Unless you are naturalized (have Mexican citizenship) you can not legalize anything. With a FM3 you can bring down 1 vehicle and drive forever or as long as you have the FM3 you need no plates from the states or Mexico insurance is required though. You can temporarily import a vehicle for 6 months on a 180 day tourist visa. The vehicle stays with your FM3 in the Aduana computer. The vehicle imported on your FM3 can be any year no regulations other than it has to get you there and have Mexican Insurance. On the U.S. side of the border at Ajo, Arizona, it would have taken 72 hours to do the vehicle check to clear it for legalizing it in Mexico. We were in a hurry so we walked over to the Mexican side. We did need to have a Mexican name to do the paperwork on that side. My nephew from Puerto Angel faxed his I.D. to the office on the Mexican side. With that we got the paperwork and paid I think maybe $400. We went on our merry way. Some people were so frustrated and angry that they almost seemed to be frothing. Everyone who contacted me expressed the belief that Crews has been able to remain in Puerto by bribing those who make the decisions. More than a few talked about pedophilia and money laundering. 				To my friends who enjoy a glass of wine.... And those who don't. As Ben Franklin said: In wine there is wisdom, In beer there is freedom, In water there is bacteria. In a number of carefully controlled trials, scientists have demonstrated That if we drink 1 liter of water each day, at the end of the year we would have absorbed more than 1 kilo of Escherichia coli, (E. Coli) - bacteria found in feces. In other words, we are consuming 1 kilo of poop. However, we do NOT run that risk when drinking wine & beer (or tequila, rum, whiskey or other liquor) because alcohol has to go through a purification process of boiling, filtering and/or We spent the month of November here and had a great time. 				This is interesting . . . Margarine was originally manufactured to fatten turkeys. When it killed the turkeys, the people who had put all the money into the research wanted a payback so they put their heads together to figure out what to do with this product to get their money back. It was a white substance with no food appeal so they added the yellow coloring and sold it to people to use in place of butter. DO YOU KNOW.. The difference between margarine and butter? Read on to the end...gets very interesting! Both have the same amount of calories. Butter is slightly higher in saturated fats at 8 grams compared to 5 grams. Eating margarine can increase heart disease in women by 53% over HOLA AMIGOS!! Just a reminder of tonight's event at the square in Barra de Navidad. 				Hanging in hammocks. Who works? Not to offer a loaded response to a potentially loaded question, but it may, among other factors, have to do with the type of Americans that also find Puerto appealing. We all crave the winter escape to Mexico when the snow sets in, but the type of people, regardless which side of the 49th you call home, that end up in Puerto have consciously looked for something beyond the all inclusive enclaves of Cancun, Vallarta, etc. There are certainly a good deal of canucks enjoying those experiences as well, but I have found that the type of tourist who enjoys PE enjoys a slow pace, genuine culture, hosts who actually speak Spanish, and an intact ecology to break up the cervezas or whatever intoxication

35129	13	scribegirl	Semana Santa Yelapa Yoga F	We're off to a great start at the 4th annual spay/neuter clinic in the Casa Ejidal in Salagua. Yesterday, our first day, we did 48 animals and today we will have completed 65!!! If you still want to come out and volunteer, PLEASE come. The clinic runs until next Tuesday and we need people throughout the day, especially I have myself and one other for the afternoon shift on Tuesday. I have room for two more in my Jeep so if anyone from Barra/Melaque wants to volunteer they I have myself and another volunteer for the Manzanillo clinic this Tuesday, afternoon shift. We are leaving here about noon and we have room for two more people in my Jeep so if anyone else can volunteer they can ride with us. This drink is rumored to be a cure for a hangover and is frequently served at breakfast time. Even though the drink has a milky appearance it is completely dairy-free. History According to Sophie Coe in America's First Cuisine's, horchata was an old-world drink brought to the new world by the Spaniards and later enjoyed too by the Aztecs. In Spain horchata was made with with ground melon seeds but given the seeds were not available in the new world the Spaniards substituted the readily available squash seeds.	728

				Lower your acquisition of material things. Lower your current lifestyle and unnecessary spending. Learn to live in a way that allows you to save 20% of your annual income. Learn to live with less than you have, then the little luxuries mean more. Learn that impressing, with material things, those around you only makes them jealous and fearful of you. For example, you don't NEED to see the I am a General Manager of a Envelope Cie. I found PE 8 years ago and every year i am back for a month. Every year my wife and i planned to go somewhere else but at the last minute it is always the same story. What is our needs...We want sun not rain, in PE we win 100%, we want to relaxed and not bullshit or be bullshitting by people around, in PE we win 100%. Every year we meet new people, maybe we are lucky but it is always very nice people. We want a safe place, in PE we win 99%. And this year we will be back, we dont discuss anymore about going somewhere else, it is our place, it is your place. We love to see Gina and give her a kiss, we love to see David and her mother at the Mini super and all the people around (always the same people)we love to see the Thanks Lamar.

Well Hugo Morett and All the Morett family want to invite You to the Grand opening of BAR DE LAS ESTRELLAS in the corner of Calle Guanajuato and Mazatlan.. Live music mellow ambiance It is worth a try!! Starting This post is in aid of what may be the last organized Tenacatita trip on the Sea Hawk for the winter season. We currently have seven (7) people that really want to go this Tuesday and we need at least five (5) more to run the trip and have space for nine (9) more in total so if you have been thinking about it... As an added attraction in addition to the beer, soft drinks and water we will have some rum and tequila (Herradura) on board for the return home or at least after snorkeling. As an additional added attraction I had the Sea Hawk out on a private charter to Tenacatita Monday and the trip that left at 9:30 am turned into a sunset cruise because they saw lots of whales on the way home and stopped We had another tour up to Cuзалapa yesterday so we just brought down another shipment of dark roast coffee in beans and ground meaning that we once again have both sizes (1/2 kilo and 1/4 kilo) and both versions (beans and ground) in re-sealable bags. We got caught a bit short there as people stocked up to go home and ran out of the 1/4 kilo bags. We also have some more of their great tasting honey for sale. The big jars are all gone already but we have some smaller jars left. Some people have taken a print out of the price list with the description of Cuзалapa to give with the coffee as a gift. Hey Mike how you Steve, I wish I could meet you in person, unfortunately I am in North Carolina and don't know when I'll be to the Costa Alegre again. Geez Frank, I should have gagged and bound you when I met you this summer and called Wayne!!!!!!!!!! The majority of people using this site are looking for good constructive information to help them make good choices and to make their trip to Huatulco either by road or air a pleasant experience. You have made so many stupid statements and people not knowing you give you the benefit of the doubt. I would like to caution everyone reading posts on this site to ignore your stupidity, and suggest to you that if you can ever find any one to carry that Yeh I have met the rightful owner of the property. However that 5000 did not cover legal papers for each individual property. Just permission to dwell in their respective condo, a limbo with permission. I just wondered if they have gotten the surveys in and the plats done properly. That is a completely different story. Having just recovered from reading Franks idiotic posts I would like to now share with those of you who are intending to drive to Huatulco, my experience. We drove from Alberta, Canada in October and have just crossed the border today back in to Canada on our return Journey. We decided that since time was not a priority that we would take the pacific coast route back. Of course, as we all know, the stretch from Huatulco to Acapulco is TOPE HEAVEN!!!! Yes they definately are a pain in you know what, but bearable if you want to see a bit of different country. The coastline is magnificent, long open beaches and very scenic. We found a couple of new RV parks being built along the way which by Dear Tom, As you are aware there are a few people obtaining information under false pretenses. 				We agree. In most of the instances we've heard about in Huatulco, the "revenge" has occurred with home-cooking and is generally NOT a matter associated with restaurants and "puestos de comida" (where most of the staff is very knowledgeable about proper infection control.) When preparing vegetables, salads and fruits at home we: 1) Rinse with filtered water 2-3 times 2) Soak in tincture of iodine 2% solution (10 drops per liter) for 20-30 minutes. Iodine solutions are sold in most pharmacies and markets. 3) Rinse once more to Please let us take a stab at answering some of the questions in the original posting on this matter: 1) Are the prices of condos going down in Huatulco as we struggle with the down turn in the marketplace here and perhaps not as many people are buying? Ans: Prices are apparently rising as values for recently sold units in our development are about 20-25% higher than a year ago. 2) Is there a development that you might recommend? Ans: Sueno del Mar on Bahia Chahue (full disclosure: it is where we live). Why? The contractor (Uli Kaufhold) is a gem and has an attention to detail that is admirable. Also, Sueno del Mar was the first project recently re-opened by PROFEPA. 3) How do you get stateside news for I don't understand why certain people expect Tomzap and his moderators to censure, even somehow 'investigate' what is posted on this site. Do you not understand the nature of the internet? Do you not understand that EVERYTHING on this site must be seen as conjecture, opinion, and perhaps at times lies? This is not the role of Tomzap, but needs to be the role of everyone

				Rentals of ANY thing can cause havoc and danger. Usually people with NO experiance are the ones who rent anything. For example, I have never rented a quad in my life, because the rental models suck. Cheap, underpowered, no handling, ect. Same as a rental surfboard, the're just for kooks. Rental cars, those are another story. Have you ever seen a rental hang glider? I rest my case. Re: Beach Rules and Regulations	"Potato Surprise with Sautéed Vegetables" Here is a marvelously tasty and imaginatively healthy version of a (rather bland!) recipe originally published in The South Beach Diet by Arthur Agatston, M.D. This side dish is a lo-carb replacement for mashed potatoes, and is wonderfully served with any type of meat or fish. Ingredients: 1 small head of cauliflower 2-3 ounces of olive oil 1 heaping tablespoon of soy-based margarine 2-3 white mushrooms, sliced 1-2 thick slabs of bacon, diced into small bits 1 red onion 1-2 plum tomatoes, diced 1 bunch of asparagus, sliced cross-wise into bite-sized pieces 1 sweet red pepper, sliced into bite-sized pieces Herbs & spices: 2-3 teaspoons Cilantro 1-2	362

				If your question pertains to a "foreigner" buying property in Mexico, then it is our understanding that two people may hold title through a Trust agreement with a Mexican-based financial institution. For example, married couples usually hold title in this manner. Another possibility, is for the two persons to form a corporation (in which they share ownership of the stock) that has title to the property (again) through a Trust agreement. These matters generally should be discussed with a competitant attorney who has knowledge of Mexican federal law and state law in which the property is being purchased as well as the laws of

