The fact that they're not used more widely in Huatulco is one of the primary reasons that sailfish are getting "scarce" [sic]. Their use requires some training, however, and I don't do enough big game fishing outside of Huatulco to make a good instructor. In fact Frank was trolling, good joke by the way, since my post made no mention of keeping sailfish, just dorado. One of the five sailfish was gut hooked (the result of the usual Huatulco use of J-hooks rather than circle hooks) and was not released. The others were. 				Their coffee production facilities are somewhat limited. I will normally order about 35 or 40 kilos at a time and it takes them two but safer to say three days to turn that order around. They roast the beans to order and then those need to cool off before they are packaged. All packaging is done by hand. The 1/2 and 1/4 kilo bags are weighed out. The beans go straight into the bags but the ground of course needs to be ground and then put in the bags. Then they heat seal the bags also by hand and put on the sticky labels. They actually ran out of coffee completely in November of 2007 due to the increased volume that they sold that year. We were not able to get any coffee until they picked beans again loved it...but, what's number 10? BTW...rinsed hooks today for about 6 hours, trolling and bottom fishing... mant short strikes trolling 6" hoochies, green/blue and white...maybe need to put a few more beads in front of the hook...lots of small fish from the bottom and one morey eel...nothing in the cooler. we had birds attacking the hoochies and hanging on while we reeled them in...lucky that no hooks ever set, but they would finally let go, then grab the lure again as we reeled in...they were good sized sea birds and we were thankful that they flew

We are six people -- two small families, each including an eight-year-old girl. Last year we stayed at Villa del Pacifico in Yo Luis, I play no musical instruments but I record and do sound for Steve of the Redneck Mothers. He has a song to be produced as a video and I need exactly what I asked for. If you know one I'll meet for a paid audition in October when I return. If that player can do the music, he will be paid well. 				Allow me to return to that original topic of yesterday... While I agree with Imago that adults should not be treated as if they were children, i also concur with others that more responsibility comes with becoming an adult. However, power tripping on others rights and making up universal rules has never seemed to modify the very human desire to take ones own decisions in the least. While my views towards drugs and their legal status tend towards more legalization rather than further futile attempts at "wars on drugs", i also recognize the need to protect children from adult predators that would ensnare them into drug usage

Specifically, I know we will not be interested in trying to relax on a beach if the beach is packed with people and vendors during the day. How thick are the crowds and when are the best times for visiting in December, in relation to the crowds? What if we rent a car and visit Boca de Iguana or Tenacatita during the Christmas holiday -- will there be thick crowds there, too? Any way to escape the crowds, in As You all know we are to celebrate 199th years of independence in MEXICO We mexicans feel even more mexi-cans in this sept 15th But the true spirit comes with the fight of everyone to get out of this tough times..People abroad are wondering how safe is to live or invest in Mexico , the swine flu , drugs , etc, etc but it seems that we, Mexico get all the bad publicity around, THAT IS NOT WHAT WE ARE ! Remember all good times you have spent in our beaches, If you are going out as a family group it would be unlike that the girls would encounter aggressive male behaviour toward them. Our towns are not nearly as wild during the Holidays as are Puerto Vallarta, Cancùn or Acapulco. However I do not recommend the girls go out on their own for the Holidays since as in any part of the world the use of alcohol and drugs increases among everyone during the Holidays. Many of the restaurants will be offering folkloric Ballets and Mexican music which you will also get to see at the plazas and that might be something fun to do along with a delicious dinner. Nan also offers special packages to go out on a boat for the day with water activities and meals This forum seems a bit out of touch with the actual happenings of Pto. Much more concerned with taking sides, ridiculing ona another, and making false accusations. Thats a shame. I was just wondering how long it would take for some internet genius to mention the new teachers strike started tuesday. Seems as though they are protesting the death of a teacher near Pinotepa. I I like your answer Luna. I have two daughters too (12 & 16) and I would be looking for a quiet New Years Eve....just like always. The LA Times said they would end the strike on the 4th of Sept. I guess we will see how accurate their reporting is. There is also the story of 17 drug rehab Barra is usually very quiet until the weekend before Christmas. Connected to local gang and businessmen/women in central. About 10 people witnessed the incident that lasted three days and was a mystery until the 18 year old girlvictim escaped. 				If you have never had this you are missing out on a culinary delight! Will be checking in Manzanillo. Chiles en nogada From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia Jump to: navigation, search Chiles en nogada with a Mexican Modelo beer. Chiles en nogadaChiles en nogada is a dish from Mexican cuisine. The name comes from the Spanish word for the walnut tree, nogal. It consists of poblano chiles filled with "picadillo" (a mixture usually containing chopped or ground meat, aromatics, fruits, and spices) topped with a walnut-based cream sauce and pomegranate seeds, giving it the three colors of the Mexican flag (red, green, and white). The traditional chile in Nogada is from Puebla. The It is easy to see whom is responsible for many of Mexico's problems. Example the hacienda statistics for the past year report 90% the Mexican Legal population does not recognize federal law and pay taxes. So in hand 90% of the population either are mentally incapable of doing so, or refuse to obey the laws and are criminals. Now of that 10% that does pay taxes 1 percent are Americans. So we Americans pay 10% of the taxes for the other 90 lazy law breaking beaners with mustaches, coke addictions and stinkin badges. Whats up with that?. Is it not enough the U.S. bailed out Mexico when the PRI stole every penny from every legal MExcian and foreigner invested in Mexico....and the dumb uneducated peons got paid 500 pesos to vote for the criminals once a mere 20 30 million dollars? Is playa manzanillo a part of that and the dump at the point? I DUNNO You could take a vote but then you would be forced to leave town like Oscar Cardenas or worse Beat Salzmman from Becasurf. (who was the man leaning against the wall of his entrance?, who was the man standing on the corner next to the truck? wasn't Barney Pheiff from Maybery around the Gotta get me one of those things! An important follow-up: While in August 2009 there has been a 12.8% year-to-year overall decline in air travel to Mexico, travel to Huatulco has actually INCREASED. The data is from ASUR (the airport operator) and may be verified at: One of my favorite mexican dishes is Chiles en Nogada. Is there a restaurant in the area that serves it for the Independence holidays? Yum, Yum,,,,, What you are told and what is actual may be two differnt things. To eventually become a resident or gain the ability to stay full time in MEXico and work is a often mistated bit of pre destined mis information unless you plan on operating a business of accomodations or manufacturing among others. There is a persona moral i.e (S.A. C.V.) and a persona Physica. The first requiring significantly more paperwork and taxes. The second a persona Physica which can simply be a person practicing their profession. Both will allow you live in Mexico year round and own property at the same time. The persona moral just lines the pockets of the notary (given they are a real notary) and causes much more fees which are normally doubled by disonest local un-civil servants. Also If you love good Wine, Good Jazz, Good Food then Manzanillo is where you need to be in late Feb. www.costaalegrewiney jazzfestival.org.mx LT, please fill me in on why the teachers would strike over a teachers death. I watch the news, and try to read the paper but my spanish stinks (seriously). It's a wonder these kids get any kind of education at all. Every time someone sneeses they lose a day of school. I'm sorry to hear someone died but probably 99% of the people in the state of Oaxaca didn't even know the person. The My husband and I stayed at Sueno del Mar and met a wonderful mix of people including and interesting couple (owners) who introduced us to Huatulco and its bays and restaurants and nature preserves and adventures. We will always treasure that trip, and look forward to renting their Sueno del Mar unit for many years to come. Speed-o's concerns may be exaggerated or misplaced, and while he/she is "searching", it may be worthwhile to research the rich Zapotec Of course we are very biased on where to stay, as we own a unit at Sueno del Mar which is the premier and newly constructed condominium on Bahia Chahue. SdM is only 10-20 minutes walking distances to the marina, Santa Cruz, La Crucecita and Tangolunda, and a 3-minute stroll to the beach at Construction and Architecture office -- the best cuality at the best price -- We have many years experince building anything from small house maintenance of anykind, minor or major house remmodeling, to completed houses we design acording with the City Hall rules and the construction codes in Mexico we have good references in many ways and happy costumers. our job include every thing such us: electrical, custom carpentry, pulish concrete, aluminum work and detail painting, palapas, pools, small jacuzzys, etc, etc. we are equiped with all the That was an enjoyable evening...good food and great music. whwre exactly r u at? got a phone no#? It is not affiliated with the national teachers' union. When there was the major problem in Oaxaca a few years ago, the governor started a new union, 59, which is affiliated with the national union. Basically 59 was meant to be a strike breaker. It didn't work, but it created a whole other mess. At one point the 59 teachers closed down Oaxaca City to protest their losing their jobs when the 22 strike ended. Now there is a situation in some places where the communities are split as to whether to have the 22 union run their schools or the 59. This led to a 22 teacher being shot to death in a village near Pinotepa. So the current round this site: http://dgp.sct.gob.mx/fileadmin/Atlas/jalisco.pdf zoom in for the area of choice...but beware...these maps have some old villages that have gone away, but this is a better than any other maps available...if you need to print an area, There are no options to follow the coast except 200. 				One easy way of learning Spanish is learning cognates, I will be posting them in alphabetical order!! HABLAS ESPAÑOL? pacobarriente@hotmail.com (044) 315 109 3641 Pick the one you need and build your own vocabulary!! SPANISH COGNATES LETTER- A abandon - abandonar abdicate - abdicar abnormal - anormal abolish - abolir abolition abolición abominable - abominable abolish - abolir abound - abundar abrupt - abrupto absolute - absoluto absolutely - absolutamente absorb - absorber abstain - abstenerse abstraction - abstracción absurd - absurdo abundance- abundancia abundant - abundante abundantly - abundantemente abuse(n) abuso abuse(v) abusar abyss - abismo academy- academia accelerate-acelerar accent- acento accentuate-acentuar accept- Hi - Although I'm bilingual, I'm ashamed to say I didn't know what you meant by "cognates". So I looked it up and this is what I found, in case any of you - like me - didn't know the reference: "Cognates are words that have similar pronunciations and spellings in both languages, and frequently have the same meaning. There are thousands of cognates shared by Spanish and English. I don't think the ban is in effect yet...all stores here in DF are still using them. I have just completed building a home in Sector O. It is a very pleasant area as Wayne has indicated. All Utilities are underground. It is quiet and gets a very nice ocean breeze. There are some restrictions as to what can be built in order to prevent every home from looking the same. I am from the USA. As far as I know there is a mix of Canadians, Amerians, and Mexicans. The older area had restrictions requiring that building be completed within a time frame set by Fonatur. The newer area which recently opened has no such time requirements.

