enemy gang who was a real matchup for them. It was called SOS, or SONS OF SAMOA who had a neighborhood in L.A. also. Our friend Ian landed a 600+ pounder after a 6 hour fight and he will be 88 this January. We will be trying out luck again Dec. 3rd to Funny thing you mention some 'brand' name shoes and shirts. All the brand names, like Nike, Vans, Reebok, or any others, are more expensive here. They are TAXED heavily. Everything good is taxed. So, the people live on payless and walmart styles with no problemo. Americans don't except that, and buy brand names only. Try to do that here, and it's rather discouraging. You mention housing, sure, I rent a house for 350 dlls a month, it's a piece of trashola! Full of ants n termites. Leaky roofs, and needing landscaping. Those old Bacocho homes with the old leaky roofs, would be stripped and rehased in the states. It is a little cheaper here for rent, compared to the states. "They (Mexican Customs officials) claim to be enforcing laws but they are interpreting them contrary to the needs of the people who are suffering," said Nuevo Laredo attorney Sergio Chavira, a civic activist who's been working to get the goods to Tabasco. "That is immoral." Chavira said I can't limit to three because they all offer something different and hey, do I look to you like a woman who ever missed a meal? You paid for service above & beyond the call of duty, which as Roadawig explained makes tipping more than understandable. But you're still rationalizing a bit. If someone in the market asked $18 for a T-shirt, & you bargained him/her down to $10, would you then tip up to $15? Using your logic, you'd STILL be getting it below the original asking price, even though the EXPECTED & CORRECT price is $9-10. The custom of ipping in Mexico was introduced by foreigners. It's not a native custom. So, when you change customs in a country, you are also changing their attitudes. Sure, the locals appreciate a big tip, but also they then come to expect it, and when they don't get it, it's natural to get a bit sour. I've seen it happen. Don't	380

				The top three? That's a hard one to answer when there are so many good restaurants in Melaque, Barra, and Colimilla. One of my favorites to add to the above lists is Fortinos in Colimilla. It's fun to grab a water taxi, down there by the jetty in Barra, and ride pass the Grand Bay Marina and see all those big beautiful yaghts and sail-boats. Of all the years we have been to Barra, we have yet to miss a stop at Fortinos. Way back before the golf course was built, they use to have chickens on the tables, BYOB, and a sand floor. Unfortunately, the chickens and other feather friends are caged up behind the restaurant. While waiting for your food, take a stroll out the back and see all the birds, continue Don't forget about Señor Froy's in Melaque. He is now directly across from the bank on the main road that runs parallel to the beach. 10170	12	Mexiconnie	Re: favorite Barra restuarant	Hola Bawbby, We've been twice to both Guayabitos and Melaque. We love both areas as we prefer the smaller villages as opposed to the large tourist cities. Everyone in these areas are so friendly and there's a feeling of safety. Melaque appears to be about 3 times the size of Guayabitos. We took pictures of Melaque from on top of the hill and I've attached one to this message. Waves break closer to shore in Melaque - I've also attached a picture of one. The zocalo is a favourite gathering place almost every night, but especially on weekend nights. I've attached a picture of the crowd. If you come to Melaque in March, be prepared for many parades and parties. There's always something Bawwby, here's a picture of the dancing at the zocalo and one of the midway. I'll rent my house for month of January (after La Navidad crowds leave). 6,000 pesos includes WiFi Internet, local tel. calls, once-a-week-cleaning lady, gas, electric. No children or pets, please. 				I ordered two lightning arrestors (capacitors) from Texas. We installed one at the junction box where the #2 guage wire comes in from the pole. A 60,000 volt, can. Like a small coke can. Next in line, we put a 40,000 volt can, behind the breakers box inside the house. 100,000 volts in capacitors. And your copper rod hammered into the ground, for ground. I've still had computer trouble from the spikes that are somewhat common. So, your computer still needs an inline Stacy would it be possible to post a couple of photos of the place you found?

10187	6	frogfart	Re: Looking for a Place in Dec	The West Melaque map is updated again. West: Hola! I am going to San Agustinillo this winter and I wondered what posters thought of these places (Arigalan and Posada Jazmin). Posada Arigalan is located between Mazunte and San Agustinillo and Posada Jazmin is located in San Agustinillo, presumably on the beach. I don't know anything about Posada Jazmin, I couldn't find any info and calling there was somewhat sketchy. I am new to the Oaxaca Pacific coast, I usually travel to Costa Alegre in Jalisco State. Hey, I just talked to Star Choice again... I have 275, 276, 277, 279, 291, nothing else... they got me 280 for just a minute there (TSN). This tech figures the problem is the LNB or some variant of dish/cable/connection. (Note that it is now more apparent that these channels are mixed: horizontal and vertical; originally my loss left me with only three channels.) I called because my 500 has lost all channels, twice in a period of a week. Plugging it in to where the 505 is got it Eric does kinda point out something I failed to in my journey. Coming from NB, Canada I have to get up at 4 AM to get a flight into Toronto on a very very small jet (the Fokker 100 is luxury compared to this thing). Then, fly from TO to Mexico City is not that bad aside from the fact that Air Canada doesn't consider this an international flight anymore and sell food and booze at robbery prices! Then, the quick flight to Hualtuco/PE is OK as long as the plane isn't held up. In this case, it was again. We didn't board until long after departure time. Anyway, by the time I was at my stay in PE it was probably 11 PM New Brunswick time and therefore Yes things can easily get off track....but while we are on Melaque I should mention the Restaurante Mar Laguna at Bungalos Laguna del Tule. It is the closest Melaque restaurant if you are in Barra. It's worth the walk up the beach. Even if you just stop for a quick cold one.You can't miss it Zummie. It's the first place you come to. They have a large menu covering the whole day. Authentic Andy, there was nothing hard edge in the original post, the red light bit came after the 'get out out of my town' shot. These gentlemen's clubs or what ever you want to call them are a very good model for the oldest profession, in my opinion. I'm not sure about Arkansas, but things are out of control were I live. If they allowed more of these places in Canada and the US it would put it behind doors in a legal setting where people can choose to go or not....where the girls are much safer in a crowd and not preyed upon by scumbag pimps. As far as a red light district in This post has gotten out of control. If there is a red light district, I'm not aware of it, nor do I care to promote it. It is the promotion of this stuff that bothers me. I'm not a prude, but where most of us come from, crime, drugs, murder, prostitution, etc. is constantly on the 11:00pm news. 				Thanks for the reply, Jerry. I have actually downloaded the Mexican fishing reg's and found that a license is required for fishing from a boat. Not only that, but in fact, everyone in the boat regardless of whether they are fishing or not. Conversely, you are correct in that, fishing from shore does not require a license. As well, inland waters require no license. Pretty different from where we are in Canada. I read an article written by someone who said that there have been a few cases in Mexico where "fish cop" authorities have hassled anglers fishing from shore saying they needed a license; threatened them with fines and gear confiscation, all for the purpose of securing a bribe payment. $1000 worth Hi nona j.. Yes, I've driven about 10 times to Mexico from Canada. First couple of times from Edmonton to Acapulco over Texas, then from Vancouver to Mazatlan on I-5 over LA and the last 7 or so times from the interior BC to Melaque/Barra. The drive through the States is fine as long as we go through the desert (Nevada from North to South). I-5 can be a real problem in winter with constant storms hitting the coast and the passes getting snow which the Californians have no idea how to drive in. The desert does get some snow (you may get up to 7000 feet), but we never had any real problems there. You may want to consider going from Portland east and turning south around the