An act of possession is not a title to a property. Only private property has titles, but most of the Oaxacan coast is communal property and individual lots cannot legally be bought or sold by foreigners - unless they form a Mexican corporation which uses the property for lucrative purposes (not as a residence). The situation in Puerto is further complicated by the fact that two municipalities claim jurisdiction over the same land which sometimes makes registering property claims tricky.	911

				Something else to keep in mind: the laws governing communal land were designed to protect them not only from foreigners but also from other Mexicans who do not belong to a particular community. That's why each community has its own "bienes comunales" as opposed to there being titles on the land. In the case of Huatulco, and of Bacocho and Rinconada. and other similar places, the federal government used its power of eminent domain to privatize the land so the parcels could have titles (escrituras). These privatizations were a windfall for a few people who were able to buy the land cheap, and a continuing source of I find it pretty pathetic that 2 guys post under 10 different names and reduce every talking point to rubbish. While these claims may be true to a certain extent, break in is certainly not the time to experiment. Proper break-in of a new ATV engine is an essential aspect to the vehicle's longevity. The key to successful break-in is to ride the quad easy but not so mellow that the rings can't seat within the cylinder. The best way to do this is to combine a high load with low RPM. This can be interpreted loosely, and I know some people form a corporation to buy property for residential purposes. I think if you are planning to buy multiple properties, a corporation may be the way to go. The tax structure is different for a corporation, and I was told that taxes would be higher for a property in a corporation than for one held in a bank trust(fideicomiso). A fideicomiso gives a little extra title protection, because the bank holds the title and does a title search for the property. I don't think all properties offered for sale(ejido land, for example), can be bought with a bank trust because of If the name is not of lineage of a long time beach businessman here than the responsible party has not been arrested. The notary charged about $7,500 pesos and that included the cost of registering the name of the corporation with whatever state agency that does this. After you finish with the notary then within 30 days you need to hire an accountant to get the corporation registered with the appropriate tax offices and departments. One real beach rule, is when a loud tourist gets whalloped by a baseball bat, in front of Merlins store, some one MUST call 911. That's the rule. So bring cell phones to the beach and use them as needed. After all, it's 2009 and the 2010 Sahadi is an expert, I just have a green thumb. That tree started producing guanabana, in it's 4th or 5th year. It's got a sort of hard shell thing that appears, then it breaks open and the guanabana baby is there. At least 20-30 guanabana appear each time the tree decides to grow them. I dunno, it just seems to work. Those guanabana are huge, and work well for making guanabana water, or edible as they are. It's in a hot spot in my yard, no special soil, just dry dirt on the surface with the basic red sandy soil underneath. I was told it wouldn't grow down here, but it's just fine. Just because there is a "scientific basis" for an idea, this does not mean that the idea is proven. Scientific proof, unlike the politics behind it, does not need a majority or a consensus. Global warming has been highly politicized. A majority opinion of environmental "scientists" does not constitute proof. In the 1970s, a popular environmental thought was that the earth was cooling because sunlight was being blocked by environmental pollutants. Thirty years later, the earth is warming because of our emissions. I am not a supporter of the oil industry, and I like the concepts of clean energy. 			A great 2 bedroom apartment for rent in Villa Obregon right on the beach. This large, licensed apt on secure property has a full screened deck facing the water. Long term (5 - 6 month) rental only. Fully furnished (double size beds) with all modern appliances, great kitchen and 1 large bathroom. Mexican cable TV is included. Secure parking for 1 small/medium size vehicle. Also 1 bedroom I suspected as much - the saturation appeared to me to be a little unnatural. It should be easier to identify the birds when the colour is more natural. BTW, programs such as photoshop are very powerful and take quite a bit of dedication to learn to use. 				OK Matt in that case maybe you would know more than the average person how serious this deal might actually be. On Saturday I heard a CNN report (it was about a half hour long I think) where they discussed this outbreak. The report I heard was mainly about how New York was handling it and what was going on there. They said, if I remember correctly, that 70(?) people were sick at that time and that most were not really that sick. At the same time I have heard that about 100 people have died in Mexico City. In your opinion might this be a situation where CNN is downplaying the seriousness so people don't panic or might it be a situation where the people dying in Mexico might not be all that it cracked up

				Swine influenza - update 3 27 April 2009 -- The current situation regarding the outbreak of swine influenza A(H1N1) is evolving rapidly. As of 27 April 2009, the United States Government has reported 40 laboratory confirmed human cases of swine influenza A(H1N1), with no deaths. Mexico has reported 26 confirmed human cases of infection with the same virus, including seven deaths. Canada has reported six cases, with no deaths, while Spain has reported one case, with no deaths. Further information on the situation will be available on the WHO website on a regular basis. WHO advises no restriction of regular travel or closure of borders. It is considered prudent for people who are ill to delay Farkem, I went to the Central Salud first. There was a long line of folks, over fifty folks. I did not have the strength to wait around for hours, and it would have been hours. The Red Cross did not take samples. There can be no confirmed cases if no samples are taken. My guess is all sorts of folks are going in, if your three year old has a fever or runny nose, it must be Swine Flu. The meds I was told to take are tylenol, Redoxon (a vitamen C tablet that dissolves in water), and Electrolitos. Luna, I can send the exact list to you if you want. To me the You might want to also try www.aha-int.com for all your Mexican Insurance. They are very competative and write 6 month plans for expats. LarryB It just may be best to not plant anything and forget it. Leave it to the professionals and don't read about insecticides and chemical fertilizers and herbicides and open a can of food and eat it. Or go to the mercado and buy some tomatoes and think that they were raised by some nice lady in her I just heard there are already 2000 cases and 149 deaths in Mexico. Sorry no I find it quite shocking that the Red Cross isn't taking any cultures-don't they Maybe a shortage of test kits as well?? Hmm Media Rubbish Wallace? With all due respect I do believe your live across the pond.My own opinion is that everyone needs to look at this carefully, depending on their own health issues. This should be a time that we look to provide constuctive information to help others, not make stupid statements or jokes.It may be a one day flu as some have insinuated, however I do not know. I do not work for the WHO ,CDC or any other health organization. This may be State Dept. warns about travel to Mexico WASHINGTON -- The State Department is warning U.S. citizens to avoid nonessential travel to Mexico and those who live in Mexico to avoid hospitals or clinics there unless they have a medical emergency. The department says those who fall ill in Mexico should stay home and call their doctors to avoid exposure to swine flu infection at hospitals. The department's advice was issued Monday evening. It recaps warnings provided earlier by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Give us some contact info. I will be down in June for 10 days. john we heard there was 6. earthquake around aculpoco area anything shaking in A guy on t.v. said that in 1918 it was 2.5 percent of infected people that died. So he figures if 1 percent of the current infected have died, (100 + in mexico) that an estimated 10,000 people have the infection. Even more realistic, if .01 percent of the infected have died, that means there are 100,000 infected in this No. That's a unique spelling of Acapulco. Be sure & get the swine flu rider; pays double indemnity for death. Lewis & Numbers can be fun. Using 2002 data (most recent easily available), Mexico has a population of a little over 100 million. Each year about 470,000 Mexicans die - about 1,290 a day. Each year lower respiratory infections (includes pneumonia/flu but excludes chronic bronchitis) kill about 15,000 Mexican - about 41 a day. Of course pneumonia/influenza deaths are not evenly spread out over the year - they come in clusters. Since mid March there has been a cluster of deaths in Mexico city, which is not really unusual (over 50 days the average number would be 2,000 pneumonia/flu deaths in Mexico) except that this is not the normal season, and the deaths were affecting people younger than expected. Now it is possible to tests to identify the causative agent - and there is I know when I bought my Jeep the prices varied a lot depending on options or model (mine is a Sahara and that cost more), add ons (lift kits, winches, racks etc.), mileage, engine size (mine is a straight 6 and that cost more) and the year Eric, math isn't your strong suit. Stick to artificial reefs, dune buggies, & whore Nice bush land and the pictures of the casa would be where?? According to the CDC, each flu season is unique, but it is estimated that, on average, approximately 5% to 20% of U.S. residents get the flu, and more than 200,000 persons are hospitalized for flu-related complications each year. About 36,000 Americans die on average per year from the complications of flu. These According to the U.S. CDC: Each flu season is unique, but it is estimated that, on average, approximately 5% to 20% of U.S. residents get the flu, and more than 200,000 persons are hospitalized for flu-related complications each year. Yes there is a real bad flu and it has cost some lives , but sometimes the news blows it up and causes a lot of unnecessary worry. Lets hope that it will be contained within the next few months , but until it is stay vigilant and wash hands and avoid large groups of people especially the people who are coughing

				Some will take your appendix before really checking for all the signs. If it hurts here, it's the appendix... Google says the appendix is very hard to determine as the problem without xray, as well as ultrasound, and even some other testing. Many other ailments cause similar signs of appendix pain. They gave us ours in a little cup, and I later found out that I should of taken that little appendix to the lab for a revision to see if it was in fact burst or defective. Without the lab work on the removed organ, we're left wondering if it was all necessary. I say this because my good friend went to the same Dr. as us, and he said they told him the same that they told us. "Your appendix is about to burst, hurry, onto the