When my income goes down, I spend less. Why does that logic not work for Federal governments? IMO, Hacienda already collects too many taxes, the last windfall was the tax on cash deposits. It far exceeded SAT's expected revenues. Rather than keep raising taxes, why not look to cut some unneeded spending? The amount of lana the diputados, senadores and gobers make is criminal. How much salary does the Gober de Oaxaca make? His prestaciones are a bit much... Location: Filipinas Street in downtown Barra de Navidad [b](MAP http://www.seatosierra.com/where/mp_barra_1280.html)[/b] just off of Veracruz the main street into town from the highway. Eight one bedroom and one studio apartment all with private bathrooms available for rent. Two of the apartments are three years old the rest rented for the first time in the 2007/2008 winter season. [b]RATES[/b] Larger one bedroom suites $600 USD per month, $250 "You tourists come down here and create huge problems with your drug use".. Wrong. "(You) contribute nothing to our community other than some bar and restaurant tabs" In most tourist destinations that is what tourists do. "(You) argue with poor, honest venders over pennies and constantly complain and criticize." No, never have done that. "Most of you speak no Spanish other than being able to navigate the market and order food and drinks." Guilty as charged. Can you SERIOUSLY say with a straight face that Mexican police on EVERY level are not amongst the most corrupt in this hemisphere? (You wanna see worse, go to Cambodia & other poorer countries, BTW). I remember when I lived in Mazatlan how the transit police would bilk tourists out of what ever they could get for jay walking while a Mexican National did the same thing within sight. I'd just laugh & tell them in Spanish that I lived there & to get a new hobby. They'd smile. I also knew drug dealers who assured me that Federales were involved in perhaps 75% of all drug deals. 				Hello, We are planning a trip back to Melaque this January. We used Hertz last year and they were good. Before that we used Budget, lets just say they were not as good. This time, I can't find Hertz anywhere online, do they still exist at ZLO? At this point I have a car reserved with Budget but would prefer to deal elsewhere. I would welcome any feedback on other companies at ZLO. The main problems we had with Budget were the inflated insurance of $26 per day on top of the rental quote or putting the entire cost of a brand new car on our credit card (the car was pretty beat, not worth half of new). They also switched cars with us after a few days and tried to charge us for damage that the second

				Hi DH: They are better called "false cognates" rather than "non-cognates" Bache is a non-cognate - it means pothole. No deception there. Embarazada is a false cognate because it might suck you into thinking you can guess the meaning, only to spit you out with a red face. For those who would like a book listing thousands of cognates, try Margarita Madrigals's "Madrigal's Magic Key to Spanish". It is one really good way to learn Spanish, if a little unconventional. 				They announced this yesterday on the plane regarding companion fare tickets on Alaska Airlines apparently effective October 1 on new discount codes issued. http://www.alaskaair.com/as/mileageplan/Companion-Ticket-FAQ.asp [b]From the Alaska Site[/b][i]The price of the annual Bank of America Companion Ticket will be increasing from $50 USD to $99 USD on October 1, 2009. Your current Companion Ticket Discount Code and any Discount Codes earned before October 1 will remain at $50 until they are used or expire. All new Companion Ticket Discount Codes issued on or after October 1 will be at $99. New accounts opened after October 1, 2009 will include a Discount Code for a $99 Companion Ticket. They have a new form to fill out when you land at ZLO - as Babyboom and I found out yesterday - so keep a pen handy and comb your hair because they take a photo of you too once you've handed in the form. Not sure why they need the photo but the form requires that one fill in ones name and address and provide yes or no answers to a list of questions about flu symptoms. I'm just glad Claudia ... I would check with Juan first if I were you. I just spoke to him I will list is not your house and yes check it out with the owner no problem for me if you can find some one for $800.00 USD do it

43758	12	paul falduto	Re: My house for rent long ter	Sure, buzzard, whatever you say--if I can ever figure out what you DID say, that El Grito de la Independencia as is popularly called is celebrated on the 15th of September at midnight, however the celebrations begin tonight with bailables in the Jardin of Villa Obregón, tomorrow the 15th there will be horse races which will begin at the Jardin of Villa Obregón there will also be bike, tricycle and wheel barrel races. I don't know what time they will begin (as of last night there was no schedule set up yet), the horse races are wild, it is a traditional pueblo activity at this time of the year, fun to watch, you will have to watch out for people shooting actual guns, the guys will make bets the horses and their riders and they will drink lots of Tequila. At the jardin in San Patricio there will be a 5 BLOCKS FROM OCEAN 2 blocks from highway...price to sell. 2 floors, 5 rooms, 3 bathrooms, swimming pool, 1 kitchen, main street at villa obregon	952

I really appreciate Hate to tell you guys, but we are in the tropics and leprosy does exist in Mexico but mostly further north - Sinoloa and like that. It's now called Hansen's Disease and it is treatable. Here is what Amazon.com has to say about Mexican leprosy. It's not pretty even though it is called "pretty leprosy". In Mexico, the diffuse variety of leprosy is sometimes called "pretty leprosy" because it tends to iron out the wrinkles in the skin, restoring a youthfull appearance to the patient. Infiltration of the mucosa leads to chronic rhinitis with epistaxis, septum perforation and destruction of the nasal cartilages. The tongue is thickened and there may be hoarseness. The upper incisors become loose and often drop out.	1017

The car rental place that we went through is Oaxaca auto car rental it is in Tanguilunda across from the Barcelo. His name is Patricio and was excellent. I made my arrangements all over the internet and paid for the car when we got there. They pick you up from the airport and drop you off and it's all a part of the price. I highly recommend him. In Oaxaca we stayed at the Gala Hotel which was right in the center. That's where you want to be. The price was reasonable compared to all the others. According to my research the Colima area has been populated for over 3000 years by the Olmec, Náhuatl, Toltec, Chichimec, and lastly the Tarasca peoples, who were those living in the area at the time of the Spanish conquest in 1527. I don't know who built these sites but it wasn't the gnlsjb I have to tell you that you do not really need a car while in Huatulco. You just don't. If by some incredible chance you find yourself in a position to need one for a day or two you can rent it just for that. The thing is that there are taxis everywhere and they are really really cheap ($20 - $30 pesos) to go anywhere in Huatulco. Now getting TO Oaxaca City is a little bit of a conflict because driving there is a cool thing... once or twice. The problem is that once you get to Oaxaca you really won't need the car. Take a taxi around Oaxaca, once you get there you will see why. If you go to Mitla or Teotitlan or Ocotlán or San Bartolo or Hierve el Agua or... you might want to drive but you really don't need to but since you already have the car you may as well. If you don't take a car to Oaxaca over the mountains (It is not dangerous to drive yourself. That is just silly. I have no idea	122

				You can do it as a day trip Steve, it is about 2.5 hours drive from here to La Campana which is in Villa de Alvarez near Soriana. Then it is another 20 minutes or so on to El Chanal. The La Campana site is quite large and is on both sides of the parking lot, El Chanal is large as well but it is all on one side of the parking. When we do walk through tours Jupiter usually spends an hour or so at each. As an archaeology hobbyist you'd probably want spend more time though and make it an overnigher. That way you could also visit the big museum up by the Army Base - ahhhh help me Jupiter what's that museum called. Anyway there they have more information about those sites and artifacts sparks, I was not trying to be "snarky," when I asked if the question was too personal, sorry if it came across this way, as my question has nothing to do with this supposed thing about you and Claudia or anything else noted in these Thanks to you all, Mina, Puerto Bill, gg, Hualto travel agency and you hemi for all your suggestions and we know that we will have a great time in Hualtuco and Oxaca. Will we see any of you in Huatulco in November? Steve and my wife, Sounds like this is not a small dog, will you have a crate for the dog? In that case you may want to arrange for a larger vehicle than a taxi to pick you up. When I came into PVR in June with two 29" suitcases stuffed full, a medium sized suitcase and two carry on (one was a brief case with my lap top the other larger) the taxi driver who brought me to Barra had to put my second large suitcase in the front seat next to him because it wouldn't fit in the trunk with the other large and small suitcase. Not exactly easy to walk out to the main road and flag down a cab! If I remember correctly, we paid him about $50.00 US for the afternoon. This was about 5 years ago. We've also gone by boat- "private" Spamming a web site for your own benefit is usually frowned upon but there must be some kind of etiquette that giving out your info is OK as long as it is not there every time you post or something like that. Obviously letting people know you have a place to rent is helpful but if you were to show up every couple days letting everybody know you still have this or that week available and have a signature that spams the site it gets to be annoying and it really is not fair top Tomzap and the other people who pay to advertise. Reasonable is the key word.	1049

44020	12	Vallartagal	Re: wireless internet	From Boca Bob: "does anyone know if Barra/Melaque has 3G service from Tecel yet and how well it works. Thanks!" I have Telcel on my Blackberry. When in Pto. Vta. and in Manzanillo, I have 3G service - pretty fast! But in the Melaque/Barra area my phone still shows Edge. I still get data downloads, email The master plan for Isla Navidad development includes a new marina on the lagoon - Puerto Magallanes. It will be the second marina in Isla Navidad, the first being the marina next to the Grand Bay hotel. The new marina will be bigger and designed to accommodate the mega-yachts - 100 ft on up. It will eventually have commercial space, some condominiums, and other support services. There is no plan at the moment to have another hotel included in the project. The start-up Yeah, I got that same message when I landed at Pierson and turned my phone on to check the time. It was a nice surprise to have bars up since before this past trip I could stay in touch by roaming into ATT in the US but there was no service at all in Canada. This time my Telcel phone worked right across Canada, even on the dock in Port Alberni though I didn't seem to have any service in Bamfield on the far west coast of Vancouver Island. Hopefully Telcel won't go and do something to screw up the relationship with Rogers. A few years back my Telcel phone roamed into Verison or Sprint (I forget which) in the US, then Polo in Cihuatlan used to give lessons at his family's clay courts. The courts are next to the foot ball field behind the bus terminal. Leone should have contact a very pertinent parable. nice one Red. coconutz down 88 up 10	4573