10239	12	Sandy L	Re: canned smoked salmon	I am really concerned about this response from Penny, that she is asking if salmon is for SALE. It is illegal to sell or buy WILD ALASKA salmon unless you are a verified salmon broker from the US or Canada, and have a import/export license and are certified by the DEC for a processing permit. There have been people that have come to ALASKA in recent times that have harvested salmon for their own, supposed, "personal-use", and have been caught selling salmon in jars at flea markets in California, Arizona, and other states, and have been fined, and the salmon confiscated. 10328	12	tazmin	Re: Bistro GiGi is open!!	Tipping is a tough thing. It is very easy to start throwing money around when you are newly rich like the Canadians (joke). When some people get off the plane after a long trip it can seem like the thing to do. "Shit, only $3.98 Loonies (That's $550 pesos to us Americans. lol) to Puerto from Huatulco? Here's an extra Loony ($150 pesos) for the hell of it." But all kidding aside it can be tough on the locals when they start expecting much too much dinero for something just because a few tourists have over compensated. We have all seen people who over tip by a huge amount and we have seen tight assed jerks who refuse to tip even though they know they should. Geri hit it on the head. Having said that, Plan on my first trip to PE in January. I know this is a bit vague, but I would appreciate any loacal advice for a single dad with a teen or two in tow. staying I never take precautions and I never get sick. I took many vacations in Latin America with my son. He always got very sick (stomach stuff) at the beginning of each trip and then he would be fine. So I think it just depends on the person; maybe it's genetic. So maybe all these treatments and advice work, or maybe you wouldn't get sick no matter where or what you ate anyhow. I didn't used to I got a copy today for 10 pesos at the 69 on Rinconada - OK it was yesterday's paper. Almost all the articles are syndicated. The front page piece was from Bloomberg News. 				Cristiano "Christian" has come to mean Protestant as opposed to Catholic. Was this a trick question? I taught Mexicans in the U.S. and they, as well as my American students, only described themselves as Christians if there not Roman Catholic which was the majority religion in my classes. Rule of thumb: Christians go to Christian schools and Catholics go to Catholic school. Historically, the word Christian in Mexico meant person. So in Mexican literature or in small That sounds really cool. Times are really changing. I have a problem with the guys who fix and build the fiberglass lanchas right behind my kids school, the calmecac. If no one is willing to pay the higher prices they put on the property then it won't sell. That is how real estate works. I think it is hard to deal in real estate in huatulco because none of the companies cooperate with each other...it is difficult to research and find out what similar properties have sold for unless you are willing to rely on "word of mouth" ...not so reliable in my way of thinking. Feel free to email me direct at my email address below (I'm Hi Diablito, not to worry, the comment was actually directed at Altavista Babelfish and the programmers that write bad translation softward - not at you. I know a few Pimientas from Melaque but I don't know your Dad. People tell me We've been at the Estrella Blanca website but couldn't find Puerto Escondido as origin for buses to Acapulco whatsoever. We're planning to take the trip on mid-Jan. Could anybody help us to find out what's the best way to go by bus from PE well it's been 6 years since I've been there, but I would say no, don't camp on the beach at night, and you should be able to find hammocks for $1 or $2 a night... I think, in Zipolite, and if you share a bathroom you can find rooms for $5 a night...if you make a deal...if you stay for a bit, but don't pay up front...not more than a week...I paid for a month in advance once, and unfortunately there was a fire, and the place burned and I didn't get any money back...but that was just unfortunate...still if your finances are low, be very careful where you rent...so that you do get a deal. You can save money if you find a place where you can cook, but you can't and shouldn't cook in cabanas...(re: fire) If you sleep in a hammock Due to a cancelation we have a suite available for December 20th - 28th If intrested look up Villa at www.villasolymar.com Villa Sol y Mar (House of the sun If they turn that money into white paint, I will personally paint the whole dang town clean. 				Dan, Please understand that I'm not picking on you. Once you made it clear that the cab driver went out of his way to offer you extra service, in my mind your tip became justified, & I have stated as much. My comments are more directed at a couple of posters who find it so necessary to disagree with & disparage anything I say, that they automatically defended obscenely high tipping as a matter of course, simply because I questioned it. Intelligent adults can, & often do disagree. As you've pointed out, I think we have had a very civil discourse in doing just that. I would like you to google Staffordshire terrier, Stafford Bull terrier, American Pit Bull terrier, and English Bull terrier. First lesson is learn the difference between the four breeds. Second lesson is to read the top 10 dogs reported on the yearly human bite statistics, you'll find that NONE of the above mentioned dog breeds are there. The breeds I have mentioned above, are specifically noted for being very protective of their owners, and very good with children at home. Though often ARE very 'animal' aggressive. When it came to time to pay our bar bill, he advised me, out of the blue, to "live big and tip 20 percent" I declined and left ten per cent. Then, as we left, he said, again, out of the blue, "fuck you". I live in Round Rock and drive thru Huatulco to Mazunte all the time. email me and I will be glad to give you some directions. Moderating is an unfortunate function of the posters themselves. In most forums there're usually a couple of people who feel like they own the place by virtue of the length of time they've been posting; & that they somehow deserve special treatment because of their supposed celebrity status. They are truly legends in their own minds, & simply cannot understand it when they are NOT revered by all. Trolls delight in putting such people on, & pointing out their inadequacies & frailties. If that makes me a troll or a bad person, so be it. I simply am amused that some people take themselves so seriously, that their life story is on display for all to see on a never ending basis. 10961	5	Puerto Bill	Re: Earthquake	Doodah I'm not sure if you were getting defensive or not but the word creepy just sounded odd. I don't think one gets seasoned about earthquakes. They are certainly disconcerting. There is a definite feeling of helplessness for sure. Inadequate maybe. Scary. For you it was creepy. Back in 91 where I live we had 3 major earthquakes in one day. I was in the woods for the first one around 10:00 am I think. Not really sure but it was daytime and the trees were really shaking. And making a lot of noise. Lots and lots of trees. Lots and lots of noise. There was NOWHERE to run and hide. It lasted for a long time it seemed. It was pretty scary. The second one came at sometime around 10:00 at night and woke Well I just looked it up to check if I remembered it correctly. My memory is not what I would hope. First it was in April 92 not late summer 91 (more on that in a second). Second, the numbers were 7.1 and 6.6 and 6.6. at 11:06 AM, 12:41 AM and 4:18 AM in that order. Also it was not the earthquake that changed the water source. That earthquake happened the year before in September of 91 and was 6.1 quake. Water was low and then there was a lot of water for a few weeks. If I remember correctly which I very possibly do not. Haha None of them caused any damage for me. I was very lucky. Also when an earthquake comes I run for the exit if there is one. If it is at night and it wakes me up I usually do not I don't think you could do it much faster in a car. We bussed up from Zihua to Melaque in Oct. and those buses fly. We prefer the regular class bus with the ability to open windows. 100 km/hr AC versus canned air behind tinted glass. The regular class stopped just enough....there aren't many.... and it made for an excellent view, with photo ops out the window and I got to relax and enjoy vs watch the road. Felt very safe. Once you hit Caleta de Campos you have seen most of the beautiful coast and not far up the road you move a bit inland for the duration of the trip before coming down into Zihua. If your still up for an adventure, grab the regular class south from Manzanillo and get off at Caleta. 10984	5	miguel sucio 2000	Re: What Global Warming? 2	Hi, Could use good advice on coming to PE via ACA on/about Jan. 27'08. Arrive ACA around 8:00 pm on a Sat. night: Here are my thoughts.... either get to the bus station and take an overnight (6-8 hour??) bus to PE, arriving early Sun, morning.....or..... staying in ACA for that first night, and hopping a bus to PE.... or renting a car and driving down. I usually get a car right away for the freedom to do whatever.... however we're probably not going to need a car on this vacation once in PE. And the cost and potential hassel with the Who ya gonna believe? The Pope, or the evidence? The Pope condemns the climate change prophets of doom The leader of more than a billion Roman Catholics suggested that fears over man-made emissions melting the ice caps and causing a wave of unprecedented disasters were nothing more than scare-mongering. The German-born Pontiff said that while some concerns may be valid it was vital that the international community based its policies on science rather than the dogma of the environmentalist movement. His remarks will be made in his annual message for World Peace Day on January 1, but they were released as delegates from all over the world convened on the Indonesian holiday island of Bali for UN climate change talks. The 80-year-old Pope said the UN chief says gas cut targets might be too ambitious for Bali climate conference BALI, Indonesia - (AP) In the face of U.S. opposition, the U.N. chief said Wednesday guidelines on greenhouse gas emissions cuts favored by Europe and developing countries may be "too ambitious" to include in a final statement on climate change Drafts of a final statement at a U.N. global warming conference this week have included a call for industrialized countries to consider cutting emissions blamed for rising temperature by between 25 percent and 40 percent by 2020. U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon, however, said such goals might have to wait for subsequent negotiations when asked about	500