FREEDOM is a MUST, not evil men denying education and enslaving women. Big difference, same force to battle for our beliefs. The war, must be won completely, not partially. Or the world will never be the way it can be. I know that will really get FF's brain tumor throbbing. lol Leftover lameness from Insp. Hounds' obsession with http://sdpnoticias.com/sdp/contenido/2009/04/28/385805 The state gov't announced that there is now an information booth on swine flu at the Puerto Escondido airport, among other places in the state. Add Cuba to the list of countries no longer allowing flights in or out of Mexico. I saw a young man on a motor scooter in Puerto today wearing one of those sanitary masks. Unclear on the concept. They say the virus doesn't just hang out in the air. You have to be close to a person who has it to get it. The banks in Mexico City are asking their customers to avoid coming in and to bank by internet instead. When gov. Thanks for the reality of the whole appendicitis thing Delmar, I really don't feel so bad now. I'm going to tell my wife in a minute about what you wrote and we'll both feel better. I had felt like a didn't protect her enough or something along that line. It really bugged me for a year or so since this happened. Maybe because when the Dr. said suddenly, "we have to operate" after just looking at an ultrasound screen, I got dizzy and passed out. lol It wasn't funny though, it sucked to pass out at a time of decision making. Important decision making. So, I was awoken by a piece of cloth with alcohol, I was on a couch looking up into the Dr.s' face and she asked, "can we operate?" I looked down beyond the foot http://biosurveillance.typepad.com/biosurveillance/2009/04/swine-flu-in-mexico-timeline-of-events.html This web site will bring you up today on the swine I flew from Puerto Escondido to Mexico City to LAX April 28. The Puerto Escondido flight left 5 minutes early, unusual. Nearly all the Puerto Escondido airport workers were wearing masks. None of the Click crew members wore masks. I'd guess about 1/4 of the passengers wore a mask - I wore one, the plane was 3/4 full. The air in Mexico City was clearest I've ever seen it, probably because not many cars were driving. All airport workers and agents at MEX were wearing masks. But only about 1/2 of the passengers were. The place was empty, compared to what it is usually like. I was at MEX about 2 hours. The Mexicana flight to LAX left a bit early also. About 1/2 the pax wore masks, one crew member wore one part of the time. I was surprised there weren't more According to the L.A. 				So my doctor here in town says there is a herb to help my kidney stones. She suggested that I take this herb and drink tons of water. The herb makes you pee, alot. Sounds kind of scary, to try and provoke the passing of kidney stones. These things only act up once in a while, with sharp stabbing pains, so I haven't done anything but change my diet. No soda pop (for years I don't allow my family to purchase any soda) and no drinks with orange coloring. (that provokes pain) and no alcohol, but I do eat chiles. Lots of chiles. Those may provoke the pain with the kidney stones. Anyhow, I wish I didn't have them. 5mm was the Dennis, Tamiflu shots will not help against this strain of flu. It is a new mutation.

36709	5	dan j	Re: anyone got the swine flu?	Doodah - you are correct about the 2008 flu shot versions not working for the current swine flu. You are not correct about Tamiflu (= oseltamivir). It's one of 2 anti-viral drugs (pills, not a shot) that have been proven to help "cure" swine flu, and can be used to help prevent it. Refer to a CDC section below. There's simpler explanations elsewhere, but I can't find them now. I'll start taking Tamiflu	265

I have been accused of this (not to my face), many of my American gay expat friends have been accused of this. Nice. Of course, any male I hang out with, gets to be thought of as gay too. I have no idea of "boy-pet's" age. I never seen anyone having sex with "boy-pet". I know of no one who claims to have seen the "boy-pet" having sex with "A Man-With-No-Name". 				I understand the goal. It just does not make much sense when applied to La Manzanilla this week. When restaurants have only four patrons the entire evening, the chances of increasing the danger of swapping viruses is small when the "taker-outers" are coming into the same restaurant with the same people and picking up the same food. The restriction may make more sense Well, goes to show nobody pays attention doesn't it. It is not just a state thing, it is a federal mandate issued by the Secretaria de Salud, restaurants in Mexico City are only allowed to serve take away. All botaneros, billiard halls, bars and restaurants are supposed to be closed. And a lot of people here in Guadalajara don't believe the warnings and aren't bothering with masks. Personally with a It only takes to people for the virus to pass from one to another, that is why they are trying to avoid all possible gatherings of people.

Not much else to do, unless you play computer games or hide in a cellar or drink or smoke dope. Of course there is the IFOPE english library so you can read. I guess you could walk on the beach occasionally too. During the winter months, November thru April, 500 to 1000 retirees come here to enjoy the warmth. Many of them buy their property, some just rent. You will find plenty of folks to hang out with. XMAS time and Easter are a little uncomfortable due to all the Mexico City folks who come. Generally it's hotter in Puerto Escondido than Puerto Vallarta and they're around maybe 1,000 miles apart. Forget the world class infrastructure. You can count on there being electricity but, depending on the neighborhood, water can be problematic. (I'm not talking about drinking water, but water for your kitchen and bathroom. There's high speed internet in some neighborhoods and in others not. Medical care is adequate but hardly state of the art, you have to go to Mexico City for that. Both the northern hemisphere (fall, winter) and the southern hemisphere (spring, summer) have a "flu season." Scientists and drug companies create flu vaccinations. Sometimes the vaccinations work, and sometimes they don't. Everybody knows the risks of flu. The flu virus itself is almost never deadly, but if your immune system is deficient for one reason or another, the flu can trigger cases of pneumonia or diarrhea, which can turn deadly in extreme situation. The flu season usually ends when the daylight hours lengthen and the temperature rises. Flu viruses are susceptible to both factors of light and temperature. This is why a fever will I think a lot of people have also come to that conclusion. Government health officials in most countries (aside from a few) and WHO have also taken a cautious but normal response to H1N1 such as reporting real confirmed cases, giving proper health tips, and issued pretty normal warnings. 				Well, FrogFart, your underlying argument with Eric has apparently been going on for quite some time and much precedes our comments with regard to H1N1 flu. However, if you and Eric are interested in resolving your "bitch fight" [your words not mine], I would welcome the opportunity to provide the clinical forum - but generally that takes a lot of time and costs a lot of money. As yet there are still many questions to be answered with regard to the "apparent" higher fatality rate in Mexico. Today, WHO released some stats that are quite different from I found this great tool for calculating the kilometers, the cost of gas, and toll fees. It is government site. Unfortunately, due to complications in the pregnancy, the cubs were born prematurely and due to their tiny size, died shortly after birth. The mother tiger, after recovering from the delivery, suddenly started to decline in health, although physically, she was fine. The veterinarians felt that the loss of her litter had caused the tigress to fall into a depression. The doctors decided that if the tigress could surrogate another mother ' s cubs, perhaps she would improve. In fact, the Titanic was carrying 12,000 jars of the condiment scheduled for delivery on May 5th in Vera Cruz, Mexico, which was to be the next port of call for the great ship after its stop in New York. This would have been the largest single shipment of mayonnaise ever delivered to Mexico. But as we know, the great ship did not make it to New York. The ship hit an iceberg and sank, and the cargo was forever lost. The people of Mexico, who were crazy about mayonnaise and were eagerly awaiting its delivery, were disconsolate at the loss. Their anguish was so great that they declared a National Day of Mourning, Sez the right here, pro numbers are getting 'higher' than ever. 			My HSBC ATM card has a maximum of $3,000p/day withdrawal. HSBC no longer accepts usd or cad for conversion into pesos. April 23, I went to Bancomer and Banamex. Bancomer will not accept usd or cad (for exchange or deposit) unless you have had an account with them for one year. Banamex will accept usd and cad for exchange provided you have your passport, plus a copy of your passport to leave with them. April 23 they had a maximum of $450 usd/day that you could exchange into pesos. These policies are accurate as of April 23 - who knows what they will be in the future. My Bank of America VISA card will not work in Mexico (or any other country) unless I call them in advance and let them know I'll be using it in Mexico. I agree with the others, forget TC's.

It was not that long ago I was in almost the same position - except that we planned to stay for several months and not a week or so. I believe that your enjoyment level will depend on your level of expectation. Can you tolerate lots of dust? Music from restaurants going on until 2am or later? Really LOUD music in the early hours of the morning? Having to get your drinking water from a large bottle? Ceiling fans rather than air conditioning? Water pressure that is really low, so the shower drips rather than sprays? Water heating that works some of the time? Water from the cold tap that is never cold? All your favorite USA or Canadian foods being unavailable or I have done trips with Nan and Ray and on my own at the locations Sparks suggests. All are very good. Nan's trips are excellent care free days with good company. Regarding 'the west end of the Melaque beach'....snorkeling there can be great under the right conditions. Calm waters being the key. I wouldn't go 'around the rocks'...the calmer spots will be out as far as you can walk while still Probably right PB. I suggested it only because a $1 tip has GOT to be worth more than a 10 peso tip whatever the exchange rate. I have never encountered so much as a frown. I also must admit that I've been spending more time in Huatulco these days where credit cards are the norm. My memory of PE is that they are accepted in the better restaurants of PE as well, at a much better rate than you can get in most places of exchange. 				Hey that what the stats on the radio says. Yes and over 75% of all crime is never reported due to possible retaliation from the police in Mexico, so the stats can be 75% off. sounds like a reasonable adjusted amount. How many little kids and teenagers dissappear along the Oaxaca coast every month, and are discovered but no agencies report it??????? I am sure you are not worried about that as well. The Mexican statistics for reported cases for missing children in 1997 was nearly 11,250 per year. Much higher now. Do you think the feds solved any? or even attempted? or already knew? I would choose the latter for any educated guess. Now add that to your stats, consider them dead and what number do you come up with? Something you never hear on the news do you?

				Our housesitters for July 1 through September 30 cancelled due to flu fear, so we're looking for some reliable people again to rent/housesit. We have a 1345 sq. ft. house in a safe, working-class Mexican neighborhood on a 4500 sq. ft lot. The house is a 3 bedroom, 2 bath house with an extensive library and video collection. It's in a secure walled compound with a lovely garden and front patio. It's about a 10 minute walk to downtown Barra. Rent is $75 per month plus utilities, and a $300 refundable security deposit. First month rent and deposit are payable prior to moving in. The rent is low because there will be some garden watering to do before the rains start, and there is also a 4 yr. old spayed cat, As you enter Cihuatlan from the bridge side (Colima does not have the same regulations) ... there is what appears to be a health check station. 				Actually there were many more sharks off PE in the 70s than today. But I never saw schools of sharks visible off playa principal. Sharks were always part of the daily catch and sharkfin soup was served in many restaurants as was turtle, usually a soup but steaks too. It was a terrible sight watching the turtles being brought in alive, laying on their backs, flippers flapping as they were loaded on trucks to be sent down to the slaughter house. There was one guy who bought sharkfins everyday and drove them in an ice chest to a restaurant near Acapulco