				No offense, but yep, I think it's you. I think Zipolite is better than it has been in 15 years. Roca Blanca is happening, there is a great variety of food and places to stay. The druggie scene has ALWAYS been strong in Zipo, but it's no longer dominant. My parents are over 70 and prefer to stay in roca blanca over San Augustinillo, where I live. It's more fun and they feel safe enough there. Zipo has a sense of community that is not as divisive as Mazunte or San A or Puerto A (the worst). As to Zicatela, yes, it's more developed for official tourism and keeps PS. If you do make it over to Las Hamacas, we love to have dinner/dance parties around the ranch. You'll surely be invited to join in if you are the least bit Thank you Marilyn for your interest and input. I would be interested in knowing if anyone can relate to my explanation on the preposition, A. In my book I always say that the patterns are more important than the translations, and this is especially true with the preposition, A. Consider the following: Juan va a la tienda. / Juan is going (goes) to the store. Here the A translates as the equivalent of our English prep, TO. This is useful because we can form many sentences and thus use A right away. As Marilyn pointed out some teachers use the term "A Personal". This helps to show why it (A) is sometimes used in front of people, but it does not explain why. And though the grammar based Thanks for the 'heads-up'. As it gets closer to that time, it would be helpful to know what hours/days the INM folks will be available.

44168	12 sparks	Re: Ayuda los Ninos school pr	Each unit in the duplex has 2 bedrooms, 2.5 baths, jacuzzi on the terrace. Only Howard, Thank you for your interest. The patterns of speech I focus on relate to your questions. As for your first question, yes I did translate it as the imperative. We know this by the spelling/conjugation of the verb, AYUDA. A more obvious example of the imperative would be, Ayúdanos. / Help us. As you said, this could also translate as "It helps the kids" / Ayuda a los niños. However, in that case the verb, AYUDAR would not pertain/relate to a specific person. The problem in this case (and most others) is that we don't actually know what we are talking about. If we know what the indicative, AYUDA pertains to then we can translate the sentence. For instance, El estudiar ayuda a los niños. / i hate to rain on your parade buddy, but why don't you and your linguistically involved academics get a room...or at least a thread of your own...?? i know i routinely hyjack threads, but i hope to do it with some mirth and or outrageousness...your hyjack is dead dull...and if you were living here making the or Dan, or any of the other 100's of volunteers and contributors? 				Actually Ricky, Canadian Thanksgiving is the second Monday in October - which is why I missed Germain's Canadian Thanksgiving dinner at his restaurant last year. I will take along as a builder for 35 years, I'll have to think about that one imago. you have a good point and may be right. it seems logical what you say about the prices going up, but there is something to say about the continuity factor. starting, stopping, and changing crews is expensive. sand, cement, bricks, and even labor are not. it is somewhat demoralizing to work for someone who you know doesn't have the money to finish. the spirit and excitement are just not the same	392

44205	6	huatulco travel agen	Re: May arrival	Yes, I agree, there is a lot of blame out there. But most of it is not Mexico's. The toll roads are, I believe, a combination of private and public funding. In Mexico you cannot build a toll road unless there is also a public, free, highway. The project includes an aquaduct that will run parallel to the highway. The advantage of the toll roads is speed and (sometimes) maintenance. I may be wrong, but my impression is that most of the investment is from the government. I've read that May is the hottest month of the year. The BIG, drum roll announcement last year made it sound as if this was a "new" project, initiated by URO. However, the highway from O to H has been in the works for about 20 years, maybe more. 44358	6	Casa Hoffa	Re: Air Traffic to Huatulco	Bill, I think Matt is giving us a set of interesting, yet apparently contradictory facts. Based on his air traffic data (he provides us with his source at http://www.asur.com.mx/asur/ingles/prensa/comunicados.asp) tourism and business travel to Huatulco is fairing better than to most of the other cities in Mexico. On the other hand, as Matt has noted, the Huatulco economy, as with the rest of Mexico, isn't doing as well due to the global recession, the flu scare RGM...do you have any thoughts on the Garmin 1250T...available on the One of the challenges in Huatulco is the mindset about pricing. Many local business persons, i am told, have in the past raised prices to offset a drop in business. The rental property prices go up consistently every year. Our apartment rent will be up 50% as of this Dec since 2006. Is it notpossible then to have an increase in tourists but a decline in spending due to prices? Still, Huatulco is an excellent value for every dollar/peso spent in my opinion. The As for airport statistics being the litmus test for the local economy, quoting Mark Twain;"There are three kinds of lies: lies, damned lies, and statistics." Perhaps Casa Hoffa can provide their occupancy rates as an indicator of the local economy? I know the cheaper hotels in town are sucking wind right now. A That seems to be the conventional wisdom of many tourist areas in Mexico. When volume dips, the answer is to raise prices to try to make up the shortfall of revenues. Which is counter intuitive...usually as demand erodes and supply OK. if you are prepared to forgo the hotel thing, I know of some really nice condos with ocean views, internet, 5 mins walk to quiet beach, 2 bedrooms, pool, kitchenette, no problem with cabs to town to restaurants. If you are Hola, and thank you all for your guidance and feedback. Pedro is right when he alludes to how statistics can lie, but then turns around and quotes another statistic (Average time to Market) as a single, better indicator. We find no fault with his logic if he also agrees that we need to follow a number of indicators: A-t-M, air traffic, unemployment, and as Mina has pointed-out, rents (and the ability to pay those rents). Here at the Casa Hoffa we are tracking air traffic. Through the years we have noted that transportation is a measure of economic activity and in many instances, it may be a leading indicator: physical movements generally precede financial transactions, but there is no guarantee of that this	2337

				Seems to be some minimal work evident today on the unfinished highway section in town(from the bridge to just east of the second road down to Zicatela), mainly just incoming gravel and fill for the roadbed. Paving that in-town section would give us four lanes from the bridge to a point about a quarter-mile from the Pemex station near the Cross. Right now, the unfinished two inside lanes are completed for 90 percent of the way, with unfinished sections at both ends. As it is, most drivers are using the two completed lanes on the ocean-side, but many who live out there and visit there frequently are now frequently using the mostly-finished inside lanes, where there is little traffic. With that-car eating drainage ditch down the middle -- so deep it prevents safe crossing -- there is nowhere to pull off safely on the inside lanes going either way, the traffic hazard of having no turn lanes where you can turn, and a lot of unnecessary cross traffic at high speeds. This design will certainly produce accidents in which the drivers on the high side lose it, roll down the embankment, over or through Hullo, PB. You have not seen this construction. My friend and I with over 100 years between us had never seen any such thing in our lives. As it stands now, once the highway is completed, you would have to drive almost to the Pochutla turn-off to go from Cumaná to Puerto Escondido. As it stands at this very moment, you cannot cross from Tomatal to the fields on the other side of the highway. Somebody should go out there and take photos and post them. 				Thanks for the answer Farkem. I'll assume it hasn't changed since August. I have ridden my bike to Tomatal a few times and have driven it a few times. I have seen it up close and personal when it was dry and when it was raining. The high side of the road is high because there is more dirt on that side. To make it level with the old side would have been impractical. Just where do you think they should put all that dirt, for one thing? There are miles and miles of dirt times 1 meter (Imago's measurement). There is no place to put it and the cost is prohibitive. They had to but the drainage in the middle because of the water run off. To put drainage pipes underground it would have been to expensive. You I reported the following on the Huatulco board a couple of years ago when it happened. Never did get any good replies from the Huatulco defenders, because, I assume, they knew it to be true. Some Canadians staying at Sueno Real (where we were also staying) got in a traffic accident on rented scooters. Even though there's a nice new hospital in Huatulco & a great naval hospital as well, they weren't allowed to be taken there. The very nice Cruz Roja people treated them at the scene, & then the one man who was fairly badly injured was taken to Pochutla. I can't remember if the red cross took him or if he had to go in a taxi. Anyway, once there the care was horrible. His wife had to clean & dress Unfortunately (from what we have seen)...ZLO is definitely not as convenient as PVR...we could fly direct one day from Victoria to PVR, we are still flying out of Victoria to ZLO, but will overnight on the way thier and on the way back in LA.....the Holiday Inn LAX is only a 10 minute shuttle ride from the Airport and