				Gore: US Blocking Climate Talks Progress BALI, Indonesia (AP) - Al Gore said Thursday the United States is "principally responsible" for blocking progress at the U.N. climate conference, and European nations threatened to boycott U.S.-led climate talks next month unless Washington compromises on emissions reductions. The former vice president urged delegates to take urgent action to reduce emissions of greenhouse gases blamed for global warming. "My own country, the United States, is principally responsible for obstructing progress here in Bali," said Gore, who flew to Bali from Oslo, Norway, where he received the Nobel Peace Prize for helping alert the world to the danger of climate change. 				I just got back to the states after another fantabulous visit to Puerto. My first day back I'm getting almost run over by stampeding, stressed-out Christmas phonies and I just wanna go back south. Well my first day back inspired me to reflect on my visit and I came up with a top 10 list. My 10 Favorite things about this trip to Puerto Escondido 10. The Cuban cigar debate: I was really enjoying a cigar I thought was a Cuban then somebody told me it probably wasn't. I began asking around and more than half the people I asked said they probably just put those Cuban stickers on them and sell them for more. They tasted pretty good

				Didn't make any generalizing comments about all Mexicans being the same and everyone has their own idea of impressive... and I think no one has the right to judge that, no matter where one is from... But do go tell the nice people in Zipolite how you feel, maybe they'll embrace your ideas and put their evil And by the way, the "when in Rome" still applies, though maybe we should say "when in Zipol" and appreciate instead of judge....paisea o no
11317	8	Stacy	Re: Zipo town fair	My wife likes to review the movie reviews. You know "That movie is suppose to be this and that. The review I read said this or that." So I will review your top ten: 10. They say real Cubans cost 3 times what you paid for them in Mexico and any Cuban you see in Mexico is fake. The Cubans cannot even make enough to sell for the high didge around the world, why would they sell them cheap to Mexico? 9. It was probably just Eric out for a drive in his truck. All the smoke and steam and odor and noise is just his way of saying hello. 8. Los Scandalosos (or something like that). 7. It's nice to feel comfortable for sure. When you come back to Puerto it is like coming home. 6. Eric does neither. Maybe that is why he i just was there awful new but long walks no moving sidewalks huge lines for immigration 45 min wait at least nothing signposted then 20 mins for customs then hike upstairs to nice train. but in all well more than an hour to get to click	931

11320	5	ROADAWG	Re: New International Terminal	Another wonderful day in PE. Spotted whales, jumping near the point this morning. We went by water taxi from playa principal over to carazillo, enroute we spotted two whales about 1/4 mile distant. We got very close before the grey whales dove and eluded us and two other boats. Nice swimming but the water is murky from the alge bloom or whatever so the snorkeling was not good although I did see alot of small fish. We watched the virgin carried in procession, loaded on a decked out boat and a band, a priest and most of the boats in PE along with hundreds of people made up the annual blessing of the fleet cruise out to	155
11321	5	Big Red	Son de Mais	Honestly, when I got my Canon L2 video camera, I had a better time shooting video of my son. It really helps him learn faster, and we enjoy watching them and saving them. With a 2500 dllr camera and gear, it's a bit strange to leave that on the beach and go into the water. Not to mention carry a board and all that video gear and umbrella down the dang beach. In the old days I would just park my jeep in the sand right on the beach, and drop the umbrella and gear right where we want to shoot from, now, there's a NO DRIVING ON THE BEACH rule. I hate that rule. So we have to carry all our junk all the way to	5

11335	12	Marenerman	Re: Homeowners and Medical	The fireworks display was at La Agencia, December 17. It's part of the 3 day Virgen de Soledad celebrations. For those of you who aren't here, and for those of you who didn't come: it was spectacular, as usual. Thousands of people. Warren Sharpe's El Sol de la Costa, December 2007 issue, pages 8-9, has a good description of El Castillo. It begins with los toritos (Castillo-bull). It's hard to portray the actual size of the castillo structure. It's at least three stories high, an intricate bamboo and wood design, thousands of fireworks, all connected together with fuses. I assume the red and blue things in (Castillo-detail) are the The lower wheels light up in a blaze of fireworks (Castillo-start). Then you realize that there's a design to each of the wheels (Castillo-design 1,2,3). When you think it's close to over - the wheels have lit up from bottom to top - it starts all over again! There's actually two layers of wheels, one behind the other. You can The last stage is the huge horizontal spinning wheel at the top (Castillo-finale 1). It ends in a blaze of fireworks with "Virgen de Soledad" spelled out (Castillo-finale 2). Disclaimer: unfortunately I didn't bring my "good" camera. If I did, the pictures would have been a lot better. Next Year! If you're not fortunate enough to be in Puerto Escondido to experience El Castillo, read about it in Warren Sharpe's El Sol de la Costa, December 2007 issue, pages 8-9. 11348	13	MARI	SIGHTSEEING TOURS	Thanks for the info Diana. I'll be back in the area in February and will see if I can find it. I'm an (older me and the cars) Alfa Romeo and rally competition nut and I heard that they had some of the fifties rally cars that use to traverse Mexico. This is a great thread! To get a laugh its hard to decide what to pull up. Tom's Pto. page or Mel Brooks opening scenes of Blazing Saddles. hahaha And a I've flown to PV (cheaper charters) and rented a car to get to Manzo (Santiago) several times now. Brisk driving can get you there in 4.0 hours, especially with recent improvements to the Melaque to Manzo section, but Spark's 4.5 hours is most reasonable. It is generally a very good paved road, but narrow and without shoulders for most of the Melaque to PV section. The first third from PV is slow through town till you leave the coast, then quite twisty. The middle third is fairly open and straight with some nice villages for meal or service breaks. The south third to Melaque is twisty again. The no passing areas are well marked, but there can be 10 or 20 kilometers of no passing due to curves and hills. Can be some I have many friends in Zip and they all know where I stand on cruelty to animal issues and many agree with me. I will not reply to anymore of your posts. Peace Great stuff! 				We've added a Tenacatita Trip sailing for Christmas week, I already have some reservations for both trips but I still have some spaces left on both so if you want to reserve e-mail me now at info@seatosierra.com or drop by my office at Veracruz 204 across from the Jardin in Barra de Navidad. The 25th trip is on our 42' Chris Craft (pictured) and the 28th trip is on our 36' Sea Ray and she is a really nice boat too. [img] http://www.seatosierra.com/images/tenaxmas_OL.jpg [/img] The special Christmas lunch available by pre-order both trips is completely optional because we realize that not everyone will want it and we don't think that anyone should have to pay for what they don't want. For those that do order the special lunch Hahahahahahahahahahahha You guys are really funny. Hehehehehe (wiping the tears from my eyes) What's next? A arm wrestling contest???? 			High thin clouds over PE as I type this. Nice dinner last evening at Seis Palmas, a great restaurant high above Carazillo bay. The four of us plus Dennis Miller and Jim Holland had a very tasty meal, the service is great and I encourage any visitor to PE to eat at this spot. The view is astounding during the day and still wonderful at night, plus a nice sea breeze. Open for breakfast, lunch and supper and a great place for drinks. The jump plane a Twin Otter 300 last year was from Chicago, leased to the jumpers from Cuatula(sp) near MX City. I have not stopped in yet but I did recognise a few of the jumpers as we drove by. 				'US air passenger group welcomes rules for stranded travelers' ...Friday December 21, 2007 A group representing US air travelers claimed victory Friday after a New York judge ruled that airlines in the state must provide essential services to passengers stranded for long periods of time. The decision means that from January 1, any passengers stuck in planes on runways at New York's airports for more than three hours must be given food, water, fresh air and given access to working toilets. Airlines face fines of up to 1,000 dollars per passenger for not adhering to the new rules. Campaigners urged other states to follow suit, in what they hope will eventually become a nationwide bill of rights for air