				044 is used only when calling a cell phone from a land line when both have the same area code here in Mexico. 045 is used from a land line to a cell phone that has a different area code while here in Mexico. Cell phone to any phone inside Mexico is always the ten digit number, nothing else. 044 / 045 basically says that the caller is paying for the call. But if you see a call on your phone from a different area code, you will normally have to pay the long distance charges from the area code that is calling to where you are at the moment. For example, if you receive a call from 315 area code to your 315 phone and you are in Manzanillo (314), you will have to pay long distance charges for that call. In La Manzanilla people have been feeding those crocs for years, so they see that area as a good food source. That isn't a problem (yet) in Villa Obregon. Years ago (pre-Andador) the chicken lady used to throw chicken parts in the laguna, but she no longer does so. When Raymond's Restaurant first opened, the waiters liked to throw scraps into the laguna to attract crocs, but after we spoke with the chef & owner they were very responsive--they had never thought of the repercussions of feeding the wildlife, and thanked us for bringing it to their attention. 				I do not recall Twin Otter service to Puerto through Pachutla. But here's and old PE tale. Av gas was also available in Pinotepa National at the airstrip there. A pilot named Miguel Otero was operating a Pawnee spray plane at Pinotepa, one of the old 235hp fixed pitch versions. I'd flown one some, they were turds when loaded on a hot day as the fixed pitch prop limited takeoff power to about 75%. When I'd land there we'd talk and we became friends. Later on he sold the Pawnee and started flying Cessna Ag Wagons which had Continental 230HP engines but had constant speed props. All you have to do is put a little bait on your line and throw it in to see if anything bites. Some fishermen even throw multiple lines in thinking they have a greater chance to catch "the big one". It is true that the dangers of Mexico are really not much different than Anytown U.S.A. or Somewhere, Canada but that is only one side as well. There are other sides to Mexico too. Like anywhere in the world Mexico is many things. It is nice that Ms. Ellerbee has articulated one side to remind anybody who reads it that yes Mexico is not only drug wars but a special place, there is still more. Just like owning a car is not only fun it is repairs, it is a friend and a tool and payments and maintenance and frustrating unknowns until you have to experience them. Yes Wayne your correct. 				The return of the Frogfart, Puerto Bill duo, lol. Same bat time same bat channel. I have no trouble avoiding problems, I couldn't find a real problem if I begged for one. This country has been nothing but good to me, it's the 'part time' resident 'ugly Americans' that are the nuisance. There are a few...not many though. I not only made a new family here, but joined one in doing so. We have all enjoyed each others company and learned great deals from one another. Our family ranch is just outside of Huatulco, there has been a kidnapping of a prominent papaya rancher, and that's the big bad news. One serious crime a year, or less

The vacant lot across the street from Fruver on Calle Carrizal is in the process of being cleared and fenced off. Rumor has it that apartments are going to be built. The fountain in the zocalo has been painted inside and actually have water flowing. That's the first time I've ever seen that in all the years of coming down here. One of the locals told me the town is going to try and spruce itself up. The bus terminal at the end of Carrizal is closed and the buses moved elsewhere. She nearly got her wish. The Chicago musical icon died Wednesday at age 80 of complications from gastrointestinal surgery less than four weeks after her last performance, at the Blues Music Awards in Memphis, Tenn. There she collected her record 29th Blues Music Award, capping an era in which she became the most revered female blues vocalist of her time with signature hits "Wang Dang Doodle," "I'm a Woman" and "Hey Bartender." Taylor died at Northwestern Memorial Hospital 15 days after her May 19 surgery. She appeared to be recovering until taking a turn for the worst Wednesday morning. There are two main teachers' unions in Mexico. The national union is huge. The Oaxaca teachers separated from that union around 20 years ago and is a separate entity known as Section 22. One of the pay issues in the current strike is that rural teachers want to have the same salaries as urban teachers in Oaxaca. It makes sense, since the turn over in rural schools is very high. In the States it would be called a hardship post. Another part of what the current job action is about (it's not a strike in the sense of closing the school, it's one or two-	500

				It is a shame that Mexico which desperately needs the tourist dollars does not make any serious effort to protect their fishing resource. Florida takes in 16.7 billion dollars a year from recreational fishing. Florida has outlawed commercial gill nets and commercial long line grouper fishing. In Florida the open seasons on different fish are strictly enforced as well as the size and catch limits. 				Frederico, What perhaps you are ignoring is that teachers do not like being on strike, and do not take closing schools lightly. When they strike, or get locked out, they want to get students back into the system, so they do not miss too much classroom time. At a certain point, the ball is in the government's (employer's) court, if the demands surrounding learning conditions were met, then they strike would end even earlier wouldn't it? Yes, like most civil servants, teachers tend to receive cost of living increases on a consistent basis, as opposed to the boom and bust nature of wages in other industries, it is just a trade off that these professionals choose. In order to have a billfish LIVE after it is released you cannot have a long fight and tire it to total exhaustion. When I have fished in tournaments here that are ALL catch and release we MUST use very heavy and strong tackle so the fish can be brought in very very fast, tagged and released. With the heavy tackle you will almost never lose a fish so it's not that much of a challenge. With light tackle fishing (a 300 pound fish on 30 pound test line) unless you are very skilled and have a lot of luck, the bill fish will break that line and be gone. So I was hooked up to a monitor, nice new monitor it was. At one point I un-hooked myself and got up to go to the bathroom. 38479	12	zummie	Re: 1990 Dodge Caravan for s	Thanks Buzzard, I remember a while back I spent some time on the Island of Antigua. They had over 300 beautiful beaches, many of them so isolated that you could strip naked for the day and "own" your own lagoon and beach. There was no corruption and an amazing education system (many many educated youngsters ended up in U.S. graduate schools). I rented a 4 x 4 and drove all over the island and everywhere the people were happy and prosperous and friendly. It was one of the safest places I have been to. On Sunday at the weekly outdoor free music festival you could interact and dance with locals who would treat you like family. There were no bars on any windows and you could leave your ignition keys right in the vehicle. The average hotel room was in the Bill in your car you should be able to reach all windows from the drivers seat anyway. Its about the size of most cars trunk. Lol.	1131

Another craigslist is a good place to advertise I just want to add that I am and feel a lot safer in Melaque than I do where I live. Situations can occur here which are outside of my control. In my home area there have been 21+ murders committed up to this date, June 9th 2009. That works out to an average of about 1 per week. Now take Melaque for example, I know of no murders happening there with the exception of a woman who was knifed in a love triangle some 5 - 6 years ago. This had nothing to do involving any visitors from up north. A few minor incidents, such as purse snatchings, break-ins, car thefts may happen but those are a daily happenstance in the US and Canada. From what I know a woman had something unpleasant happen to I will send info to anyone PRIVATELY as to why to not do any business with Severino. He is a scam but his SON as twice the scam. You will NEVER get what you want for the agreed price. Their business is giving you something SIMILAR that will not stand up in court and then blame others for your problems. DO NOT USE HIM! It will always cost you double and not stand up in court. Many real estate people use him and get kick backs. Get ALL things done right	3322

The 200 series has the lowest memory capacity of them all and can be a bit sluggish when it is loaded up with more than the North American maps. One bit of advice, do not get suckered into paying more for a wide screen GPS. The direction of travel on the screen is from the bottom to the top and not sideways (left to right). It will cost you more for the wide screen but the benefit is minimal if none at all. All GPS units have literally millions of points of interest built in, such as restaurants, motels, attractions, hospitals and more where ever you are.	4404

Myself and Karen are the owner/brokers of that Coldwell Banker office, which we purchased the franchise and opened ourselves, after renovating half that bus terminal, where we had it for 2 1/2 years. We made that side office/storefront as a rental to recoup some of our investment and help with the monthly rent, but couldn't find anyone to rent it. 				Yes the tackle shop is open. We opened it in October. As I've said, it's more of a hobby thing, so I am open as much as I can be. Either Pepe and or I are there most days. It is so slow right now that in all honesty, it's difficult to warrant being there 8 hours a day, especially now since real estate interest has picked up again. I'm usually only a stones throw away though and have my number on the door, so if you come by and we're not there, give me a buzz and I'll run down. 				Cocaine study that got up the nose of the US Ben Goldacre The Guardian, Saturday 13 June 2009 In areas of moral and political conflict people will always behave badly with evidence, so the war on drugs is a consistent source of entertainment. We have already seen how cannabis being "25 times stronger" was a fantasy, how drugs--related deaths were quietly dropped from the measures for drugs policy, and how a trivial pile of poppies was presented by the government as a serious dent in the Taliban's heroin revenue. The Commons home affairs select committee is looking at the best way to deal with cocaine. You may wonder why they're bothering. When the Advisory Council for solid rain///crashing rain///woke us up///10 minutes so, some have more luck... if you travel, those goofy netbooks can be loaded-up...and are very sweet in the luggage dept...might be an issue for folk who travel in and outta here on business, etc you have to load their big programs treating them as just another "probably should have opened a Taco stand (baked potatoes ... mmmmm, how come they don't have those here?) Florida cracker From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia Florida Cracker refers to original colonial era American pioneer settlers of the state of Florida, and their descendents. The first Florida Crackers arrived in 1763 when Spain traded Florida to Great Britain. The British divided the territory into East Florida and West Florida, and began to aggressively recruit settlers to the area, offering free land and financial backing for export-oriented businesses. The territory passed back to the Spanish crown in 1783, and then to the US government in 1819. Spanish rule in the late 18th and early 19th centuries was only nominal and the territory was wild and lawless. Spaniards in Florida called these early English	1046

				I think you missed my question...I ain't hiding behind any skirt. I think you are assuming that I am a Right Winger looking to challenge your views on Democracy. Not the case. I agree with a previous post you made many moons ago: The Dems and Reps are two cheeks on the same ass. I am not served by either of the corrupt parties in the Congress, the Executive and now more and more in the Judiciary. The checks and balances are no longer present in the US political system. I am lost as to the point you are trying to make. Are you holding Chavez up as some sort of champion of Democracy and his conservative opponents as the opposite? And why are Americans so interested in promoting Democracy when the US of A is not even a Democracy? I think we Americans	680