PB: I don't think that the majority of the high banked curves on the new section of the highway between Colotepec and Tomatal were there naturally. I think they were intentionally made that way, by moving earth to create those high banked curves. It's the heart of the bad design of that section of highway. In any event, the ability to move large amounts of earth is part and parcel of highway building, and if there was an excess of earth only on that side of the highway (highly unlikely) it should have been removed for driving safety. God knows they moved enough earth in and out of the Puerto section of the highway. 44527	12 Nan	Re: websites - techie/guru que	Another good reason not to use IE. We went on the zip line tour in August; our teenage kids loved it, but we agree with Hibiscus, it is not at all like the tour in PVR. This was two ziplines; one was very steep but shorter, the other quite a bit longer and over the tree tops. It was at Rancho Tangelunda, I think it was about $25 per person, which included pickup and drop off at our hotel. The whole tour lasted about 1 1 1/2 - 2 hours Thanks! That's exactly what I wanted to know, and kind of what I suspected! Still, Huatulco has a lot more to offer than PV is so many other ways. We can live without the "canopy tour"! I'm actually hoping there is still a little bit of green I heard that Elvis will be making a rare appearance.... It depends on what you mean by arranging utility accounts. 				I take care of people who get in accidents in Mexico and need or want to come back to the US for care. I also take care people who come in for repair of the the occasional botched surgery that they had in Mexico. Some of my colleagues are critical of the care in Mexico. Of course, we have complications in the US also. People with injuries requiring immediate intervention will likely die in Mexico; many of those would die here. People with severe but not immediately life threatening injuries will be often be Med-evacuated to the US, like they are to our hospital in San Diego. On the consumer side, 8000 pesos is nothing compared to what you will pay to be transported to an ER in the US. I pay more That's really stating it fairly and clearly delmar. I heard from a Mexican that if you are in an accident on the Autopista in Mexico, you can ask to go to ANY hospital you want. Even the Mexican who told me didn't know this. She assumed she had to go to the nearest public hospital, but no, they took her to her preferred private hospital...no charge for treatment nor transport. And her hospital wasn't nearby. She said that's what some of the high highway tolls are used for. Obviously, she didn't have life-threatening injuries, but they were serious ones. Now, I wonder if that policy also applies to foreigners? It's something to keep in mind. Maybe 8,000 pesos sounds like a lot but Delmar is right, it's peanuts But compared to other "tourist" beach destinations in Mexico, Puerto is still unique. No all-inclusives, right? No high rises...at least not really high. Still beach access without going through a hotel lobby. Fishing is a way of life and a livelihood for many. Nature preserves nearby. Mountains practically shake hands with the ocean. And, I hope I'm saying this right, but there is a MIX of PE devotees. You can tell that from this board. You will meet Europeans, Canadians, Australians, folk from USA, retirees, young party people, aging hippies, macho surfers, wannabe surfers, swimmers, boaters, and those who just want to sip in a hammock. Am I leaving out anyone? One thing everyone Ok, suppose you have a few thousand pesos to invest. Where is the best place to put it? A Mexican bank might give you 2% a year (less a deduction for taxes). That looks better than Us or Canadian banks, but there has to be a better place. I bought the Mexico map on EBay for $60US....it normally goes for a $100....the map has most of the bigger cities,PV,Mazatlan,D.F. Monterrey,GDL.....and even ETF - ABERDEEN AUST EQU FD (AMEX: IAF)

Maybe they are only programmed to go off if it is something close by. Perhaps they don't As I had mentioned in a previous post. To the best of my knowledge Garmin is the only GPS for which you are able to get complete Mexico coverage. The coverage even includes a tiny village such as "El Aguacate" with its streets, but strangely enough the street names are not displayed. Its the tiny village between Barra and Cihuatlan. TomTom does sell a Mexico map, but it only covers about 35% of Mexico. 				Howard has done a great job as usual, providing the photo context. Most of the casual type bars in Manzo are actually variations of taco stands along the main road that parallels the beach. You will find most locals hanging out at these spots as there is a lot more activity along the street for people watching than the long beaches. There are a couple more "gringo" bars nearby like Jalepenos, Moustach Bugotti (beach view too), La Perla, etc.. all along the street. The most well know is Juanito's bar/restaurant but it is also on the street and about a mile north in Santiago. North of the Las Hadas peninsula (about two miles) there are I have tried the Guadalajara connection from Calgary and it works fairly well. Flying in you have to take a cab from airport to bus station and the last bus was about 9:00 PM. If you miss it overnight at Serena was okay, catching an early bus next morning. The bus stops in Colima for about 20 minutes and then continues on to Manzo bus station near Las Brisa (total time about 3 1/2 hours). The Guad to Manzo highway is nearly all interstate standard so a nice ride, good seats, a/c, and usually provide a sandwich/soda, and a movie (usually spanish subtitles, though may be all spanish). On the return bus ride, the bus goes directly to the Guad airport first, real handy. The stop in Colima is worth a I realize it is approximately 250 miles from Huatulco to Acapulco, but would like some input from any of the regulars who either live there or have gone to Acapulco from Huatulco. How long a drive is it? Can you make it in 6-7 hours? Not to worry, Mary Poppins and Muppets Treasure Island turn up at yard sales all the time. I'll keep a lookout ol buddy. The Who played? First? or second? I think 6-7 hours would be unlikely. We made the trip last November (we drove the coastal highway from Mazatlan to Huatulco) and I think it was closer to 8-9 hours. As far as highway 200 goes, the drive between Acapulco and Huatulco was one of the better stretches. It's a bit wider and less curvy than say Puerto Vallarta to Manzanillo - or even worse, Manzanillo to Ixtapa. Watch out for topes This is great, I can eat turkey at Ricky's on Sunday a day early and then again Monday at Ava on Thanksgiving Day. Basic accommodation would be fine as long as I can cook, take a shower and sleep in a decent bed. An internet conenction would be First I take Spiriva and there is in Melaque and in Barra and here you do NOT need prescription.. so don't worry they have it here. Have a Great day ! We appreciate your taking the time to contact WestJet. At this time WestJet has no immediate plans to fly into Manzanillo, but we are always looking for new destinations. It is feedback such as yours that assists us in making these decisions. The addition of new cities to our route network is affected by the rate at which we add new aircraft to our fleet. As is consistent with our controlled growth philosophy and low cost structure, we will only add service when we are confident we can do it successfully and meet the needs of First: I was wrong about having to go as far as the turn off for Pochutla, until the accesses are put in you will "only" have to go as far as San Antonio. Second: It was only because the residents of Tomatal closed the highway for 3 days that they got a written promise from a high authority that part of the new highway will be demolished later and turn-arounds and pedestrian bridge(s) will be built. This is something everyone will benefit from; so sometimes closing the highway is the only way to get things done. (I've been doing my research.) Guess that's due to no bad storms so Actually a lovely woman who is one of my regular clients and now a friend bought one, or put the initial payment down on one - not exactly sure of the details there. She and her daughter were supposed to be able to stay there last February and I went over prior to their arrival to check it out to see if it looked like they actually would be able to stay there. Although the lobby was not finished and there was hoarding over the front entrance the hotel did have two suites right down by the pool deck completed and the pool was full of water and running. In the end though they could not stay there but as I understand it they were put up at another hotel in Barra. 				AN OLD WOMAN'S POEM (Or Man) When an old lady died in the geriatric ward of a small hospital near Dundee, Scotland, it was believed that she had nothing left of any value... Later, when the nurses were going through her meager possessions, they found this poem. Its quality and content so impressed the staff that copies were made and distributed to every nurse in the hospital. One nurse took her copy to Ireland, and has since appeared in the Christmas edition of the News Magazine of the North Ireland Association for Mental Health. This little old Scottish lady, with nothing left to give to the world, is now the author of this "anonymous" poem winging across the internet: CRABBY OLD WOMAN

				Another option is to take the ETN bus to Guadalajara airport. Make a reservation on http://www.vivaaerobus.com/. This is a cheap airline that will fly you to Hermosillo. It costs about 1,000 pesos depending on the day of the week you fly. Then take Tufesa to Phoenix from Hermosillo. The cost of the bus from GDL to Escrituras from Colotepec? Not according to the Bienes Comunales. Lands in Colotepec have Actas de Posesión according to the president of the Bienes In Colo escrituras carry no more power than actas. IF you read D's webpage he states his property cannot be sold due to improper paperwork. And we all know I am able to say, "I didn't buy any of the land in question." Lucky me.

I asked at immigration last year and was told La Aduana but cannot locate where that Farkem, let your mind wonder a little and let's see what you think about this... I like the highway much better (when they start using the new part) than what was there. I didn't say I like dumping dirt to block the flow of runoff water. But if Farkem could take it to the next level maybe he could see that the temporary fix has possibilities for a permanent fix. Maybe putting a large culvert type deal in the cement ditch and put concrete over that. Make is a few meters long/wide (8 meters? More? Less?). Then you would have a permanent crossing and the I heard you will hear about it in the news sometime soon. Nothing everybody did not know already but could do nothing about.

Was it a permit to temprarily import a vehicle, valid for one year, with a hologram you stick on your windshield? If so, it is valid for as long as your visa is valid. If you have renewed your FM3 or FM2 then you I think there is something else about Puerto most people don't talk about much -- and that is how some of us -- myself included -- found themselves irresistibly drawn to Puerto, and moved here as a result of that strange compelling attraction. I know people who came to Puerto on one-week vacations and were scouting land before the week was out. I know people who came here on two- week vacations and wound up buying hotels before the vacation was over. I know people who were passing through but couldn't leave town. I know people who wanted to relocate somewhere else in Mexico, and drove from Torreon, all the way down the Caribbean coast and around the Yucatan before arriving in Puerto Escondido certainly acts like a sieve, in my opinion. Those that stay love it, else they move on. And many do, thank goodness. It's difficult to put PE's mystique into words. It's easier to talk about woes, warts and wrongs. Harder to explain the tug/hold it has on some of us. The new highway photos? I just don't Geriarnde, for some people Mexico is the South only Deeper, another few loads of dirt will do it. 				I think Farkem has hit on it. I agree with what he said. I have a feeling that most people who have come back at least twice and for sure 99% of the people who bought something to live in in Puerto feel what Farkem has said. Big Red's story is exactly what Farkem is talking about (I think) and what I feel. I too have said it many times. There is something about Puerto that people like. Most people like. Like Farkem said there are so many people who come to visit for a short period and leave with the thought of coming back to live. It seems like everybody has their next trip planned before they leave and have tried to figure out how a piece of land can be acquired. I bought a piece of land in 1988 but didn't have money I agree with Farkem and Puerto Bill. I am where PB was a few years after he bought his property. We have the property, love to go to PE, but then come back to California and wonder when we will build. It was nice to read your story. 				Mr. Dry House, First off what is your name ? I have read your many rants over the past couple of years and if you consider a post on a Board such as Tom Zap to be "writing in the public domain" that's a bad joke. Your punctuation is poor your ramblings are juvenile and your attitude toward a born and raised Mexican national is insulting at best. Plus you need to use your spell checker. Paco is my friend and anyone who knows him knows that he was only passing on some helpful information about an important day in Mexico. He corrected his initial mistake and credited the author. Paco is only guilty of trying to put his name out there (as do many others) in order to earn an income. Get off your high horse I second T Gray, especially about the atrocious use of the English language by DryHouse. That's embarrassing, especially when taking another to task about plagiarization and "intellectual" property. You sir, are most ludicrous and petty. They have been in business a long time and are very well established in a major tourist area and they are not much more expensive than you. Their rates have steadily risen each year as they become more popular. I have stayed there several times and these people really know what they are doing. I have also been to Comala several times on day trips and think that it's a very nice area to spend the day	1035