11628	12	sparks	Re: Telmex Internet Dealer	A Brief History of Christmas By JOHN STEELE GORDON Christmas famously "comes but once a year." In fact, however, it comes twice. The Christmas of the Nativity, the manger and Christ child, the wise men and the star of Bethlehem, "Silent Night" and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" is one holiday. The Christmas of parties, Santa Claus, evergreens, presents, "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" and "Jingle Bells" is quite another. But because both celebrations fall on Dec. 25, the two are constantly confused. Religious Christians condemn taking "the Christ out of Christmas," while First Amendment absolutists see a threat to the separation of church and state in every poinsettia on public property and school dramatization of "A Christmas Carol." 				The truth is that embedded corruption is a part of the culture in every country that Spain founded. It's always very easy to find locals who grumble about it but they are never the ones with any power or on the receiving end. Even the Catholic church in these Latin counties fosters the embedded corruption by teaching the masses there that they MUST accept their social positions and wait for the next life for their reward. 				Sparks, Thank for including the attachment alongwith... I now realize that the option to do so is provided within the message 'create' feature. However, there are a few differences between what is described on the web-site page you have provided the link for, and the PDF. The web page speaks to taking residency in MX; also, it does not call for the individual to acquire a "postille" on his/her work certification(s); etc. The PDF posted - is from the authorities in Manzanillo - is specifically for foreigners who do not intend to reside in (as in immigrate to) Mexico, and only wish to perform a lucrative activity while here. All, In any case anyone who's seen this before have an idea if this situation is likely to clear up by the weekend? This cuts off Guatemala City (which is great), and is faster. From Panajachel, take a colectivo or bus to Cocales, and then to the border. I have used both coastal crossings...it doesn't matter, although Talisman (the Northern of the two) is pretty seedy even as far border towns go. I forget how long the trip by bus was, but I drove it nonstop in 16 hrs from Huatulco to Pana....going the same route (even by bus) will be a lot faster than the Tiko service that you will probably use from Guatemala City. 				Global Warming Will Save America from the Right...Eventually by Dave Lindorff The future political map of America is likely to look a lot different, with much of the so-called "red" state region either gone or depopulated. Say what you will about the looming catastrophe facing the world as the pace of global heating and polar melting accelerates. There is a silver lining. Look at a map of the US. The area that will be completely inundated by the rising ocean—and not in a century but in the lifetime of my two cats—are the American southeast, including the most populated area of Texas, almost all of Florida, most of Louisiana, and half of Alabama and Mississippi, as well as goodly portions of eastern Georgia, Hello, my wife and I are seeking a one bedroom, with kitchen, rental for a month, roughly between late January and late February. 11797	12	jfitco	Re: Brunch at Grand Bay?	With a little last minute shovel work the dirt cliff can be shaped perfectly vertical so the truck can back right up to it. The open space to cross would be less than a foot. So your steel runways can be lined up with your tires and you could just drive out. Is there room for a brand new fiberglass jeep body in your delivery trucks trailer? It's only as long as a jeep is from the windshield to the taillights, because the front fenders and grill are attached pieces. A quick guess is 8 feet.	196

January was the warmest first month on record worldwide - 1.53 degrees above normal. It was the first time since record-keeping began in 1880 that the globe's average temperature has been so far above the norm for any month of the year. And as 2007 drew to a close, it was also shaping up to be the hottest year on record in the Northern Hemisphere. U.S. weather stations broke or tied 263 all-time high temperature records, according to an Associated Press analysis of U.S. weather data. 11875	12	sparks	Re: Internet service provider that is	Nan: In the States it is not at all uncommon for ISPs to block outbound mail for domains that they do not host. It is an attempt to cut down on spam. Since you would not have to authenticate to their SMTP server to send mail, you could send a billion spam messages, that when they were traced, would trace back to a Prodigy address, thus putting prodigy on the naughty list. A couple of suggestions, normally they block port 25, try changing your outbound port to 587 or 2525.....might work. If those don't work ask your hosting company if there is a port other than those that you can use to hit their SMTP server, try it if there is.	7

It's more than just sushi on the menu: they have sashimi that's excellent, sometimes I'm in the mood for pasta, they have an "Indian noodles" item (I think that's what it's called) that is excellent. And their "Vietnamese rolls" are excellent. If you want a huge, belly-filling dinner, go elsewhere. But if you want quality sushimi, you'll get it here. 				stanburn is right pappy, you appear to be posting from Canada and there is no need to change CAD to USD to MXP since everytime you chang money you loose a bit. ATMs are plentiful in the Manzanillo area and some restaurants and stores take credit cards. I do not believe that foreign debit cards work here, none of my friends have been able to use their's when they have been visiting and I know I can not use my Mexican debit card when travelling in the US and Canada - different networks it seems? Not sure why because the debit cards do work at the ATMs but friends have not been able to use a US or Canadian debit card at places like Soriana for purchases while their credit cards have worked fine. If Hello Johnzap do not feel bad about your left wing politics I believe that Rush Limbaugh is an extreme left winger also 10:00pm is past my bed time And yse it is good to be in Huatulco Wayne Overby Villa Sol y Mar (House of the Sun & When has better service become a problem at The Split Coconut? I also assume you were not talking about Brad's when you mention breaded down burgers. I have always found generous portions at The Split, much bigger than other restaurants in Puerto. Maybe the prices on some things have increased but the advantages of the new location for comfort far outweigh a couple of pesos. As was said, everything is going up but Brad has only improved his already great reputation. His food is always good and Ewardo, David, Marta and the rest are working very hard to bring you a great meal and experience for a fair price. For some, The Split is the high point of their vacation. 11982	12	sparks	Looking for used motor bike or	We're looking forward to your report! see you're from Sask. I would be interested to know your route to get to Puerto. I am tentatively planning to visit in February, likely bussing down from further up I guess that does sound kind of fishy.. BUT really any information would be greatly appreciated going in 3 weeks, and would like some tips. Ialso don't get KMC is referring to Sakura, which moved into the old A&H building, just before the huge surf of July took out the old building which housed Sakura before its move, and 6-7 other beachfront eateries. Sakura is still there, with its good food, I've smoked Cuban cigars in Canada, Mexico, Guatemala and Nicaragua. I think there is a mystique about them that is over-rated ... and consequently, makes them over-priced. At least as good ... if not better in some cases ... are cigars from the Dominican Republic and from Honduras. In PE, if I want a good cigar ... Yes everything is perfect in paradise. Crime doesn't exist; there was no red tide, just another communist plot; supermercados abound; restaurant prices continue to decline, while quality & portions improve; fishing, cruise, & excursion prices are the best in the world; hoteliers show their spirit by reducing prices during the holiday season; ad nauseum. Dare to express a negative view about njscott63 ... That must be another Michigan Dave. Not me. Rush too far left? Mayhap you're an Alex Jones fan? Lalo was saying that most of the growth in Huatulco was in private property and that it has had little effect on his business as the homeowners tend to be more self-contained and eat out less than hotel based visitors. Maybe I should tell him that he just opens too late. Well, some of the best cigars in the world are hand-rolled in San Andres, Tuxtlas, Veracruz. There are also some mediocre and worse produced here as well, so it pays to know what you're doing when you buy. But if you want genuine Puros Cubanos, whether for snob appeal or any other reason, you're	7

11992	6	C Janvary	Need a villa/house ASAP	5 retired couples currently living in Acapulco looking for a house or villa to rent for three nights, starting TOMORROW NIGHT!! We are non-smokers, no pets, looking for a restful three days away from Acapulco traffic and craziness. This will be our first "check it out" trip to Huatulco, but expect we'll be coming back and are also interested in condo and house prices for possible purchase. Email: Hi all I just got word that the 2008 Tomzap Party will be held on Wed. Feb. 13th at Don Bigotes just along the beach towards Barra from the old Bigotes. Marta and clan will make sure that we have a good one . Time is 2:00 till ? come on When you visit Veracruz, Visit Catemaco! And if your rental plans don't work out check out Villas Tepetapan in Catemaco, a casita with kitchen, worth checking I would suggest you contact Palm PrincessDestination Services - contact Valerie - she is most able to help you. Her email address is: vverhalen@hotmail.com I met a lady called Felix who does dog grooming; she was at the free vet week in November. Has anyone got her phone number or email please? Thank you.	1291
11993	12	Jim Dobinson	2008 Tomzap Party	Last year was the first in about 6 years that our schedule allowed us to fly into PE rather than into Huatulco. With my sometimes unreliable memory ... I know we went through Immigration in Mexico City ... but what about Customs? Is that at the PE airport or was that in Mexico City as well? Also, has anyone flown into PE and then walked from the airport down to the road and caught a cab there I remember a couple of years ago on "Fat" Tuesday or Mardi Gras (the day before Ash Wednesday), PE had a fiesta of sorts ... including a parade on the Adoquin. Does anyone know if that is an annual event or was it a one-time happening? It looks like we finally are getting our act together and may be in PE Bright and sunny this afternoon in Puerto.) Yesterday Puerto was almost blown away by 50 plus mph winds almost all day. Periodic electric outages from thousands of falling limbs. Never seen it that windy in PE except for a passing hurricane in the summer of 1979. Our move to Puerblito went well, it's different living over here, compared to out near the point but we are adapting. Dinner at Brad's Split Coconut last evening was great although few customers were there, the wild winds were howling and the flying pig was circling without using his wings but Paul's shrimp and my rack of ribs was wonderful. We're going over to eglantina at puesta del sol this evening to have drinks at Dennis >Millers place. Does anyone want to play Bridge. I am a single wanting to hook up with a team or form new one, living in Villa Obregon.	4