38960	12	hispanic	Re: Why do they hate us	Hi OPOL I rent a house in melaque from Alejandra and she give us are deposit back on the last day. sorry for what happen to you It's probably not a matter of "hate" or "they." It happens all over the world when stuck with those who will take advantage of an unknowing client. How much notice did you give? The deposit was most likely spent the day you gave the advance as Bill suggested. Knowing you, it was a matter of working with an individual POS, and I think you knew that all along. Right OPOL? "... each I have known several people who when asked for a security deposit (which they also doubted they would ever see again) made a counteroffer of paying the first two months rent in advance. Both got their rentals. Hard to turn down that chunk The easiest thing to do is when you make the deposit ask for a note / receipt and then instead of asking for it back at the end (as the landlord has probably spent it) just let them know you will be taking your last month / time free against Nice to see a thread of a visitor to Puerto enjoying his time. 38971	6	Puerto Bill	Re: Satellite Phone Rental	larisa You will be able to find a cell phone store very easily in Huatulco. Just walk around. HTA (Frank) says that you get reception in Zipolite so you are good to go. Huatulco has good coverage and Puerto Escondido has good coverage. Not sure about San Jose del Pacifico but there is a good chance that there is coverage there as well. As I said before, you can buy a phone for about $600 pesos and it comes with about $100 - $300 pesos worth of time. When you leave you can just give the phone to somebody. Anybody. For somebody to call West- I don't know where you get your information but I understand that it will not be raining on that date. The day before - yes and the day after - yes as well but on the 17th there will be no rain. I understand that it is very difficult for you to tell the weather in Huatulco from so far away so maybe it is your source who is incorrect. Also I have it on good authority that on that date the sun will set and the sun will rise. There will be air to breath and mosquitoes in the air. The vegetation will be green and the paved roads will be black. It will be hot and I also enjoy the Mazunte area, and looking forward to exploring further east/south , some of the bays after Puerto Angel and before Huatulco. Bahia de la Luna is one of them, met the owner in Guate and wanna stop in one day and see it. Looks like back to Puerto next year, my son is getting real good surfing and wants to head back.Im trying to talk him into Nicaragua/Costa Rica, but its his choice this year. Nice to hear from someone enjoying and exploring. WHat Zac Sunderland is on his way home sailing to Marina Del Rey attempting to be the youngest sailor to sail around the world. I always get a receipt, always have a rental contract and I always leave the place in better shape and cleaner than I found it. Dan's advice about the last month's rent is spot on too. Sometimes the home owner just doesn't have the cash around to pay the deposit when the rental is over. I don't believe that security deposits in Mexico are normally held in trust the way they are in Canada. I think that they just go into the family pocket, tomato can, or whatever and are spent. 38993	6	Gri-lingo	Re: Satellite Phone Rental	Sorry Wayne, forgot to mention T-Mobile! Did you ever get the Sling-Shot? In Barra there are two wireless canopy services available. One through Rodrigo that he beams over Barra from Colimilla and one through Casa de Marco that I beam over downtown Barra and the Cabo Blanco subdivision from Casa de Marco. I think that this Paco/Francisco service is the Rodrigo one - he looks after my canopy network too and I think his buddy's name is Francisco. These services won't work in Melaque though because the signal doesn't beam over that way. I am surprised that there is not something like that for Melaque though. You can get 3G wireless service from Telmex without the land line onto the premises. I am using an ATT GSM card right now in San Francisco. It uses the cellular network and Telcel have something similar down there. Information is Hi, you don't need to deliver it. Myrna will pick it up from you. Sorry for the confusion. I came away without Myrna's contact information myself so couldn't email her but I just found her email in sent messages on my actual mail server so I have emailed her to let her know it is there with you. A cab driver said the construction trucks were really rolling in the area a couple of years ago, but that has ended for now. As far as Mexico and Costa Rica there is a big difference in the type of beach and access allowed. I always liked that about Mexico. Jacó was nice. The taxista told me that the atmosphere at one time in the Beatle Bar was unique, but that it was sold and had changed. I never did make it inside. Costa Rica is Aren't foreign plates exempt from the daily number game? They should be if they aren't. I saw a little truck splashing everyone standing on the street the other day as he raced by the intersection during a rain, and he was headed toward the airport as was I, so, I chased him down, pulled up just behind his bumper on the right side and waited for the big puddles near the school. His passenger window was down a bit, and we passed him at mach speed just in time to send a nice tubing wave into his car. That was fun for the whole family. It really made our day. 				It's pretty funny, back in 92' I was taking tourists from Zipolite to Huatulco on the small busses, then the boat ride to the (then) hidden (boat access only) beaches. It was so economic, and I would guide them for two days and sleep on the beach a night, just for free food and the free trip. It was great being broke. So I share the fun, and don't pay ridiculous prices to any scam artist. A real deal or no deal. With todays prices, the 1200 p, they pay their gas, wear and tear on the motors, and have around 800 pesos profit. That's more than enough for a few hours work, figuring that a Mason who works in the heat for 8 hours building your home makes 500 p if he's lucky. Those boat rides are a ripoff. If it was on a Yeah, coconutz. I drove through DF once, once. Got pulled over and robbed twice in 15min. I had paper tags, just bought the SUV, over real plates. I went to pull the paper off, and got guns drawn. Gave them all I would admit to having, then their buddies got me just up the road. It took a LOT to get out of that one. I tried a new tactic as if I couldn't speak spanish, called Warren (thanks Warren). I ended up just outside of town with a blown tranny and 24 pesos. Cheapest phone card was 30. Popped a couple muscle relaxers, sat on a park bench, and found an answer. The three day trip took 3 1/2 weeks. Got my hand chopped up by a ceiling fan that looked like it was gas powered,etc, etc. Lessons to me: It might be a good idea to reserve your seats on the plane. They are small, and they might be booked. Usually they aren't. You definitely do not need I have tried 2 of the most likely hotels that would allow our lab to spend the night and have been turned down. 1st time in many years to fly and will need to overnight in P.V. 			I love driving in Mexico as there are no rules. Do whatever you want, whenever you want, just don't get caught. I think the large commercial bus drivers are some of the best drivers in the world. They wear their neckties with pride and do a great job. Put a 'tumba burro' large steel bumper on your vehicle and join the fun. I have had several vehicles in MX. The best choice is a mechanically sound POS that is large and pinataesque, with dents all around. Drivers respect the fact that your vehicle looks like junk which says to the world that you don't care if you get another 'golpe'. If you slow down, don't tailgate, and go with the flow, you should arrive safely. Those of us trained to drive on wonderful North

			Driving in Mexico can be daunting. On thing that caught my attention between Puerto and Acapulco is the lack of road shoulder. Almost all of highway 200 between cities has been paved so many times (on top of the old layers of pavement) that the road surface is 1/3 meter higher than the ground. I've seen cars and delivery trucks flip over because one wheel went over the edge, the axle gouged into the hot asphalt and that's all she wrote. Have fun calling a tow truck to the middle of nowhere. Most of the time, I trust the driving to bus drivers and taxi drivers. No tickets, no repair bills, no problems. The only problem with Portugal's decriminalization policy gets good marks in a new UN report. from the Huffington Post: "In an about face, the United Nations on Wednesday lavishly praised drug decriminalization in its annual report on the state of global drug policy. In previous years, the UN drug czar had expressed skepticism about Portugal's decriminalization, which removed criminal penalties in 2001 for personal drug possession and emphasized treatment over incarceration. The UN had suggested the policy was in violation of international drug treaties and would encourage "drug tourism." But in its 2009 World Drug Report, the UN had

Now your patting me on the back because you feel we both think alike. I haven't changed my initial view on teachers. I feel there are a minority of nobel teachers that have the interest of the children at heart. I also feel there is a majority of teachers, administrators and union people who are in it for the money, benefits, job security, and time off. I do get a little tired of hearing how the teachers are overworked and get little pay for their time. Sure, at the start they recieve minimal pay, but a 3% annual increase is more than most folks get in my colonia. And WCW, I don't believe for Today: Thunderstorms. That is the street that runs behind Restaurant Fred- please be accurate, I referred to people I know, mostly in the construction industry, whose wages went from $15 an hour, unskilled labour, to $20 a hour unskilled labour, due to demand. By my math that is a 33% increase. Now many of those same people 2 years later are looking for work, which was exactly my point, they choose to work in a boom and bust industry, where teaching, for the most part all civil service, is consistent cost of living wage increase. No one gets %20 every year, I agree, but that was not my claim. My personal feeling about money is that my bills are paid, so I must be making enough. I've seen a lot of cars with US plates towing trailers with US plates, but I think that a mexican truck with a US trailer is going to call the federales atencion, so be sure to be aloowed before buying anything. If you have Us nationality I think that it is one of your rights here, so chek it out. Also I think that it is cheap to get mexican plates for small trailers (for boats or atv's)and it does'nt matter if they come from the US. They are all taxed the same (and not as motorised vehicles). But i'm not a US citicen and i don't own a triler so my advice is to chek it out with someone who really knows about the matter. About muchas gracias por esa informacion. 			Mexico vows to keep looking for 'lost' island By MARK STEVENSON, The Associated Press 2:15 p.m. June 24, 2009 MEXICO CITY — Mexico vowed to keep looking for a mysterious island that could extend its offshore oil claims after university researchers said they couldn't find it. "The island doesn't exist" in the area where it was shown on maps, a National Autonomous University of Mexico study concluded after conducting studies with underwater sensing devices and aerial reconnaissance in the area. "Isla Bermeja" appeared on maps from the 1700s as a speck of land off the northwest coast of the Yucatan peninsula. A group of Mexican legislators hoped the island would help their decade-long	122

				I can't begin to defend a Mexican education system, I don't work in it, and I don't know what is behind the continual conflict. What I do know, and stand behind as a pillar of a free and prosperous society, is public education. My hope for all Mexicans is that they can somehow convince both the government and the educators that they must find a way to create a viable sustainable public education system. It is becoming clear that there exists a divide on this thread between education in Mexico and education in general. There is a pervasive agenda on the right in North America to underfund and dismantle public education, and in Canada public healthcare, with the hope of being able to sell

The news comes on the heels of what appears to have been a military coup carried out against Honduran President Manuel Zelaya in the pre-dawn hours of Sunday morning. Venezuela, Cuba and Nicaragua are all countries led by leftist leaders who were ideologically allied with Zelaya. The kidnapping of their ambassadors, if confirmed, would suggest that the Honduras military coup is ideological, and targeted not only at Zelaya, but potentially at the many Latin American national leaders who have formed the wave of leftist revolutions that have swept Central	2612