45013	12	dukecda	Re: My house for rent long ter	OK I give, what's an aero flight? Do you mean airline flights? There are plenty of those, ZLO isn't closed. I have a listing of the airlines I've identified as flying into Manzanillo with links to their sites (click on the header bar for each airline) here http://www.seatosierra.com/where/tra_a1.html ...and looking at my page I now think you might mean Aeromexico or Aeromar by aero? Aeromexico no longer I nationalized my Jeep under a program when the government changed last - outgoing Presidents seems to run a [i]"legalize the autos chocolates"/[i] program prior to leaving office. That cost me about $4800 pesos to Aduana for the importation and another $800 ish pesos for the plate and permit to operate obtained at the office in Cihuatlan with the papers from Aduana. I believe it is more expensive when there isn't a program on but it can be done if you make I just checked the prices on two, round trip from Mexico City to Manzanillo.	4593
45014	5	njscott63	Re: Surf Trip	Aeromar has a price of around $5,300 pesos with taxes. Magnicharter And Mexicana show a round trip Super Saver fare of 1 adult(s) = (3,000.00 + 933.19) = 3,933.19 MN - so there's your options.	262

				They do sell a brand that needs to be refrigerated at Soriana and Walmart, it is offered in the refrigerated cases of the stores. I forget the name of it but they do have it. Something like Sol or Soy...can't remember. If I see it I know what it is. It comes in Chocolate, Vanilla, plain and I think something like banana. The only soy milks I have found around here are tetra pack and powder. Read the ingredients on any powdered soy milk packages carefully. I bought one that said Soy Milk it was in a foil package with green on it. I had difficulty digesting the Anything with deet in it should work just fine. I can't say for Melaque but I don't know of anyone in Barra with dengue right now, but it does exist in this zone. I had it once when I first came down here and it was awful. Apparently there are four types and if you get one you can still get the other three so now I wear repellent and keep my screens in good repair - which isn't easy with cocker spaniels around the house who don't recognize screens as a barrier. For today it tells me it is 82 deg.F and it is supposedly raining? Winds ESE at 23 Mph? Also supposedly this coming Tuesday it calls for rain with 3 Mph winds? Is I think that the weather station is at the Manzanillo airport so what it reads may not be what you have in Barra. Here in Manzanillo it rained a little about half an hour ago and we had whitecaps on the water with low visibility. Now it is still The winds are up there in speed right now. And there were a few drops of water, but I wouldn't say that it is raining. Cloudy. The temp could be right.	67

I think it makes sense that a naturalized Mexican citizen might loose their citizenship if absent from Mexico for five years. If I wasn't going to live here anymore there wouldn't be much point in my being a citizen here Michael - I was up against this same dilemma 4 years ago, but with a 30 minute connection. On arrival I hired a Red Cap with a cart who proceeded to wheel and weave through the airport like a pro linebacker - I could barely keep up with him. He jumped the queue and placed my bags on the scale while chatting on a first name basis with the ticket-taker gal. The plane had already left the gate, but she told me to relax, as she summoned a bus that delivered me out onto the tarmac and onto the plane. Be sure to put your wife's carry-on on the cart as well, remember you'll be at 6,000' elevation and you won't have all of your stamina. The going rate is (was) $1.00 per bag. NOTE that this airport is very Looks to be about a week away. 45392	5	M Malone	Re: Getting Luggage from ME	Somebody suggested a taxi thread so here goes... As Farkem said if you take the bus from Huatulco to Puerto you can have the bus driver drop you off anywhere on the highway or just get off at the bus station. As Frogfart said the cost for a taxi from the bus station or anyplace along the highway should not be any more than $25 pesos. I could understand if this maximum went up to $30 - $35 pesos because of the price of gas and the fare has been about $20 - $25 pesos for years now while the price of tortillas has gone up dramatically. As it is though the max should be $25... maybe $30 if you are going to one of the farthest destinations in Puerto or if you want the taxi driver to try to enter Lazaro. Definitely make sure your bags are checked through to Puerto, otherwise you will have to pay big bucks for the extra suitcases. If you are checked through, you get the international travel allowance. If not, the Click flight is a national Adopt a poor Mexican family and help them, not animals....cat got your tongue? in Melaque -deep fried breakfast quesadillas , or morning tacos at the one that used to be called chicken boy and of course chilaquiles. mmmm	1065

It is very close to the main intersection and it is relatively easy to walk down towards the beach as I did last November. Plenty of room for luggage on the bus. I did not see taxis waiting all of the time at the station so you may need to flag one down anyways if you need one. A couple of times I was charged 15 pesos, but 25 seems reasonable, maybe 30 due to the inflation which, like PB said, has not affected taxi fares much in a long time. At least not in Puerto. I would not bother renting a car unless I wanted to visit a lot of places. I just got back from three nights in Vegas where I rented a car in order to get off the main strip since I stayed at the	544

No one there. Maybe she hasn't opened up yet? Well, I've posted photos before but this one just doesn't seem to work. I'll add it as an attachment. This goes with my earlier post about the San Sebastian jail Today is "El día de la raza", Columbus Day, and the last day of a "puente" or long weekend. Lots of offices didn't open. who needs a reason... and I assume you sprinkle the 1/2 a whatever of queso fresco on top. Sounds doodah, doodah! One thing that was mentioned in the article that Mazatman cited that has changed is the part about your parents having to be natural born citizens to become president of Mexico. Some 15-20 years ago there was a PRI contender for the presidency who had a mother or father that was born outside of Mexico, and therefore would have been ineligible to be president. The PRI took care of the matter and changed that part of the eligibility rules. That man didn't make to to be president, but it left the door open for the PAN's candidate a few years later, Vicente Fox. His mother was born in Spain. He then fit the eligibility rules. If the PRI hadn't changed the rules their opposition candidate, Fox, could never HAHAAAA well i dont know about ya'll but all i heard was something like big ben before the announcement.....i didnt here anything that made me even think a tsunami might be coming..... :(i actually thought at first it was one of those Well...I like to go to AYALA...which has really great traditional home cooked mexican food.....Located couple doors down from Penny's Gourmet Deli.... I have never seen you post from Mexico so what is your agenda My 84 y/o uncle sent me the same 'bannana gone bad' and I thought it a little lame, even for his standards. I liked Gary Larson's cartoon "When mayonaise goes bad" showing the mayo robbing the other condiments in the refer at gun Mi amigo Cactus thinks maybe the only place to get one is in Guadalajara, & that none of the local dentistas do this surgery. I don't believe this. Where might he go to have this done well? He'd much rather fly into Manzanillo of course. But he's been draggin' on buying a ticket. This information will undoubtedly light a fire under the man to buy that ticket. I've got mine & it's 54* & raining outside, I have no "agenda". I simply thought it was not appropriate here. Put me into whatever "file" you want, no skin off my nose.	376
45604	12	Evita	Re: Cheese	If your phone is from Bell, it is very difficult to get service. I finally switched to Rogers as their phones work all over Mexico. For cell service in PE you might as well buy a local cell phone they are cheap. Incoming calls are charged to you Both Telcel and Iusacell have pre-paid BAM (Banda Ancha Movil) cards. They are smilar to Verizon's, but are pay as you go. I think about $500 pesos for a month (no contract). Speeds are not as good as A-DSL or Cable, but acceptable use a voip system to call out like skype. if you are a 'chatty kathy' for your long distance incoming cellphone calls, it is expensive. incoming local calls are free. if your sim card issue can't be resolved, you can buy a tel cell cellular phone here for $30 bucks and a $500 peso card for minutes will give you the most bang for the buck. Carlos Slim ain't the third richest person in the world because Tons of places to get the Telcel SIM card. The airport, many shops all over any town (look for the Telcel Logo). Costs about $170 pesos for the SIM. You can top off the card as you wish. About $14 pesos to call US, about $1 to 2 pesos to call a Mexico #, and since it is Calling Party Pays, no charge for incoming calls	1684

				Dr Woo referred me to the female Dentist in Las Brisas for a root canal last year. She was kind, the procedure was painless with freezing provided, and she had a lovely office. However: - The drill seemed to only have one speed (jackhammer) as chips of tooth were flying. - The cauterization involved a lighter heating up the tool, and smoke coming out of my mouth. - After the root extraction, she didn't project any urgency to cap it. She left it open, saying she doesn't do that part of the job. She suggested that I get the 'resin' (white filling to cap it) at some stage in the future. She said the resin was just a coating. She did not mention that it had therefore no protection from contaminants, nor advise me not to chew with I will be there December 11th. Love to buy you a cervesa. It takes real skill to catch a woman and release her to swim away uninjured (a joy to watch too). I think they are Westjet planes booked through transat, but I can't find any evidence on line in I got these rates from a blog and haven't verified their accuracy, but it is the Movistar international rates that I like as an alternative to Skype. Local calls Movistar 3.45/min Telcel 1.15/min to other telcel users National Movistar 5.75 for blocks of 15 minutes Telcel 7/min International Movistar 11.50 for every 15 We have found Movistar provides good inexpensive service. The phones are cheap to buy and if you pay over 200 pesos on your phone you get bonus pesos. Once a month or so they have "free" day where you can call anywhere in North America for free. Most calls to NA on non-free days cost about 30 pesos (Hurricane as of about 9:30 am Oct 16.) You might hear about tropical storm Rick, maybe soon to be a hurricane. It's just offshore Puerto Escondido, and slowly moving away from us, hopefully. A spin-off thunderstorm 6-7 pm last night gave a great thunder-lightening show, and some really heavy rain. There were rocks bigger than grapefruit all over the road down to Zicatela, above Shivas, washed onto the road from the rain. I'm attaching a screen shot of last night's satellite photo, about 6 pm. You can see the storm that hit Puerto Escondido. You can see a loop of Rick's development here, for a couple more hours you can see the development of storm that hit Puerto Escondido last night.	62

				The supreme court announced last week that the governor had violated civil rights in Oaxaca in 2006. But the court does not have the authority to take away his power. It just makes Oaxaca look bad. It even made the NY Times. OAXACA, Mexico (AP) -- The Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that the governor of a southern Mexican state is responsible for rights abuses during 2006 protests that paralyzed a colonial city and left at least a dozen people dead. The ruling has no binding consequences for Oaxaca Gov. Ulises Ruiz but carries moral weight. A similar ruling in 1996 prompted the resignation of the governor of western Guerrero state over the massacre of 17 farm workers.