11996	12	chrsvg29	Felix the dog groomer	Depends whether or not you check your bags all the way through to PE. Regardless, you will probably have to go through the Agriculture check at PE airport. I have never walked to the road but, if memory serves, it's only 35 pesos As I recall, those regular green-and-white colectivos can deliver passengers to the airport but are not allowed to pick up passengers at the airport without paying an additional fee. Last year, I think we paid 35 pesos per person for the "authorized" airport transportation and then when we got outside, there was no transportation to be had. We ended up waiting 35-40 minutes out in the hot sun ... long after the Click return flight had taken off. We couldn't go back into the yea ,I did it a couple of years ago carrying a body board because I didnt want to wait for the local shuttle to fill up and then stop everywhere.All I remember was it was HOT and a cab picked my up after about 1 min walking towards Puerto.The cost was more than a regualr taxi in town and I complained about it but he acted like he did not understand me(I guess that can work both ways)It was pretty Hey Michigan Dave, Are you by any chance the Dave from Michigan who used to travel with 2 huge dogs that slept in your van and you and your wife slept in a also check out http://www.mex-ecotours.com who are based in Melaque.	1170

12065	16	Nan	Re: Tours and which ones??	In response to Lee and Melanie's message below. I had the same problem because I do not use Prodigy as my e-mail server although I do log into the internet with them basically because they are the only game in town. Since December 22nd Prodigy have been blocking emails send through SMTP servers other than their own. My web site and mail server are hosted at a big service bureau in Miami that I can't dial into from here directly without horrific long distance charges, so while prodigy allow me to receive messages from my POP server they were not allowing me to send replies using my SMTP server on my mail server. I was able to fix this by changing the SMTP port from 25 to 587.	142

The service was great and everything else I ate there was quite good and portion sizes would please big eaters which I am not but I have no problem just stopping when I am full. K-Fe was a big surprise for me this year as everything I ate there was delicious. Javier made me lots of dishes not on the menu based on what was fresh and on my taste. The soups are really savoury. You'll have a great time. Puerto is, in general, quite a peaceful and peaceable town. As the saying goes. . . "If Puerto Escondido were any more laid back, it would fall over." Don't worry about pit bulls. You won't see gangs of pits roaming around, but you will probably run into an assortment of occasional "street dogs." My suggestion is to find yourself a nice "walking stick." If the street dogs give your pooch a hard time, a defensive wallop will be something they'll respect. Also, there has been some advice in the past on this site on the protocol in taking your dog over the I've been savoring Pablo's fare on Playa Manzanillo for a few trips now. Pablo's restaurant is right next to Leave the airport and head towards downtown GDL. Take the Pereferico (signs say Colima), run a couple miles then turn again following the signs to Colima. Once outside of GDL take the quoto or toll road to Colima. The tolls are about $30.00usd with 3 stops total. The road is nice and takes from 3.5 to 5 hours. you will travel by Ciudad Guzman, Nevado de Colima, Colima and Manzanillo but are all bypassed. Plenty of gas stations and restrooms along the way. I drive it almost every month. There is a huge plus to using the toll road. We had a donkey jump out and hit him with the car. The toll road paid to fix our car and paid the tow fees. I swear I was not drunk and I never knew donkeys could run Apart from semana santa april is way slow here. Any 'hood' in Pto is as safe as one makes it. 				Dear Doodah, Cisco's Amigos clinics have been in La Manz since March of 2003. Over 700 dogs and cats have been spayed and neutered here. I don't have an exact number but many animals have been transported to La Manz over the years from both Melaque and Barra. In November of 2005 we did our first clinic in Melaque. So far almost 500 dogs and cats have been brought by their owners, neighbors or friends to be spayed and neutered. Help in transporting animals to the clinic has been a huge factor. Even here in the small town of La Manz many owners need help in getting to the clinic. 				Wow, how to answer this one Doc. There is indeed a state border dispute that is going on and has been going on for years now in certain areas of the border between the states of Colima and Jalisco. The peninsula that separates Laguna Navidad from the ocean where Playa de Cocos, the Isla Navidad Resort (golf course, marina, hotel), Ejido de la Culebra and the town of Colimilla are located is one of the disputed areas. There are also other areas in the hills - far from current new development - that are under dispute and apparently have been for sometime as well. As to land title, one would assume that if one bought a property that was on the official land registry record as being in Jalisco state and