Always best to deal with the taxis in pesos and they'll come down to less than $160 USD to here. I paid 1500 pesos for my taxi from the central camionera to my house in Barra. The first guy in line wanted 2000 pesos I offered 1500, he said no, I turned away and another taxi driver came right after me and took me up on the 1500. I've also had the airport taxis offer to bring me here for $1500 pesos but not this time. It was right after the Andres storm and I am pretty sure my airport taxi didn't want to take a chance on the highway. The I was talking with Cristi and Enrique and they were discussing the possibility of a free shuttle service between PVR and Barra. 			The scoreboard in the battle for Honduras shows the coup losing badly. It has not gained a single point in the international diplomatic arena, it has no serious legal points, and the Honduran people are mobilizing against it. As the military and coup leaders resort to brute force, they rack up even more points against them in human rights and common decency. Only one factor brought the coup to power and only one factor has enabled it to hold on for these few days -- control of the armed forces. Now even that seems to be eroding. 			Marketing and money makers? Let's see. Is AC/DC any more talented than Michael Jackson? I think not, I never liked AC/DC. I am not a big fan of M. Jackson either. Eric S. allows his curiosity to limit his creativity. Eric S. thinks he has interpreted the success of Jackson to be manufactured. I disagree. Michael created a new direction in music based on his talents. The love of money may have been a by product, but his world wide attraction is real. You condone the legitimacy of AC/DC music, but poop on those you don't like. Same thing goes for your reflections on Obama. Your racist thoughts on Obama make him a manufactured man too created by the minds of others that you have LOL, I dig this Zap stuff. FF, I know I have some crazyness, but who in this town doesn't? LOL It's not necessarily bad or wrong or evil to be neurotic. It's just a label from people who learn how to label others and profit from it. Are these calm, efficient, level headed labelers, better than a person who has Attention Deficit, or a neurotic? They have job security as shrinks, but are they really better? Do they live more interesting lives? Crazy people have good times, they act on impulse which can be dangerous, but impulse can also be just what the Dr. ordered for a change in direction. It takes some energy to write Two Mexican Midget Wrestlers Killed by Fake Prostitutes Friday, July 03, 2009 MEXICO CITY — Mexican authorities say two professional wrestlers found dead in a low-rent hotel in the capital may have been drugged to death by female robbers. Autopsies are being performed on the two midget wrestlers, one of whom went by the name "La Parkita" — or "Little Death" — and wore a skeleton costume in the ring. The other was known as "Espectrito Jr." Authorities say two women were seen leaving the men's hotel room before the bodies were discovered. After attempting to talk to the PB, and having to listen to his shouting, I figured the hell with this guy. He's a lost cause. Obama woulda talked it out. McCain woulda thrown a punch, but a shout off, no thank you. I'll be at the point tomorrow as I was today, shooting video of my son and some new friends from Baja who are in town for the contest. (I can't drink anymore beer, my peptic Danny boy finally gave up on posting anything positive about the current administration. A typical left wing type of goodbye too. 				One thing you don't want to do is put down money on anything that is not built unless you know who all the owners are. I know people who have put money down with a pre-construction price in hope of saving money, and often the place goes bust. Be very careful of some of the realtors here, as there are no requirements to claim to be an agent. Many realtors have their own agenda and work to promote their own interests. Some condos are great, but do your homework. The place I am renting where there are a number of units for sale is overpriced for what you get, and your overcharged for maintenance that is poor . Super! I have plenty of space in a cool non humid room to store the coffee until everyone gets back down here for it. Can't wait to get the jars for my dill pickles

Jalisco You won't be taking ETN because they canceled the Barra PV, PV Barra run last August 26th (I remember the date because I went to PVR in a taxi not on ETN last August the 27th) I went across the street and asked the Cihuatlan line (Cihuatlan Plus and Cihuatlan Autocamiones del Pacifico) and they said that the dog could only go below the bus in the luggage compartment even though it is only about 11 kilos. Then I went next door and asked at the Flecha Amarilla line (Primera Plus and Servicios Coordinados) what their rules are regarding dogs on buses. She said that their rules are also that dogs need to ride below with the luggage, however, since your dog is only 11 kilos if the individual driver says it is I did not make the loop you are stating. Read about the seasonal flu which affects more than 200,000 people every year in the USA alone. [http://www.cdc.gov/flu/about/qa/disease.htm] Here is an excerpt from another flu related article, note where it says H1N1 is the LEAST virulent: Table 2 in the Dushoff paper (p. 185) shows a very interesting tally of all estimated deaths for the two seasonal flu subtypes (H1N1, H3N2) and influenza B. Of the 41,000 deaths, H3N2 is the nastiest, contributing (annual average over the 23 years) 29,000 of the estimated 41,000 deaths. Influenza B comes next: 8500. Long range fishing out of San Diego CA also use a combination of both balloons and kite at I don't remember the name of the company, but it is the one in Melaque that runs the tours in the area. Some people who were staying in our bungalow complex rented a car from them last winter. I think they paid around 50 dollars a day but not positive about that. You can also rent cars at the Manzanillo airport. Why would farkem dare anyone to drop by the Cafecito? Sounds like another typical Pto. setup in the works. An intriguing development that undercuts some of the most cynical views of US intentions (or those of the new boss anyway) Costa Rica to mediate Honduras talks as protests grow Published: Tuesday July 7, 2009 US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton on Tuesday backed a Costa Rican bid to mediate an end to the showdown in Honduras, but stopped short of demanding the return of ousted President Manuel Zelaya. Zelaya and interim leader Roberto Micheletti backed the choice of Nobel Peace Prize winner and Costa Rican President Oscar Arias to lead negotiations, as mass protests both for and against Zelaya returned to the capital's streets. Arias said in Costa Rica I miss my father. The bill that Calderon has before him would not legalize anything, it would decriminalize small quantities of a number of illegal substances. Anyone caught with these amounts would be offered "treatment" rather than jail for the first two offenses although they don't have to actually go the treatment, it appears, they are "encouraged to." However, if they are caught a third time, then it is criminal and no more treatment option. But the kicker is that selling any amount is still illegal and those caught with over the amount specified could be considered "dealers" even if not caught selling and prosecuted as such. The limit for pot is only 5 grams, less than 1/4 ounce. So someone with a pretty small amount	4514

				Comparative morality is an interesting subject. In some communities extra marital sex is just fun. In others the punishment is 100 news articles and an indefinite period of mocking by late night comics. In the Maldives it's 100 lashes and a year of house arrest, if you are a woman that is. The Maldives, a small country in composed of 1192 small islands in the Indian Ocean and a popular holiday destination, is a signatory to the to both the Convention Against Torture and the Optional Protocol to the Convention Against Torture which prohibit punishment that causes severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental. 40128	12	sparks	Re: missing wallet	Regardless, I will be visting the area again, before I move there, sometime next I don't agree with the coconut comment about "the guy wanting to buy a exercise bike" It's for his wife who broke her foot this last winter and it was not properly treated by the local docs and the bike is needed for therapy, which in this context is not a ridiculous request. Also they are 10 yr Puertitoes. What that ok...bozo or stooge might be a match...but, a mexican driver's permit is not a great thing up north if you need to pass through security posts... if you are retired military and want to get to the nearby base for stuff, you might have a real problem... if you want to rent a car with one (i did...with trouble)...you might want one from north of the border... so, from this bozo...it's nice to have one...gotta go I would like to hear a decent answer myself as I may be able to talk my son into a Puerto move before he is done with high school.I would prefer a public one. I know the elemantary school near Puerto Angelito looks fine, but I never seen the high school. Is there such a thing? And how about college? 40140	12	Contessa	Re: missing wallet	I just find this all so amusing... love you guys. You can turn a boring thread into something way more interesting.....!! keylimepie, If I may add my input: Puerto people see your question almost as an insult. Kind-of like going to a campground and asking for the best tanning salon. They don't want to necessarily make fun of you, but the question does not apply in Puerto. Home schooling is great, and the schools are nice. But, you are Keylimepie-Don't get down-hearted with some of the posters here on TZ. You'll find some really decent info. on just about anything. You'll also find there are some that have nothing better to do than act like children, calling each other names and slinging mud. If you'r going to use TZ develop a thick skin. You Palin, will go to hollywood. Eric,if I had my way I woulda never sent the boy to school at all. I would rather he learn to be a man by surfing,fishing,hiking and camping, and teach him the basic 3 r's. He hates school so much, and I dont blame him. They try to turn all the boys into sissy-men, luckily he marches to his own beat and is surfing 7 hours a day, he learns more in the water. That being said, I still him want to go to college. I did physical work the first half of my life, then went back to school Keylime, You may not have gotten the help or answers you wanted but I think you did get useful information just not in a way you wanted. Puerto isn't for everyone. Yes, there is an expat community but I think they are people who don't want or need the same amenities you get here in the states, such as medical specialists or American schools. As MMK stated, your children will benefit greatly from interaction with local kids but you didn't mention how old your children were or if you or they spoke any Spanish. There are places in the state of Oaxaca where the residents don't speak Spanish but rather Zapotec so In Jan we will arrive for our 11th visit since 2001. The last few years we have been fortunate to stay for 2 months. the next visit will be for almost 3 months.	1850