The reason Rick (which was a 115-mph Cat. 3 the morning after it passed Puerto as a tropical storm) didn't produce bigger surf than it did, was because it was moving away from Puerto as it gained strength. Puerto did get some larger waves, as Dennis Miller documented, but nothing really large. 				We have tried to make reservations at various hotels in advance for our scuba and snorkeling customers. Most hotels are unsophisticated, and don't even have anyone who can answer an e-mail in English. They also do not plan far ahead. I have found this to be a problem when I am trying to update my tourist guidebook. Most hotels don't want to quote a price for the next season (because they really haven't decided what it will be yet). Trying to pin them down is like pulling teeth. They also have no way to actually take reservations, such as a deposit by credit card. The reason for this is because the credit card must be physically in their hands before they can run it through their POS machine (if Estrella Blanca appear to own or at least operate both Elite and Futura. I have seen Elite and Futura buses on that TJ to Acapulco run but lately it seems to be Futura. I have a link to the Estrella Blanca site on my bus page here
46077	15	scubamex	Re: accomodations contact	Manzanillo and its deep, twin bays are highly unlikely to suffer a direct hit from a big hurricane. This is because there is a convex curve of coastal land in the state of Michoacan that seems to veer storms away. The hurricane of 1959 was the last real (unnamed) cat 5 storm. More than 2,000 people were killed, most due to mudslides--800 of those killed by a mudslide lived in Minatlan, about 30 miles inland. Though 9 cargo ships were lost in that storm, there was no warning system back then. The port was not a safe harbor as it is today. And up until last year, the mangroves kept the land safe from erosion. (Now they are gone, but as soon as the port enlargement is finished, 10,000 saplings will be planted around Not at this point. I think that these people are pretty flexible as to which day they do the tour because they are on vacation here for a month. Also they would be OK with riding to the beach or from the beach. I had two no-shows last year and was able to fill both of them but...it isn't ideal when we have such a short season. I looked at Pay Pal but their fees are much higher than what I pay for Visa and Mastercard. I can see why some places don't even take credit cards. And as Nan said, there is a law protecting the mangroves. As I understand it, if you take them from one area, they have to be left in another. They were taken out of the area by Las Garzas where they are enlarging the post, and 10,000 saplings will be replanted when the port enlargement is finished, but I can't imagine how they can do that in La Boquita. Be careful with false cognates - words that sound like English words but that have a different meaning in Spanish. "Idiota" doesn't mean idiot. "Tonto" (like the Lone Ranger's friend) means idiot in the sense of "I'm such an idiot, I left the keys in the car." or "Don't be an idiot, ask for directions." The word "idiota" at least as used in Mexico, means imbecile or even dick head. Oaxacan people rarely curse, but people from Mexico City curse all the time. 				Just a few things to consider. If you want to leave something to someone in your will, and it's in Mexico..... Any furniture you bring here is subject to the humidity and termites. A friend brought a grand piano from the US, and it didn't survive three years. Another thing is that the vast majority of immigrants to Mexico don't stay more than two years. Some do quite well, but most return, and those that stay longer usually go back to their original home for extended periods every

There's a school near us with more kids out of school than in school, even the school nurse is sick. The nurse said that half the kids have H1N1 and don't know it. I think back and remember the first time the TV came out with the scare, showing people in Mexico with masks. Now to think my son actually has it is something. I'm OK with it now and he is back in school, but as a mother and hear that kids between the ages of 12 and 17 are more likely to die from it, puts a little scare in you at first, darn media. Instead of scaring everyone, they should say not to Wayne, We are not at all sure with what you are disagreeing. We did not suggest that Beachchair (or for that matter Artistatina's friend) reject a container-shipment, we are only wondering about the rationale for a large container. Yes, we too bring small stuff (mostly kitchen items) to Huatulco each time we make the trip, but so far in 4 trips this year that has not amounted to more than 2-3 suitcases of stuff. And in the past, we would have reckoned that items such as computers, TV, sound systems and other electronics were more expensive in Mexico than the U.S., but after we visited Sam's Club in Oaxaca, we found that	861

I once overheard a conversation between Mexican surfers in which one guy was telling another guy about something that happened to him, and the listener kept says "no mames" the way some one would say "oh, man" or "wow". 				I too thought Oct. 22 sunset was good green flash potential. No matter how good the potential seems, you can't tell for sure about the cloud layer that could be very close to the horizon until the last 5 minutes or so. If it is indeed cloudless as the sun sets, I can predict with 90% accuracy whether or not there will be a green flash, but only after about 1/4 of the sun has already set. Even on a clear-horizon sunset, it's just luck predicting the green flash potential before the sun has begun to touch the horizon. I've seen a distinct double green flash twice in Puerto Escondido. This isn't my first trip and I am pretty comfortable dealing with the locals but I still love Since I haven't seen either or any, Mayan or Mixtec or otherwise, just pictures in a guide book. Is it worth the extra time and money to visit Mayan ruins by traveling to Cancun or to Merida. How much time and/or money are we talking I am planning to tow a 5th wheeler from wisconsin to laredo via I-35, then monterrey,saltilla, san luis potosi and guadalajara. I need a bilingual passenger to help with the border crossing and highway navigation. If anyone knows of someone wanting a ride on that route, I would appreciate giving them my addy... I just got back form my Travel Clinic, where I was told to get vaccinated for Typhoid, Hepatitis A/B, Rabies, H1N1. I also received a prescription for Malaria and told to wear bug spray during the day and to sleep under a net at night. I think the Dr.'s just being overly cautious, but..I don't know for sure.. The information I was given shows all of Oaxaca being at risk for Malaria. Mexico is most fortunate because there is a powerful variety of colloidal silver easily available in Microdyn, which is sold to purify water and cleanse vegetables. 46447	5	Frisbee	Re: Hurricane Rick offshore P	The lake rose seven feet from Rick. Well there is more than enough to do along the Oaxacan coast to keep you busy. I can't recomend a guide book higher than Moon books guide to the state of Oaxaca. It has very good information on things to see and do all along the coast and elsewhere, as well as great chapters on the history of the state. A must read,its really helped me out on my visits In my opinion Oaxaca city needs at least a week at least for the first visit, and thats just to see and do the local tours which are worthwhile. Oaxaca can be expensive too (relatively) if you ever do go in the future though seek out the market building full of foodstalls a couple blocks south of the Zocalo and follow the locals for whats good. The quality and I just want to say that if you have to worry about whether you get 2 dollars more or less in the exchange, then you should not go ANYWHERE. In 2001 the exchange was so bad that we used to add 50% to whatever a price was, yet people were still spending time in Mexico. If an item was 400 pesos we divided My wife and I will be in Guadalajara for 5 days In late February and would really like to see a game.What I need to know is are they still playing at this time of year and which team to go see as far as atmosphere and overall experience. There are still spots available over the holiday season at Flor del Mar. Check out the website or here at Tomzap. Also airline rates have been cut in half from the West coast to $320 round trip after the new year. We will be there late Before my first drive to Mexico I was also apprehensive about what to expect. I knew not a word of Spanish. The only difference is that I drove a car and not a 5th wheel. You SHOULD have arranged for MEXICAN Insurance for both vehicles before leaving home, do not wait to buy it at the border. For a stay longer than 30 days it is cheaper to buy a 6 month policy. For insurance try [http://www.mexican-autoinsurance.com/], they seem to be one of the better insurance agencies and prices at any time. In Nuevo Laredo at the Migracion I managed to do all that was necessary without much of a problem and I was on my way in about 45 minutes. You will need all the papers for the ownership of Dengue is definitely around... get the preventative for Hep A/B... I don't bother with the malaria pills and I don't think anybody else does either. Despite all of the derision you are getting, the (read between-the-lines) message is that you probably don't need any of those shots, unless your health is already poor. I've never heard of anybody getting Malaria in Puerto (I'm sure it has happened, but it's not a pronounced problem). Dengue, yes, but mostly in the rainy season, and it seems the preventative techniques applied by the local government have worked well, because I have noticed less (anecdotal) reports of the disease from the people I know. If you plan on drinking dirty water, get the typhoid. If you plan on having unsafe sex, or enjoying the company of sex workers, get the hepdivax. You are equally as likely to get Hep, H1N1, or rabies We wil be happy to supply you with a quote. You can have all the insurance papers in your glove compartment when you leave home. I think blasphemy is going kind of far. Remember, many parts of Chichen Itza and Tikal are RESTORED. Monte Alban is mostly just excavated. This makes a big difference visually. Additionally, the great Zapotec culture had a different societal structure, social morays, diet, architectural style and even mathematical system, compared to the Mayans. Also, the Zapotecs were more isolated, so there was less "cross pollination" when it came to ideas and cultural exchange with the Aztec and maybe Incan cultures. I'll stick to my claim of comparable.	205