Both times the trips were smooth, coming and going. When you rent your car ask for directions to Barra, we did and the guy at our rental gave us a decent map and highlighted the road. It is pretty easy to get out of the airport and on your way. Watch the signs for Colima. There is one sign exit by a University that is confusing but you shouldnt have any problems. We had kids so he recommended we take the toll road instead of the free one. Take the toll road, it is great and like Flick says plenty of rest stops and places for food. Some nice views especially up in the hills/mountains. The roads are in good shape (least in If you are looking for something a little different to do, come see us at the Sea Master Wed. night from 7 - 9 only. A small cover charge applies. This is Marco's last gig with me this month as he has to head to the dreaded north lands to work on a cd for a band called Prism. We are delighted to announce that we will have Barb Chamberlain from Whitehorse sitting in as a guest. She will be playing a number of her original songs. Barb is a very talented Singer/Songwriter with 2 cd's out. She kicks .. butt. We will be doing one entire set of JAZZ then Barb will play a few and then we will do a mixed set of rock, blues, pop, and jazz, ok, it is possible i will also have to do one or two country tunes, they just seem to insist. They are just two really different areas. They both offer "good and bad" for everybody. The Zicatela area is more of a wide open beach with waves like your Ocean Beach whereas the Rinconada/Bococho area has a small bay. Carrizalillo with nice swimming and about 186 stairs to get there. It makes for a good excuse for one more beer. The Point area of Zicatela has kinda nice swimming unless there is a large swell pushing through and the restaurants at the point are nice as well. It is a bit of a hike from Zicatela (a couple miles or a little more on nice white sand) but that is where the excuse for an extra beer raises its head again. The "Zicatela Drag" is always a happening place. Lots of Pixie is packing, however. Zicatela is busier (if there is such a thing in Puerto) and buildings are closer together. There is the strip that is non-stop hotel, restaurant, bar, tourist shop, and so on. On in the Rinconada area it is more spread out and a lot of the homes are vacation homes. There are less businesses and only a few restaurants. As you get closer to Manzanillo you get into a more populated area and from there around the La Agencia (kind of a town square public area). I've chichago frank a.k.a huatulco travel office: The last I looked, over three weeks ago, the Honda dealership is out of business. It appears the former owner is now selling furniture and kitchen fixtures in the same location. It does however look like they are still servicing motorcycles next door in their repair facility. As far as prices go, the scooter I have for sale sells new for almost 30,000 pesos. You are correct about the Kawasaki dealership, They have a number of new hmmm...I can generalize it for you. The Point area is earthy and relatively quiet. Collectivos are 30p at night so you don't have to walk it. Zicatela is busy and a lot of fun. A good world representation of surfers. Great upbeat nightlife...very noisy if you want to crash early. Rinconada/Carrizalillo is upscale. Pretty quiet, good restaaurants and expensive. Don't walk on the beach at night, maybe sitting in view of someplace that's open. I worry about the cops more than banditos. The farmers market is something to visit, but I wouldn't make that When I lived in Huatulco I owned an 'Italika' 200 that I bought from the local Elektra. The cost was about 20 thousand pesos. I rode it around town and to work every day for about a year and never had any problems with it. The build quality wasn't the same as one of the Big 4 from Japan, but it was good enough for putting around the local area. I took it to the local mechanic a couple of times Anyone who knows Nan will also know that she doesn't need any more compliments about her knowledge of all things Barra de Navidadian, her organisational skills and her generosity, but here goes anyway... 12358	12	Flick	Re: Fishing Tourney	Wow, thanks for all the info folks, Puerto Bill especially for taking the time to write all that out. I'm definitely an "early2bed" kind of guy, I wake up normally around 730-8am if it's warm out, a little later if it's cold (like it is here in California right now). I probably won't go to one bar while in PE, though I will mix many drinks. Morning Beach crowd is much more our cup of tea. I gotta say I'm kinda drawn to staying in this Rinconada area, maybe it's because I already have a place reserved in zicatela and the grass is always greener.. njscott, I will Don't forget the Tomzap Party is not to far off, Feb 13 at Don Bigotes on the beach . Don Bigotes is just a bit down the beach toward Barra from the old Bigotes . Tell all your friends and neighbors that this will be a fun day as usual, Do you mean like an internet cafe you can walk into? Yes, there are several scattered all over the town. They usually charge 10 to 15 pesos an hour. Or do you mean is there a high-speed Internet service provider? Yes, you can get connected to ADSL with TelMex. I used TelMex Prodigy dial-up when I lived Okay, this is what I'd like to do and I'm finding conflicting info: I find that I have any where between 90 days or 180 days to get my menaje de casa approved in order to bring my booty into Mexico duty free. I also read in one area that to be 'duty free' the goods have to be used (6 months or older). I guess I could postpone the trip and buy the new goods now. I guess I can confirm this with my local Mexican Consulate who will be approving the Menaje. My thought was to buy a used 17' U-Haul van to haul everything down. Now I've found that there may be restrictions as to what I can drive across the border. One site said the vehicle can't have a gross weight exceeding 7000#. Another site said the vehicle Hey Cal T, I am actually coming to Puerto In Feb. via Guatemala.$419 rt NYC-GUA return HUA-NYC.Spending first night in Antigua and the weekend at the Lago de Atitlan with a morning in Chichi(via a 185cc dirt bike-spectacular drive).From the lake I'm gonna take a shuttle to San Cristobal, leaves 6AM and arrives at about 2pm, crossing the border at La Mesilla.I have crossed there before, it is a pretty small town.Was hassled once on the Mexican side, they wanted a keep my chickens, but always has been uneventful,even driving. A shuttle to Tapachula would be a little shorter but the one bus leaves later and takes longer than SC, and I would rather have an afternoon in SC.Then I will take the overnight bus SC to PE and arrive in Puerto at 7AM. Total Cost-cab for Just for the record CT, I'm 60 my wife is 51, & Rinconada bored the hell out of us. We stayed there because we had listened to all the garbage about problems on Zicatela, & how you couldn't swim there, et al. BS! We spent the day there on the beach (and swam); ate lunch at Arco Iris,Tabachin, Hotel Santa Fe, Cafecito, et al; beers on the beach; sunset; cab back to Carrizalillo to shower & change; cab to dinner (sometimes back on Zicatela or the Adoquin); then cab back home. In retrospect, why not just stay someplace on the SE side of town closer to all the action & dispense with most of the cab rides? I found the smaller bays that everyone touts for swimming on the NW side of town fine for an early Too bad. I know it works elsewhere, & they told me it works in Huatulco, so I just I am on Zicatela right now, having stayed in the harbor area (main beach) and Bacocho in the past...all charming and different as Puerto Bill explained. April will be HOT. It's hot right now,as a matter of fact, and the mercado is uphill from the beach. Taxis are only 20 pesos, buses only a few pesos, so your gf will probably use these after she makes that hike once or twice! 12374	5	bigwhitegoose	cost	Hi again.I am in the USA(don't hate me) How much is a cold beer on the beach? Tasty lunch? High-end upscale dinner w/drinks? Thanks y'all. Location in Puerto is a question of personal taste. We stay near Manzanillo Beach which is a short walk to the Adoquin and to the Rinconada and Carizallilo Beach (our favorite). It's very quiet at night which we like. Stayed one year on Zicatela and found it very noisy. There is one road and I could hear the cars going back and forth all night. Also found the water too dangerous for swimming at Zicatela. We go to Carizallilo most days and it is rarely crowded, though it will be mobbed at Easter from what I've heard. Also found the mosquitos worse at Zicatela, at least at the Arco Iris where we were staying. Once or twice a week we walk or cab it to Zicatela for dinner or some music. Very cheap and easy to Nice here in Puerto this sunday evening. only a few people on zicatela but it is in no way crowded. Attended the Blues briefly last evening, but I left early as montecuma was still working his revenge on me. Ran into Dennis and Debbie Miller yesterday, she's just in and they were kyaking out to see the whales which were frolicking off the faro. Sunset and drinks this evening at Connie and Rogers place, Cas de Magua over by Casa de Dan, great view of zicatela and the new We own bikes here in Huatulco, husband rides his often. Most folk don't drive around here in such a large rig, and you cannot sell it easily because it's on your visa...thus it is a huge and thirsty daily driver. Just think about angle parking that rascal in front The problem, slight as it may be, with mosquitoes at the Arco Iris may be somewhat unique to that hotel and maybe are others like it. By that I mean that the Arco is surrounded by grass that they water all the time. Mosquitoes love to hang out in wet grass. I do not think there is a larger mosquito problem on Zicatela as compared to anyplace else. Having said that if there was one mosquito in Puerto it would find me. I use Off Family Protection. It is a good product and has a variety of different doses of Deet (N-diethyl-m-toluamide). As low as 5% I think. For sure 7%. For comparison's sake there are products that	215

12377	6	Hibiscus	Re: wireless high speed intern	Is there anyplace in Barra to do laundry? Or have it done for us? I would bet your husband has a road bike for his 40-50 mile rides at home. A mountain bike works best in Huatulco. It would not be a bad idea to bring a mountain bike down with him. If he does not have one it would be possible to buy a $400-$500 Trek 4300 or something close (I know it's not the best bike but these models work well) and then he could sell it before he leaves. I am sure that the local bike shop guys would buy it in a second. They think that Treks are Thanks for the info, Bill! But now an even more intense blast has struck in Asia, dropping temperatures to record lows in some areas that even in normal winter seasons experience harsh weather. What is responsible for this? Ironically, it could be a weakening of north-south currents in both the Atlantic and the Pacific, caused by last summer's record arctic melt. If so, this weather could mean that we are closer than ever to extreme changes of the kind predicted in Superstorm and the film the Day After Tomorrow. Well, it depends on how old your dishwasher is, what settings you use, and how you would wash the dishes by hand. Studies are showing more and more that, when used to maximize energy-saving features, modern dishwashers can outperform all but the most frugal hand washer. If you currently wash dishes by hand and fill sinks or plastic tubs with water, it's pretty easy to figure out whether you would use less water with a dishwasher. Simple measure how much water it takes to fill the wash and rinse containers. If you wash dishes by hand two or three times a day, you might be surprised to find out how much water you're currently using. Newer dishwashers use only 3 to 10 gallons per cycle. 				This is along the lines of the recent post "Re: FM-3, Menaje de Casa, allowable vehicles" in regards to Sparks comment about vehicles and nationalization. We are going to immigration to get our FM3s because obviously the ones we received in the US from the Mexican Consulate have to be registered. Which we have been told means we have to completely re-apply. We were told to inquire about how to keep our car in Mexico or take it over the border at immigration. (?) I am confused about the vehicle permits. What are the options for having a vehicle in Mexico? 1.) Getting a permit at the border & return w/in 6 mos? 2.) Nationalization (how to do it?) 3.) Leaving the vehicle in Mexico to use. 4.) ...go to the life guard office and report to captain Godofredo!!! Whether he's a guard or not it will be dealt with. 				Hello, I stopped in Puerto Escondido when travelling by boat and spent a couple of days in January 2007 while a guest aboard the boat of some friends. I would like to return on my own via airplane travel and spent a week or so for some fishing and relaxing. One concern I have is showing up to my motel with a load of fishing gear and luggage and becoming an instant target for someone to break into my room and steal things when I am away. Do you see this as a potential problem in certain areas of town? If so, what areas would be best to stay away from to lessen the risk of something like this happening. If there are some problem areas, what would you suggest as good areas to stay at to lessen	1361