40143	5	Eric S.	Re: The Wisdom of Soto	There are no "American" schools in Puerto. Calmecca School on the highway near the first entrance to Bacocho offers bilingual classes. I've heard it is a good school but only goes to 9th grade. I would strongly suggest that you send your kids outside of Puerto from 6th grade on as the overall educational system here in Puerto is quite lacking. With respect to doctors, there are very few specialists here in Puerto. Most of us have to go to Oaxaca or Mexico City to receive Hey, I think I have this wonderful idea to make lemonade out of some of these sour lemons we have been experiencing here on the Puerto Escondido forum who have individually and collectively gone off on each other so entertainingly or, depending on your taste, so sadly, so often over the last few years. Admittedly, i have wandered into these threads at times, to comment and chastise but never felt I'd added any real value to that which brings us here in the first place: the common love we hold for Puerto Escondido and respect for the place and people who have inhabited it long before our respective boot-heals got us wandering there. Now, if there was only a handbook titled something like "Puerto Escondido for Dummies." I know I could use a copy. It would be a best seller. Unfortunately, the "rules" and "laws" and "protocols" change faster than publishing a book would allow. Heck, they change faster than advice would allow. One day one thing, the next day, something else. If KeyLimePie had spent a few days here trying to get electrical service, or a telephone line, or a water meter, there would surely be a cathartic moment. Certain things like schools, police & fire depts, road construction, et al MUST be undertaken by the government. The alternative would be chaos w/o uniformity or equality. We don't want everyone to have the same things or be the same period. We just want all people to have access to THE BASICS. Therein lies the problem; people can never agree on what is truly basic. To you the right of gun ownership is more important than access to affordable health care, & the right to decide what to do PB, when are YOU going to get some therapy? Accept that many others have a better OUTLOOK than you do, a better point of view. Some can just keep it REAL. While you bill, play the war game till the end. I guess I have never noticed before what pops up next to my name when I post from anywhere and I rarely post from other places than home anyway, even with a laptop (I don't get out much). Not to mention this is one of the few sites that shows that info, in fact the only one I post on regularly that does. So my bad on that one. Still, I do find Dryhouse to be more than a bit nosy and a person who makes major and very often negative assumptions about people and things about which he knows little or nothing and I believe you follow the threads here Penny -- Let the news get started that Princess Di once had H1N1 flu, and watch that British reserve dissolve into Mexican hysteria. 				Legalization would take care of the pot problem because that demand could be met entirely from within the USA. Hell, one county in Kentucky with every farmer growing it could probably supply the whole US. But that is not true of cocaine and heroin. The US cannot grow coca leaves or poppies, at least not cheaply, as could be done with pot. So Mexico would remain a transshipment point for cocaine and a grower of poppies. And then of course there is the problem of methamphetamine. I'm not at all convinced that US troops are a good idea either, but I think it should be discussed. They would need to operate under the authority of the Mexican government, of course, and that alone might prove to If one American boot sets foot in Mexico, President Calderon will lose all political legitimacy. 				Scott - you probably know I agree with you. However there are many people in this world who believe that it is possible to legislate morality. They think that behaviours they believe are morally wrong should also be legally wrong, and (for example) all drug addicts/dealers etc should be in jail. Right now they are getting their way, and hundreds of thousands of people are in jail in many countries for drug offense. It has not fixed the problem, but it has created a whole series of other problems to which you (correctly) refer. What is most disturbing is that there are clear examples of alternative action. 40405	12	Dry House	Re: BEACH HOME FOR SALI	jureal, despite what buzzard and dryhouse will tell you, it never hurts to talk to local real estate agents, wherever in the world you are. You might find a good one, Mexican or expat, and if you don't, you'll probably at least learn something. Obviously ask for credentials, references and do as much research as you can on yourself and don't sign a contract with them to act as your agent until you are sure they can help you and you feel comfortable. Just like here, you should pay them only if the deal closes, not up front. Do be aware that, unlike here, real agents do not need a license to operate, so be careful. But don't let the semi-pathological hatred of real estate agents that some folks on this board have I've bought and sold many homes/terrenos along the Costalegre and have never/would never include a 'realtor'. I've yet to encounter a situation that would merit the inclusion of those greedy bastards. IMHO, of course. Just my zwanzig I am not sure that anyone here is familiar with this website of surf fishermen who fish the costa alegre area of Mexico. Is this the type of hardcore surf fishing that Immigration Minister Jason Kenney defended the imposition of new visa requirements on Mexican and Czechs citizens Tuesday in a bid to stem a surge in refugee claims by visitors from those countries. "It's an insult to the important concept of refugee protection to allow it be systematically violated by people who are overwhelmingly economic immigrants." The change took effect at 12:01 a.m. ET on Tuesday. For the first 48 hours, Mexicans and Czechs will be able to apply for entry on arrival in Canada. However, after 11:59 p.m. Wednesday, all visitors from those countries must have a visa when they arrive at a point of entry. Mexico is now the No. 1 source of refugee claims, with the number almost I should have noted in my last post that when I say "here" I mean the US, as I re [b]" The buyer must beware of any potential problems and do the research their selves."[/b] One way to do research is to rent for a couple of years. It has been my experience that those that do rent and walk the walk, meet those of us that post and learn about the area that you wish to spend your hard earned money, the quirks and street rumors will slowly become a second nature to your particular filtering process in this land of chameleon representations. The money I have searched the web for a site such as this one. Now that I found you, I plan on lurking and posting here for a while. Thanks for the information. Still learning. 			Nothing could come of this controversial proposal during the runup to recent midterm elections. Its status at the end of March 2009: "...The constitutional amendment initiative has now been turned over to a Committee of the Senate for analysis and official opinion, a positive step versus immediate rejection. Yet the future of the initiative is by no means guaranteed. Mexico's current congressional session, with the largest block of seats [207 of 500] in the Chamber of Deputies held by the government's National Action Party (PAN), ends on April 30th, and the resulting lame duck deputies will be replaced as of September 1st, after July 5th elections. 40793	15	scott	Re: Here's an idea	Okay, what would be close enough to do that? I have not timed it but my guess is that Cihuatlan is a 15 minute cab ride. No traffic - just lots of open country. We have often had lunch there (Cihuatlan) before going for the 4pm (approx) Alaska departure with guests. The question is, why do this? The cab fairs from the airport are pretty steep because of all the charges levied against the cabs by the airport authorities. Getting back there would be comparatively cheap. I have never done this (checked in first then gone for lunch somewhere) even though I have my own car here and it would be fairly easy to do for me. The other problem is the check in procedure. Normal they do a hand search of your checked baggage at the checkin counter. Then we dropped friends off at zlo two weeks ago and had lunch and beers at the airport. good food and reasonable price in the restaurant upstairs. And, you get to watch your plane land, the arrivals and their luggage disembark, have another round and then..... stroll down to your plane....it won't	75

Please, please,please Mother Nature send some rain and the bugs are probably not termites and we usually slow them down in oue palapa by using a product called Cynoff, which might also be called cipermetrina 200 (cheaper)...we usually mix it and spray with a garden sprayer for scorpions...it stops the sawdust rains for a few months, but be careful...the stuff is poison. last week we stopped the mud trails coming up thru the floor/outlets/etc. using a bit of product used for treating wood, containing chlorophenol...tiny application is best by dipping a drinking stray into the bottle, You might want to try Dagnet. It is sold at the first Agro chemical-fertilizer store on the highway just as you enter the Melaque area from Barra. It's around 250 pesos for a small bottle that you must dilute. You could Goggle it first. It's known around here to be exclusively for termites, but the manufacturer suggests it's Quite a bit of advertising on this site, but does provide answers to many whatever they are, they are very tiny (about the size of the really small sugar ants) and and almost translucent. I do not think that they are subterranean termites. The sawdust is fine like flour. They had a tunnel-like trail up one of the lower palapa poles. I scraped that off and doused the pole with the most poisonous stuff I could find (that contains the chlorofenol). Vern painted the remainder of the palapa (all the way up) with a brush (wearing facial mask and long-sleeved shirt). Our builder said that one thorough application would get rid I love this weather and so do my muscles, not an ache or pain to be felt these days but boy did we ever perspire on the dance floor at Rickys on Saturday night. "Southwest Airlines Passenger Stung by Stowaway Scorpion" PHOENIX, Ariz. -- A passenger on a Southwest Airlines flight got quite a surprise at the end of his flight -- a toxic scorpion dropped down and stung him. Doug Herbstommer had flown from Phoenix to Indianapolis. He said he saw something drop from above, and thought it was a seat belt. Then, Herbstommer felt something crawling up his leg. He reached down to brush it off and was stung by an Arizona bark scorpion right between his fingers. Herbstommer immediately killed the scorpion with his shoe. His 10 year old son Jeremy then opened the overhead compartment to find five baby scorpions next to their luggage. 				For the person interested in taking a large dog on a plane: I flew with my (100 pound) Rottweiler from the time she was two to the age of eight on long trips from the East Coast of the U.S. to Mexico and back and she always did very well. Make sure that your dog has a crate large enough to stand up and turn around in. Always use an item belonging to you with your scent such as a t-shirt (to keep them calm), and a favorite soft toy. Do not sedate your dog as they can hurt themselves in case there is movement on the plane as they will not have control over their bodies. A Pepto Bismol tablet will keep them from becoming nauseous and it also has a very mild calming effect. Only if your dog is