				The 2009 soccer season will finish early December and they will play 2010 season early January, so in february 2010 they will be playing soccer. Today FMF (Mexican Futball Federation) does not have yet the 2010 calender but you can find it, next year in the following webpage: www.femexfut.org.mx/ , at the right side is a green square that says Calendario Oficial, give a click in "Primera division", you will get a pdf file which you can scroll al see the whole season games and dates In Guadalajara, we have three teams: Guadalajara (also called Chivas), Atlas and Estudiantes Tecos. The most popular is Guadalajara. Actually Guadalajara and Atlas play in the same stadium for 70,000 fans and I vote for Palenque. It has been called the Athens of the Americas for it's equisite proportions and elegance. Also it's easier to get to by bus or car from Puerto than the Yucatan. I was in Tikal 20 years ago, and only a few of the temples had been excavated and restored. It was real jungle experience, lots of monkeys, and the area is huge. But if you've never seen a pyramid and you're Sun stroke, sun burn, and hangovers are definitely the major health problems here affecting tourists. I believe that most of the malaria in Oaxaca is in the rural country side, off the beaten path. As to swine flu, there are more cases and deaths in the U.S. than in Mexico. If anyone has any recommendations for rentals, it would be appreciated. I'm looking to rent a proper motorcycle (not a scooter) if available. I am shipping overland from the East Coast. I actually had items sent from my home in South Carolina and brouht them up to my place in New Jersey and everything is going from there. I also have had furniture made down in the Huatulco area and it is not expensive and is beautiful, but as I said I have a few items I would really like there. As for termites I had a condo for several years in Huatulco without problems because it was sprayed on a regular basis, just like I Plan B....after being flagged down at this checkpoint with california plates, mi media naranja just waved and went on by without stopping. nothing happened. This is obviously a very old thread, but I have just joined this forum and could not find any recent postings on the same question. Does this place in Tangolunda still rent good sized motorcycles? If so, can anyone drop a name? I agree that Palenque is the best side trip, and it is a lot easier to get to than many think. Overnight bus leaves around 8PM and arrives in San Cristobal early. Rent a VW bug and drive a few hours to Palenque, with a stop at Agua Azul, Misol-HA and maybe even the ruins in Ocosingo.If you have time and sense of advenuture head south after Palenque to Bonampak and Yaxchila, then the frontier highway to Ixcan and explore the biosphere reserve. Head back to San Cristobal via the Lagunas de Montebello and Comitán. The bus leaves around 8pm and arrives back in Puerto at dawn. I have done this trip from Puerto spending only 1 night and returning and spending a month and returning. It is worth the 2 overnight bus rides. One can leave Monday night, spend Palenque has some unique features no doubt. 				I have a few things that I could use some sound advise on. Any information you all can offer is greatly appreciated! First, I am looking for a midwife that is experienced in waterbirth (or at least has some idea what its all about). I am due mid-late January and want to have the baby at home and at least use water during labor and possibly for the delivery. Any insight into this realm, names and numbers of local midwives, would be great. No need to speak English on their part. Second, who knows how to seek dual citizenship? My husband is a native here, and we were married here three years ago. My child will be born here, and
46547	5	croninv	looking for a few good answer	I want to figure out how the baby and I can get our dual citizenship (USA/MEX) I wonder about all those threats to impound a car. I would think that impounding requires paper work and documentation on the part of the transit police. When the transit cop took me to the car pound it was closed and his companion was waiting for us, indicating that the coast was clear. I looked into the pound and noticed that it was full of wrecked cars. It didn't appear that the transit cops had actually impounded anyone's car. By the way, Mexicans are allowed to use cars with foreign plates that are brought in on a temporary permit by a Mexican, if they are the importer's spouse, sibling, parent, grandparent or child. This Based on your marriage to a Mexican citizen, you have probably have rights to immigration status which will allow you to work legally. Working with an FM-T is I just had a DELICIOUS HAMBURGER at a brand new place in Melaque. 				Speaking of the "Vancouver flu": Wide range of ailments linked to B.C. swine-flu deaths By Frank Luba, The Province October 28, 2009 Eleven of the 12 people in B.C. who died with the H1N1 influenza had an underlying health condition but no one disease or ailment predominated, according to Travis Hottes, an influenza epidemiologist with the B.C. Centre for Disease Control. Among those underlying conditions were diabetes, heart disease, asthma, immune suppression, lung disease and neurological diseases. "It's generally people who have some condition that makes it difficult for their immune system to clear the virus," said Hottes. The conditions are similar to what has been reported in other

				Day of the Dead Ceremony at the Cemetary 2009 • Día de los Muertos en el Campo Santo 2009 November 2 is the day we Mexicans honor our dead friends and family members. For the last three years I've done a ceremony in the graveyard in the name of a friend, Ana Marquez, who died several years ago. I plan to do the ceremony again this year. I'll explain why we get together and also help make the day a special one for those who are interested in Mexican culture and our traditions. El Día de Muertos is a unique way to understand these traditions. We'll have some tamales and chocolate. This special event is free. There is a newly opened place 2 doors down from my office here in Melaque that does all that stuff called Happy Toes. I also believe there are 2 or 3 more in the lots in question are NOT in Huatulco. The lots he's trying to sell are located in Mojon which is about 30 min from Huatulco. Not sure what kind of title or "title" you will be receiving since this area is out of the FONATUR boundaries. I would be curious to know about the infrastructure ie; roads, water, sewer, Give me a call, I will be happy to take a look at your laptop. I highly recommend seeking advice from I.N.M. from Mexico City for the protocol in your situation. Or else you will be in a Merry -Go Round of incorrect information and fees that will be unnecessary. Between Barra and Melaque and has good highway signage. On a failing light which side of the highway do we look on? I discovered for myself that I can boil lobster for ten minutes or a half hour and I must be a cretin because I cannot tell the difference. Jesus showed me the area in the skull between the two longest antenna that has a sizeable chunk of meat that tastes just like the tail. Big bugs may have a chunk the size of a golf ball that often goes overlooked. LANGOSTINAS are RIVER CRAWFISH. Langostas are sea spiny lobster. Again... Admittedly I have avoided the Mexico City area because of its bad reputation as regards the police. Many of us who chose to make our homes in Puerto thought we were immune from that kind of big city corruption. Up until now, all the cases of transito pay-offs have involved actual infractions like illegal left turns or parking on the wrong side of the street. We have no history of transito road blocks pulling over only cars with foreign plates, as continues to happen. That said, many of us take a certain pride in other I think that coconutz has hit on it. Getting a "ticket" for running a red light or not stopping or something illegal other than driving while gringo would be understandable. Even pocketing the money as long as the ticket was for something that is dangerous like running a stop sign of red light. It would be twice as nice if these Transito guys actually wrote some legitimate tickets so that ALL drivers would follow driving rules. Go up to the crucero and watch how many people run red lights. Go to a stop sign and watch how many don't stop. How many people park on the wrong side of Av. Oaxaca (although I do see some parking ticket at time being issues there). What is wrong with giving $140 per kilo? In Eastern Canada where the lobster IS lobster, the price is the lowest in many years, as low as $2.80 per lb. CDN. 				Mexico's top security official on Friday proposed disbanding Mexico's 2,022 municipal police forces and combining them with state law enforcement agencies to better combat corruption and crime. Local police have fewer resources to fight crime, and their lower salaries make them more susceptible to corruption, Mexican Public Safety Secretary Genaro Garcia Luna said. "Public safety should be a state policy," he added. Consolidating police forces would improve communication among officials, he said, and bring greater security to areas where local police have traditionally lacked the means to fight crime.

46850	15	ronycoca	Rental	First allow me to state clearly my opinion has absolutely nothing personal against the author and no pro police sentiment. Just the facts. First the regulations of the Federal Customs Office and the regulations under which the State traffic police work have nothing to do with the other. 46866	5	doodah	Re: transito traffic stop today	the more I hear from Imago the more I think she luckily avoided a real "bad" situation. You just never know. I was stopped on the highway outside Tampico by a motorcycle cop with a radar gun... I was travelling waaaaay over the speed limit (trying to get to Puerto in 2 days from Texas). I thought I was dead meat... The cop stuck his hand in the window and I was sure he wanted money, but all he wanted to do was shake my hand. He asked where I was going and I told him Puerto which he agreed was a great place. He told us he liked Canadians and that we should have a wonderful visit. That was it. But then I got stopped in downtown Tampico later and had to fork over 300 pesos for being in the wrong For the record, I cannot legally put Oaxaca plates on my car. I might be wrong, but I don't think cars over 10 years old can ever be nationalized. I have the option of driving with no plates or with my foreign expired plates. My lawyer recommends keeping my expired plates on the car. I do not know where LT gets his legal advice from, I just know what the director of customs in Puerto and my lawyer tell me which is I do not have to show my FM-3 to the state police. If they want to make a federal case out of it, let them take me to the federal police. My lawyer tells me that traffic tickets may be paid directly to an officer if he writes out a summons and gives you a receipt. Otherwise you have five days to pay it I have been "bitten" twice in the many years driving in Puerto and the Puerto area. 1st time for parking on the wrong side of Ave. de Oaxaca, across the street from my dentist. Came upon a transito cop taking my front plate, which is a normal practice. I asked him what the fine would be and he sez 200 pesos if I went to wherever and 100 if I paid on the spot. I paid the 100 very discreetly (his direction) and got my plate back. 2nd time was by the feds on my way to Santa Elena (mezcal run). I was following a stake bed and the feds pulled us both over. Took very little time with the local. Had all my import/ins. papers but no DL.	208