12754	12	sidonie	visiting in March	I have the schedule for the Autlan Carnaval now. The first day of Carnaval is Saturday, January 26th and the last day, Martes de Carnaval, is Tuesday, February 5th. The bull fights (Corridas Formales) will be held starting at 4:30 pm February 2, 3, 4 and 5. The do not yet have the venues for the ticket sales published. We will be running an overnight tour to Carnaval Autlan leaving the coast in the morning on Tuesday, February 5th and coming back in the late afternoon of Wednesday, February 6th. This will give everyone the chance to enjoy the last and busiest day of Carnaval, including: - The toros de once and the parade from the square to the plaza de toros at 11:30 AM. - The bull fight L.T. 12854	5	inspector hound	Re: Incident on Playa Zicatela	Whatever ATM I go to, my financial institution charges me a flat 3$ Cdn, whatever the amount withdrawn, so maybe it's not the Mexican bank which is the culprit. To answer a previous comment, the Banamex on Perez Gasca will be generous with 500p denominations, the ATM on the Adoquin which I use less never gave me more than 200p, but maybe I was lucky. I've been coming to Puerto for the last 9 years and never have used anything other than ATMs. I bring about 1500p from home for the first days and that's it. I always go to ATMs on banking hours, so after my withdrawal, I just walk right in the bank to change for smaller denominations. In some banks, if you tell the attendant you only want to exchange pesos for pesos, you might even be put in the fast lane. But most Sparks, Did you vet these kids like you do the gringo groups here trying to do good works??? I hope they get what they are after...and you might help them get there with this post. But, the next time you diss the efforts of well intentioned folk from the north trying to help the locals, please apply the same standard of qualifications that you imposed on these children prior to giving your whole hearted support....or you should be ashamed. 				The thread you reference does not make one think poorly of the asker but rather makes one wonder about the deafening silence coming from those being questioned. I think it is totally appropriate to question those that do anything in the name of a non-profit whether it be hosting an event or selling raffle tickets. Is it appropriate to corner little kids selling raffle tickets or girl scout cookies? Of course not! Is it reasonable to ask an adult running a Krispy Kreme donut sale who is benefitting and what portion is going to the charity? Absolutely. The same goes for businesses that host charitable events, typically they announce (loudly) what their contribution (sacrifice) is to the cause. Charitable functions here, in Barra, are a cornerstone of Barra for over forty years. There is no way that Hugo and Pedro would ever intentionally overcharge any of their customers. These guys have a great reputation and they are honest business people. Their kitchen is small and it's amazing the number of quality meals that come out of that small kitchen. It sounds odd that they would even have a wine that costs I was just at SeaMaster tonight and noted that on the menu they have bottles of regular Absolute vodka and lemon flavoured for 750 pesos per bottle and based on that the wine would only need to retail in a store for about 600 to 700 pesos to mark up to 1800 pesos. I saw a bottle of champagne listed on their menu tonight for 1400 pesos. It is normal business practices for restaurants and bars. It is a great party, will be my third one. Jim

If it is a controlled substance you'll need to visit a doctor here, show him your medication and number of refills. Most likely you will be given an examination and it may cost you a tad more but most likely you'll be given a new script for your medications.. If it is controlled be sure you keep one copy of the prescription to I personally think that the Mayflower hotel/hostel is hard to beat, centrally located with free wireless Internet, lockers and a very nice kitchen. It is German owned and managed and you will not find a cleaner one in town, I would not maybe InfoMan meant the license FRAMES, which could have said 'Toluca'. Terminal 2 is operating. The only Major Carriers operating are AeroMexico and Delta. I think the others are AeroMar and some other small Mexican Carrier. T2 is realtively easy to navigate. I like it far better than T1...because there are hardly any Carriers using it right now. It will probably become a pain once more Carriers are moved in. If you fly in on either Delta or AM and connecting to AM or Delta, it is a snap to make a connection in T2...but AeroMexico does have a route to PE or Huatulco that I know of (I only know of Click having that route Hey all, I'll see ya down here soon. Fly and drive safe, we need you here on the 13th of February. Don't forget, Bigote's has moved one block to the east. Marta what about the Fiat dealership and Volvo dealership.. If you have a Mexican bank account, simply wire the money from any bank in the US. I do this all the time and it arrives almost instantly (if operation is done before 1pm EST). Walmart is another option...never used them so I'm not sure For those of you who don't know the name "Luis Gasca," be advised he is known as "the Miles Davis of Latin jazz," although his playing is not like Miles. He has be featured on some 200 albums, has at least a half-dozen under his own name, and would be among the hottest names in jazz if he wasn't such a (former) wildman. He's spent a lot of time in Puerto, too. Here's some info on him: Luis Gasca hasn't always been so inconspicuous. This dude knows his way around a map having toured with some of the biggest names in music. Whatever your cup of tea; Jazz, Latin, or Rock and Roll, Luis has had his hand in it. Between 1954 and today, Gasca has worked with countless musicians from Count Basie and Woody Herman to Mongo Santamaria, Herbie Hancock, Janis I think there is one small and hard to see sign that says "connecting flights" somewhere in the vicinity of where to go. A lot of people seem to miss it as did I my first time but last year I was just really careful not to miss it. Obviously it isn't an ideal set up. There will also be a line for Mexican Nationals and Foreigners. Mucho garcias. Vic All the better reason for you to stay there and be miserable, oh, and share your

				Spent 2 weeks in Puerto last year at Easter with my 2 kids 11 and 16, one week before and 1 after. Except for Easter weekend it really wasn't much different than any other time. It wasn't bad at all, Zicatela was a little crazy with young toughs drinking and sleeping, but I enjoyed the festive atmosphere. Playa Principal was a sight to behold on Easter, but sitting up at Alicia's watching the madness was I have one of the smaller dishes if you want it. With the LNB, it's 500 pesos.

They normally open in the evening @ 7pm I think. Vago has TV so I will ask him when we arrive Thursday. If he plans to open early and show the game I will post info here. 5:18 Kick off time in Melaque is what I'm coming up with. Is that correct? Who is your team Tom? I'm always up for a friendly wager. I'm not a huge NFL fan.....in Canada You want to 'relax' or to 'invigorate'? Choose one harhar. But i wouldn't show up without a RES in hand during semana santa. I bet more families travel to PE than any other time. But Playa Principal often has little kids. They speak spanish mostly, which won't matter to the tyke. Might to you, but try communicating with the parents anyway. Pack a scooper and a bucket, does he even need company then? You can't show me the kid who ever said MOM, i'm tired of the beach and i wanna go hooooome! Riptides are not the issue for once, cuz 5 yr olds should only get wet up to their knees. And parents ordinarily can't go out far because their 5 yr old is on the beach. Right? 				Unless you are going to be in Mexico for a long stay another option is to just pack your reels and rent a rod from any of the boat captains. I have done this at several fishing destinations and have also bought inexpensive lures on ebay and traded them with boat captains for a rod usage during my stay. Most of the boat captains confirm Phatbiker's info that Utah does have his own place close to the the Laguna del Tule complex. He doesn't remember the name of the place. What about packing your reels and taking your rod(s) as carry-on in a tube? The flight attendants will usually stick them in the coat closet if your tube is too long for the overhead. This is common traveling to/from Alaska. If they cannot accommodate your tube in the main cabin they can gate-check it like they do strollers. I have never been charged to gate check items that exceeded my baggage allowance. I WILL APRECIATE THAT YOU hello, do you have a phone number were i can call you, if not i will give you my Actually, the whole reason I posted was to tell you the fair is usually in March, Nan, I am confused. Was this email intended for someone else? While I have your ear; is there a new hotel in Barra called Casa Club? Not sure of the hotel name. I'd like to know since my sister-in-law & family made reservations (and shelled out more than $2,000 USD ... credit card) for a three day stay. Checked My husband and I stayed there in early June 2006. Nice apartment. The waves crash quite loudly in the early mornings, but we enjoyed it. If it is hot and humid though you'll really want the AC that they don't have. It was unusually hot and humid when we stayed there (according to the locals) and we had water dripping from the fans positioned around the living area! It's also changed ownership Try contacting them directly ... hotelsanfelipe AT yahoo.com. I heard they were -- moved topic -- One other note -- margaritas and daquiris are served at a price of 2 for 1 during my gigs. Yes, there is a cover charge of 30 pesos, but as long as you drink the 2 for 1 drinks YOU virtually "break even" on the first drink, but ... the musicians get paid. ps. You don't have to have a full dinner, you are equally welcome to come only for drinks. pss. They make some of the best strawberry marg's I've ever tasted. psss. These drinks go well "on the rocks" too. Although the blender is on Spoolmark We are more soccer fans than anything else but for some reason my daughter has become a bit of a football fan. I will probably root for NE since I have friends who are rabid NE fans. We will probably be at Ava's also. Tom Xochimilco is the "canal district."	1408
13331	5	driftplastic	Re: DF runs short of water	Hola I am trying to find out how to get from Colima to PV in one day. I believe that I can take a bus from Colima to Manzanillo leaving at 10am taking 1:20 hours travel time. My schedule says that there is a Cihuatlan Bus leaving Manzanillo at 12n and taking 4:30 hours travel time. Can anyone tell me if this Good day to all, i am moving down to their after the federal Government sends me my tax refund and my divorce is final, hopefully by may 2008. I have been reading this page for some time just to get a feel for the folks down their, and i must admit you guys sound very cool and know what your talking about. I have been in contact with a person who is renting out their house they gave me a price for one year lease, but what i really need to know is how do i check to find out if this person is legit or not? I have the folks name who are renting to me Here's a page about our recent visit to the Coffee Coop in the mountains behind La Huerta. http://sparks-mexico.com/costalegre/cuzalapa/index.html We decided to return a different way and ended up in Santiago Colima. There were a few 'Y's' in the road that might have brought us out somewhere else but the maps we had were terrible. The road was bad enough for my car and then we hit this river to forge - but we made it. The 3 of them didn't want to get washed away - so I dont' know if that bus is still running but there are buses almost hourly from Manzanillo, however you are looking at more than 5 hours from Manzanillo to PV in a bus longer still if it goes into Tomatlan. A taxi ride would be very expensive, I am not sure of an exact price but at least £3000pesos i would have There has to be an earlier bus than 10am. I'd just check at the Colima station and probably leave as early as you want. A number of buses leave daily from Manzanillo to Vallarta. Just check the schedules when there and try for an hello bonnie this is my e-mail, for you can send me your picture. paloma-bp@hotmail.com i will tank you so much that you seend me the picture. gracias thanks for the info , i'll try that how's the condition of the beaches in Melaque after last summers storm? was If you have a fridge you want to get rid of, in reasonable working condition, give me a call or leave a message at 355-7403.	234