Since you didn't come up with some statistics I thought I'd do a some research. in 2007 1-There were 2,300,000 inmates in prison and jails throughout the US. 2-1,100,000 inmates were incarcerated for violent crimes (close to 1/2 the prison population). 3-There were 275,000 inmates released in 2005 which within 3 years showed a recidivism rate of 72.5% Therefore, prison rehabilitation on average helped only 30% of the inmates that committed crimes. As for the no-violent inmates, 70% were rehabilitated in prison. I think a much better % than if you sent them to war. These are also the people that you think (and document it please, your level of believability is questionable). Only one ceiling fan...why.. because with over 30 doors and windows leading outside, you don't need AC... you just open a window and get a nice cool breeze. However AC could be installed if you want to receive 5,000 peso electric bill instead of the 700 pesos we pay every 2 months. This land has escrituras and it is located in an ecological area with no homes being built in front or behind. The cost of the house depends on who you hire to build, and does not include land which is running about 60,000-70,000 for this area and size. Most importantly its not including the headaches, stress, Hi Maria, Are you refering to the map that has lots of detail, caracturers (I know wrong spelling) etc. Quite colorful, approx 16 x20????? Besides, I don't think you'd like me I don't have a full head of 50 deg F. isn't warm? Actually we had about 5 weeks of beautifull clear weather, temperatures in the 70's up until this trip. Now our forcast is back to usual,rain, showers...more rain, followed by snow. Jureal and Fast Eddy are both correct, 5 fishermen and 10 halibut = the days limit, followed by an equal limit the next day, and we released maybe 30 halibut each day. A green snake. Thin. About 40-50 cm long, a triangular head. Seemed to take a defensive stance when confronted by the dog. The snake was cornered. Although this dog loves to hunt and catch iguanas and lizards, she kept her distance from this snake. She stayed back and barked at it. I think this is only the second snake that I've seen in the yard since the andador was built and I had never seen one like this. Reminded me of the Bamboo Viper that I became acquainted with in SE Asia. 41565	12	Vallartagal	Re: Puerto Vallarta Electrical	Thanks. I hadn't seen Picasa before, but just downloaded it. Seems pretty good. what i want to know is who is deciding where to put the turnouts. how are the people coming up from the beach at zicatela going to turn left? can anybody think of a good reason not to have a left hand turn there? i imagine a lot of u- I saw the road last week for the first time. Where do the 4 lanes start and end? I was taken by the story because this guy was living in the hills for 16 years and nobody knew he was there. And to lived like Robinson Crusoe in this day and age is interesting. For some reson I found it interesting. As far as listening to Fox radio, it is really Fox Talk Radio and it is one show for a little while at night, Alan Colmes. He is the token liberal on Fox although many liberals don't give him much credit. I think he is pretty good even though he is more center than left. I like his show becasue he opens it up to callers most of the time and he doesn't screen his callers either. Since it is Fox he gets a lot of right wing weirdos. It is enlightening to hear what they have to say and how they say it. I find it very The bigger question is when are they going to put in topes. I hate topes as much as the next guy but you can make topes that slow down traffic to a reasonable 30-35 MPH. Some of the jerks that drive on the new part of the road are going 50-60 MPH and those are the huge dump trucks and cement trucks and buses. They don't have to make topes that make you come to a complete stop just to I was really impressed at how much they have completed in the last two weeks. Anyone know when Bodega is opening? Looked ready 3 weeks ago. The four lanes will start at the airport and end in Huatulco. Right now there are four lanes from the airport to the military base or Lomas. There are four lanes but not being used from the Colotepec turn off to Santa Elena(?) and from the Colotepec bridge to the military base. This is what they are working on right now. The part of the road where they have not done hardly anything between the military base to Lomas will be a big traffic problem when they finally start working on it and the new bridge that they will have to put in at the Colotepec river will take a while. I suppose in not too much time they will begin working on the road from the airport to Acapulco or Pinotepa but they will probably wait until looks like a mess of menos to me. Sooooooooooooooooo Spool, what were you testing? [IMG]http://i278.photobucket.com/albums/kk87/1BUZZARDWEST/GIFS/ They should set the topes, in sets of three, with new signs letting you know, the the still bigger question Bill is when are they going to give tickets to all the arrogant machos to slow them down. when have you ever seen anyone get a ticket on the highway. no where in the world to they have topes to slow down the drivers except here. the cops writing heavy fines slow down drivers where i come from. too many tickets and they take away your license.....and justice Carlos, Do you rent weekly? If so is the place available for the first of November for 10 days? How many beds? and how much? pictures? Thanks Hey Bill, the topes in Honduras last year were made of thick rope from a ship and worked real well. Thinking of putting one in front of my house. Worked even better on sand roads because they sort of blended in. Judging from the looks of Did you see Kristal having his head handed to him by John Stewart on The Daily Is there a doctor in the house. click here Kristol/John Stewart <http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2009/07/28/bill-kristol-Red State update..... http://www.salon.com/ent/video_dog/comedy/2009/07/31/rsu_birthers/index.html?source=video&aim=/ent/video_dog/comedy Mr. Z, It is quite apparent you are trying to dissuade tourists from this fishing mecca. 			No topos. Why stop the flow of traffic for someone wanting to turn left. It's bad enough the taxis and little truck taxis stop in the right lane to let people in and out. They cause crashes and with people in the left lane stopped to go left the whole strip would be a traffic jam. Let the traffic flow, do a u turn when you can at the end of the strip, where space allows. Left turn lanes shoulda been thought of but they weren't. The average Mexican farmers have had their butts kicked by North American Agri-business practices subsidized by US government agricultural policies forcing hard working Mexican men to migrate north to feed their families or starve on their lands. They grow corn and can't beat the US prices, thus they go under or starve trying. Check out the film "Food Inc" to learn about the paradigm shift to corn based agribusiness, the meat industry, and the subsequent destruction of Mexican farmers by Cargill, Archer Daniel Midlands (ADM) and other billion dollar US corporations. It makes me sick. Honorable " open it and smear it with mud or something.. " Even with an FM3 or 2, this is always great advice about making all items look used and not ready for resale on a store rack somewhere in Mexico. This is advice is offered, NOT to beat the system but to adhere to the legal importation laws. And always remember that the American government has systematically and consistently been building a Wall Of Shame to exclude entry. The enforcement of immigration/custom laws will, and I think understandably, become tougher on those that continuously wish As measured by HOLDING GROUND as opposed to merely seizing it, mexico's drug war is failing. But Texas gun shops are doing okay: Drug killings soar as Obama heads to Mexico summit By Julian Cardona Julian Cardona Thu Aug 6, 1:41 pm ET / yahoo news CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (Reuters) – Mexican drug gangs are killing rivals in record numbers in a major setback for the government, which will seek more support from U.S. President Barack Obama when he visits the country this weekend. Severed heads, burned bodies, daylight shootouts and dead children are daily fare from Mexico's Caribbean to its desert border with the United States, even as army generals pour soldiers and elite police onto city streets. Last month was the deadliest month of President Felipe Calderon's Buzzardwest -- I think you are correct. When the Obama administration caved in to the Teamsters this year and started the mini-trade war at the border, Mexican Customs became more vigilant in applying their own rules. I was prepared to pay full freight when I came across. Fortunately, they took pity on the Ever-dying Can you send a map to show where it is and how it is laid out Thanks RE: [B]"Fortunately, they took pity on the Ever-dying Dog."[/B] That also also brings up memories of several crossings that Mama and I made after the original grace period for imports had expired. The first involved the importation of a professional carpenter shop (I'm embarrassed to state it's value since it deteriorated in the salt air and was sold off for pennies on the dollar) that was imported in a fully loaded, including the roof, Suburban with room for three persons left over. Mama's dad traveled everywhere with us for over five years. He was in full dementia and occupied the shotgun seat when we pulled into the 24k customs south of Laredo. Even ten years ago, every stall was occupied and Jesus! Now you guys have me worried! We made 3 trips over the last 2 years with fully loaded trailer so far and no problems! We crossed in Agua Prieta, Nogales (Mariposa) and last trip Laredo (Bridge 1). It took me a month to load the trailer - unloading and reloading it at the border is NOT an option! All of our items are used (and the few new ones we brought on prior trips were made to look used.) I guess I better start re-thinking the Laredo crossing and take So, now we know where the thread went! So, now we know what happens when a thread is "off topic"! Tom decided quite a number of threads fell into the "off topic" category - it is interesting to look at Yes, customs and immigration is all at the 24k stop as of 6 months ago. Ya pull off to the right side as you approach and then go on to the building and they will come out and take a look for for your permit. The you pull on out to the red light zone and the tables for unlading are on the other side. BUTT, you do have FM3's that make it legal to import you used household goods. The out of date truck might be the biggest problem. Make sure you have a fully stocked cooler with drinks and snacks for all. There have been no crowds in the past. Mexico has far less arable land, a far greater percentage of mountainous, dry topography like oaxaca's. Too much or too little rain has also been a bane. Vast tracts were controlled by a very few from colonial times, and mother spain was decadent, not forward thinking. But there are other enduring realities behind the frustrations of everyone who has vented on this thread. In Oaxaca this year, "Apoyos" were not delivered to the campesinos as promised. 				Nan....haven't heard otherwise so assume that carburetor worked out well. How did the laptop repair go? Let me know what you don't cover off in your upcoming trip and I'll throw it in next tour. Your MP3 player will be great for loading your existing CDs onto. Your laptop media player will rip them to your hard drive and then just drag and drop to the player. 				The Carb is great! Ah yes the laptop repair, see I forgot that one. It went well once Omar managed to get the Vista off and the XP and Linux on and the machine works just fine now. I have no existing CDs, I only had like 20 and they all disappeared from the StS office where the binders of CDs were kept - even ABBA's Greatest Hits disappeared - now how weird is that? Leaves me wondering who ELSE on this planet would want an ABBA CD? An Ann Rice Vampire novel in Spanish also disappeared from there - go figure. I will try out the link you suggest and see if I can get anything onto my MP3 player. Yes,

				The pastor entered his donkey in a race and it won.. The pastor was so pleased with the donkey that he entered it in the race again, and it won again. The local paper read: PASTOR'S ASS OUT FRONT. The Bishop was so upset with this kind of publicity that he ordered the pastor not to enter the donkey in another race. The next day, the local paper headline read: BISHOP SCRATCHES PASTOR'S ASS. This was too much for the bishop, so he ordered the pastor to get rid of the donkey. The pastor decided to give it to a nun in a nearby convent. The local paper, hearing of the news, posted the following headline the next day: NUN HAS BEST ASS IN TOWN. The bishop fainted. He informed the nun that she would have to get rid of the donkey, so she sold it to a farmer for $10. The	1131

The cheaper one goes for between $US50 and $US75 from most dealers, though there is one company claiming to be liquidating them at $37US. I think you have to be careful of the really low-priced ones and they are often used or refurbished. You can get a refurbished one for as little as $20US. All in all, $450MX sounds like a really good price. This will 'bump' it back to the first page, where hopefully more folks will view the series and pass them along to local folks involved in tourism, fishing ... maybe even Conapesca bureaucrats. Unfortunately there is little chance of stopping it happening as there is too much money to be made in the sale of the fish and turtles. A bribe here and there pretty much makes anything happen. I know someone who tried to stop the fishermen killing turtles in a small town up in the sea of cortez and when they went to the police were told it would be looked into. A day or two later the main fisherman came up to her and said not to even bother because he was making so much money from it that he could pay off whoever she called in. 				[b]"An interesting fact about white people is that they firmly believe that all of the world's problems can be solved through "awareness." Meaning the process of making other people aware of problems, and then magically someone else like the government will fix it. This belief allows them to feel that sweet self-satisfaction without actually having to solve anything or face any difficult challenges. Because, the only challenge of raising awareness is people not being aware. In a worst case scenario, if you fail someone doesn't know about the problem. End of story. What makes this even more appealing for white people is that you can raise "awareness" through expensive dinners, parties, Well, at least they are sold at the Tonalá bazaar.

				"Presley began his career in 1954 as one of the first performers of rockabilly, an uptempo fusion of country and rhythm and blues with a strong back beat. His novel versions of existing songs, mixing "black" and "white" sounds, made him popular—and controversial[5][6][7]—as did his uninhibited stage and television performances. Presley had a versatile voice[8] and he had unusually wide success encompassing many genres, including rock and roll, gospel, blues, country, ballads and pop. To date, he has been inducted into four music halls of fame. In the 1960s, Presley made the majority of his 31 movies, most of which were poorly reviewed but financially successful musicals.[9] In 1968, he returned [IMG]http://i278.photobucket.com/albums/kk87/1BUZZARDWEST/GIFS/applaus

No "gourmet" food like the goat cheese at Super Che. Toiletries: a whole aisle of Colgate, a few toothbrushes. Just a few brands of skin cream. No Cottonelle toilet paper (the softest you can here). It's like those super cheap stores in the States that sell things just before their expiration date. Also not very clean, smelled bad, and very narrow aisles. A 600 ml bottle of Coke was 7.3 pesos.