				You DID see hotel staff getting on buses. But the buses are restricted to hotel staff. I generally was paying 30 pesos to get out to Residential Conejos earlier this month but a couple of cabbies held out for 35 and after 10 pm, the price went to 40. Taxi drivers are not usually tipped in Mexico, and if their syndicate really is responsible for the loss of the micro system, then I certainly don't feel obliged to reward them for their dis-service. Despite the higher price you'll pay for cabs, the peace and privacy offered by staying in R Conejos make it well

But while the route from Playa Principal to Playa I first heard of Puerto Escondido in 1983 when friends of mine were seperated from us in Mexico city. We headed to Puerto Vallarta and they got lost and ended up in Puerto Escondido. For years they couldnt stop talking about it. I had always wanted to go there after that, last dec we finally did. I found PE breathtaking. So much so that we are buying property there. We started to look when we were there but fell short of time. We left friends there who (if you can believe actually take 3 months off a year and tour around this year they ended up in PE and like us..that was it. They were home. 				UN: Climate Change May Cost $20 Trillion UNITED NATIONS (AP) - Global warming could cost the world up to $20 trillion over two decades for cleaner energy sources and do the most harm to people who can least afford to adapt, U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon warns in a new report. Ban's report provides an overview of U.N. climate efforts to help the 192-nation General Assembly prepare for a key two-day climate debate in mid-February. That debate is intended to shape overall U.N. policy on climate change, including how nations can adapt to a warmer world and ways of supporting the U.N.-led negotiations toward a new climate treaty by 2009, U.N. officials said

The Carnival Committee had indicated that the ballet would dance at 8pm. Something we are trying to teach the young members of the group is to be punctual. As some of you may have noticed, at 7pm there was nobody at the square and no music at the stage. About quarter to eight, the sound finally started. It was 9:30 when the dance instructor indicated that the ballet was going home without dancing. All the members were very sad because they live for the dance; however, they were happy that Memo, the dance instructor had made that decision. Memo was very upset because the members of the committe had John, you are correct, Charlie Diver was a very valuable poster on this website. His information was good and useful, and while I never did meet him, next time I head on down, I will definately seek him out to say hello. I was wondering why Hey Dennis it's 71 at 0630 here today, probably about 110 degrees warmer than where you are flying in your cub. Have you looked into the exhaust system and fuel flow meter? How about a timer to remind you to shut off the fuel transfer pump? I've been giving Dennis advice about running his Cub. The fact that I haven't owned a Cub in 20 years or flown one in almost 10 years doesn't stop me from trying to tell Dennis how to run an airplane that he has owned for 25+ years and flown for over 22000 hours. 13722	5	Puerto Bill	Re: Jellyfish?	Hi I'm Manuel Ramos From RM Security Services I'm proud to announce all of you that my company the first and only one Security Company located in Costalegre Area at Cihuatlan Jalisco. Its now offering monitoring services for alarm systems, if you already have alarm system and monitoring, you can change to us for only 200.00 Pesos x month. No 200 pesos x month, Its the lowest rate in the market and we are the only Security Company in the area that have offices in cihuatlan, so we can provided services, guarantee and personal immediately. if you don't have any alarm system, we can provided the best system at the best price and we give you two month of monitoring for free. We Thanks for the comments. To Jay Allen, you might like to see some other shots of birds that I have posted. I am trying to organise my picasa shot to help bird watchers - grouping them by what you are likely to see where around Melaque. I still have a lot of owrk to do on it, but let me know what you think. To Spoolmak: Could well have been, or lilac crowned parrots (don't have them yet, but they are around). To Tim: I used your old email address. Hope it still works. To Nan: yes, its great, I see far too many in cages!! To JackSpratz: I am really new to bird watching, but if you get out early and wander around you can't fail to bump into some. I have found them to be wonderful people, so helpful to a beginner like Sorry - forgot to post the links to my web photos. Here they are: Web albums: http://picasaweb.google.com/hplattBC/ http://www.flickr.com/photos/hplatt/	16
13723	12	Meme	Alarm Monitoring only $200. P	For several weeks locals have been telling me about a caiman in the canal at the west end of town. I live close and have been watching - so I was beginning to doubt them. They even say it ate a small dog a few weeks ago - right! This Wow! Thanks Howard. I will stay away from there when walking my dog. Just think about it...the average good burglary takes 3 minutes, in and out...now, let's add iron grills, locked doors, etc...estimated time up to 15 minutes for slow guys...maybe 25 minutes for dumb slow ones... now...the alarm rings the call center, and they call the cop shop in cihuatlan...then they call one of the trucks with the guys with the automatic weapons in the back...if they are not at lunch. when the control center can reach the guys in the truck, they go to your house to catch the bad guys... any guesses on the ETA (estimated time of arrival) of the There's a gob of semi-not-slow internet cafes in Roca Blanca right now, and they does anyone have a phone number for Rocktavio"s? You're invited to come and see Ballet Folklorico Xalixco of Barra de Navidad performing dances of four different states on Friday February 8th outside the San Felipe Church at 8:30 p.m. The church is located in the Barrio Nuevo of Barra de Navidad, two blocks east of the soccer field on the corner of Oceano Indico and Ejidatarios. This is a church celebration and everybody is welcomed.	5
13739	12	Jay Allen	Re: Finally got them!!	The presentation will be on the street; therefore, there's no entrance fee. Come I have come across at least two different types of jellyfish in Puerto. I have heard both referred to as Mal Agua. One type is the kind in the photo by freightdog at February 01, 2008 08:39AM. The other kind are very small and very hard to see. They sting pretty good but not horrible. For me they leave welts and itch for a few days like mosquito bites except you can have 10-30 or more stings in one area but usually 1-3-4 little stings. I wouldn't worry to much about anaphalactic shock with these annoying little things. Sometimes there can be a lot in the water for a few days at a time and sometimes there is only one here and there. The bigger jelly fish like the ones in the photo I have never had a problem with. They Leave plenty of time for your US plane change. Another great accomplishment of the Bush admin. 19314	12	sparks	Re: Bungalow for three weeks	I have learned thru the years that simple over stretching adds to the amount of injuries in surfing. You would think that any half smart person would understand that if you stretch the tendons and muscles past their normal mode > range that they lose the elasticity allowing the limbs to pass their designed range further than normal into an unsupported extension that can cause damage especially in the back. Don't stretch past 3/4 range. If you do when you get whacked (and you will) by a big one it (the wave) will bend whatever part of your body to hyper extension, stretching to much will significantly diminish your protection in the	7