Plus, the than- you party they threw for the Snowbirds heading home last year was, uh, unforgettable.....and a very smart business move. This is funny.. You can buy live lobster from either the fish markets locally or from any of the local lobster fishers.. The live ones are about the same price as the frozen ones you all just ordered.. maybe 10 pesos more a kilo. I love Furthermore, the curbing which creates the flooding (and you ain't see nothing yet! Wait until it REALLY rains!) also prevents you from pulling off the highway in case of accident or other road emergency, without seriously damaging your car. That's a very solid 8-inch concrete curb blocking access to the shoulder, which will likely take out your suspension and steering linkage at a minimum. Unless you're lucky enough to have your road emergency adjacent to a driveway, you can't get off the highway for long stretches on both sides if the highway. 				Do you know which ones I mean? They are the black, beetle-like bugs that lurk along the edges in some swimming pools. They look sort of like tadpoles -- at least they look like tadpoles as they are swimming away for their lives when they sense that you are fittingly armed with a skimmer to quickly remove them from the water. But, when you aren't looking, they sneak up and bite you (me). I don't know if they are biting me for food, or if they think they are protecting "their" territory. All I know is that their bite hurts and itches at the same time, and, for me, I get an pretty impressive welt. My first encounter with them was about 4 years ago in a friend's swimming pool in Villa Obregon. I thought the bugs only health care is "free" in Ontario, Obama loves the idea; but if I can make my own personal comment I really like Mexico and it's health care, local doctors and farmacias just the way they are. 				I love Mexican food and it doesn't have to be expensive to be tasty. Flor Marina, on the square, opposite the taxi rank, has inexpensive fabulous Mexican food and the place 2 doors down towards the shoe shop has the best burritos ever. The food market is also a good place for breakfasts and lunches although many people are put off by the "basic" look of the place. Overcome this and enjoy some Mexican fayre. 				I met with the head of the State Transit Police in Puerto today, Comandante Agustín Guzman Fernández de Jauregui and I received an apology for last Monday's incident. The comandante has only been in Puerto for two months. He told me had not authorized any of his men to be in the area, next to the entrance to the Batallón, where I had been stopped. He said on that date he had posted one transito to the entrance of the Bajada de Zicatela to direct traffic so that people did not make illegal left turns there. He stressed that his men were not authorized to pull people over, let alone single out people with foreign plates, just for the purpose of checking their driver's license and registration. He said he would like 3 kilos. I am sheila oxford at 355 7327.

				The Cuзалapa coffee I have for sale is a nice dark roast that they do to my taste. While quite dark - sort of between a French and an Italian roast the finished beans are dark and very oily - it is not bitter or charred because the level of the roast is arrived at by maintaining constant even heat for a longer period of time than the lighter roast not by cranking up the heat. I had to look up on line how to do a dark roast the first time we did it and that is what the directions said to do - maintain a constant even heat for longer - so that is what we did and it turned out perfectly. I hate dark roast coffees that taste charred. The beans are organic, shade grown, arabica and everything is hand sorted and inspected so the beans I use CIDACOS Tomate Frito http://www.amigofoods.com/citofr14oz.html but I find it at Commercial in a tetra pack not a tin. She immediately began to utter a Spanish curse-word beginning "chi..." (chingada), but quickly stopped herself and instead exclaimed chimichanga, the Spanish equivalent of thingamajig.[7] Fortuitously, the euphemism was a well understood Indianism for the standard Spanish "chango quemado", meaning "broiled monkey", which the chimichanga resembles. 				GREAT NEWS! IT APPEARED IN THE NOTICIERO NEWSPAPER TODAY (Nov. 7, 2009) ON PAGE 2 (assuming what you read is true). The head of SEMARNAT, Raul Arredondo Nava, made it very clear that the new project of investment at La Boquita de Miramar claims to start dredging the lagoon for the entrance of yachts and sailboats, but they do not have authorization for the work. According to the law they have not met the requirements, and have done no studies of the effect on the environment. They are not authorized to dredge because it would destroy the coral reef and it would damage the food chain of reproduction of marine species, says Nava. The train has jumped the track (I think he means that the company has jumped the gun) to announce this to their Jerry, how could you start without me??? I'll be more than ready when I get there in January. Andy in Arkansas (where there is a triple hopped ale in the I had breakfast there this morning and it was great as usual.

Kimberly Munley does not look as if she would be much of a match for a heavily armed US soldier on a murderous rampage. But the slightly built 34-year-old civilian officer was first on the scene after Major Nidal Malik Hasan began firing on comrades at Ford Hood in Texas as they prepared to deploy to Afghanistan and Iraq. The 39-year-old psychologist killed 13 and left 31 others with serious injuries. On Thursday afternoon Ms Munley was doing her usual job of directing traffic on the sprawling base. By chance,	2234

				Jesus is going to check with the dept of pesca monday to determine if it would be legal and permissible to haul a quantity of live lobster from Las Peñas to Racnho Cadillac. This appears to be the worst the leanest lobster year since that last big el niño. We put together a system of a plastic drum, seawater, a aeronebulizer, and inverter to drive the aeronebulizer. I rent my bikes from a locally owned bike repair shop run/owned by a Melaque resident who employs at least two hard working young guys who might be lost without this pocket money. Are the bikes top-notch new where I get mine? No, but they get me around and they usually have 5 speed rear derailleur that works.	4316

				Greetings to all readers: Visitors to Huatulco often ask "how can I help a local children's organization"? For those interested, I urge you to consider "Un Nuevo Amanecer" (A New Dawn). Un Nuevo Amanecer is the only facility in this area that offers therapy, education, treatment, and referrals for over 100 physically and developmentally handicapped children. For more information, please see their web page at: [http://www.freewebs.com/nuevo_amanecer/index.htm] Very little of their funding comes from government sources. Most of their operating funds come from private donations and fund raisers. What can you do to help? You can sponsor a child for $350 for 1 year. You can contribute to the "building Hi Julie: I have just added a posting on Nuevo Amanecer. Please let me know if you have any specific questions. Regards, Dan Thompson

				You need an FM3 (or FM2) if you plan to work for someone else or to operate a business. Many people who do not live here have an FM3 so that they can leave a foreign plated vehicle behind when they go home. With the FM3 there is no residency requirement - in as much as one is not required to reside in Mexico a specific number of days per year as one is required to if one holds an FM2 - so even if you are only here a very short time each year you can get an FM3 if you want to leave a foreign plated vehicle behind when you leave. 47544	5	kjarsenal	Re: canada	When Spanish conquistadores arrived in the Aztec capital Tenochtitlan (now Mexico City), they found that the people's diet consisted largely of corn-based dishes with chiles and herbs, usually complemented with beans and tomatoes or nopales.[2] Salsa was sold in Aztec markets prior to sold The diet of the indigenous peoples of Pre-Columbian Mexico also included chocolate, tomatillos, huitlacoche, vanilla, avocado, guava, papaya, sapote, mamey, pineapple, soursop, jicama, squash, sweet potato, peanuts, achiote, turkey and fish. In the 1520s, while Spanish conquistadors were invading Mexico, they introduced a variety of animals, including cattle, chickens, goats, sheep, and I love Canadians, they gave us The Red Green Show, Elmer Fudd hats, Hockey, eh and a fine set of laws such as: In Canada, It is illegal for a teen to walk down main street with their shoes untied. (Fort Qu'Appelle). All bicycle riders must signal with the arm before making a turn, and a bicycle rider must keep both hands on the handlebars at all times" (Edmonton.). 47545	12	no comprende	history of mexican cuisine	It seems to me that the caliber of Canadians found in Mexico is in general somewhat higher than that of the Americans found in Mexico. I think the reason for that is simple. In the U.S., it is no big feat to throw a few clothes in the car and drive down to the border, possibly with the law not far behind, and get yourself into Mexico. Coming from Canada, on the other hand, requires a little more preparation, funding, and reliable transportation to travel through another large country and make it all the way into Mexico. So if my theory is correct then	1838

Hasan was still on his feet firing his two pistols when the male police officer arrived, stood and exchanged fire with Hasan, dropped him, then went over to him, kicked the gun away, and began cuffing him. At this point other officers began arriving to assist. The woman officer, Munley, was down the entire time with her wounds. 				We went to Devlyn in front of Sorianas last year and we felt we received the best quality of glasses from them compared to the guy in Melaque and a lady in Cihuatlan. I think the thing I liked the most is the assortment of frames. In Melaque and Cihuatlan, I didn't have much of a selection to choose from, plus I felt like the glasses scratched just by looking at them. This year I don't think I'll bother getting another set because they are still in great shape. They are definitely more expensive, but for me it was worth it. The Melaque optician is a Found a photo of LizaMonster, but had to cut off his head to protect his identity. I had glasses done by a place in Santiago a few years ago. I only need them for distance but I have an astigmatism and it took two tries for them to get the glasses correct and they were not able to supply me with the contact lenses I wear at all. I had my last pair of glasses done at the place in North Vancouver where I buy my multifocal contact lenses and the glasses - still for distance only -

				Shipping a container from Canada is not a big deal, just make sure you deal with a reputable broker in Canada and buy the insurance!!! Price is obviously going to change dependant on how far your container has to be trucked to a port. Vancouver or Montreal is going to be cheaper than Estivan Saskatchewan. 20 foot can should set you back $3500.00 to $6,000.00 Canadian. The fun part will be how much the Mexican trucker wants to surcharge you for demerage (unloading time) and any other hidden charges. Try and nail down all the possibilities before shipping, such as daily storage charges in case your can is held up at customs, etc. Also, do yourself a favor and hire a good customs OPOL, gracias! 				The geniuses who designed the new highway through Puerto Escondido have created a number of situations which will ultimately result in predictable traffic accidents, injuries and deaths, most unnecessarily. Although there are many of these situations existing, the one intentionally created at the head of the Zicatela Boulevard (Calle Morro) south intersection with the highway, where neither south or northbound traffic can directly access the turn on the highway, or vice versa, is the absolute worst because of the high rate of traffic using that very busy intersection. Traffic in both directions is required to drive 50 yards past the intersection, and hang a U-turn into oncoming traffic to go back in the direction	122

				Scotia bank accepts payment by U.S. credit card or by bank transfer. When you set up your fideicomiso with Scotia you have to give them your credit card or bank account info so they can automatically collect payments. His office is in Puebla but he makes frequent trips I have a fideicomiso with Scotiabank. Of course, they never send a bill, but each year I have to track them down to make my payment. Actually, I just e-mail the same guy as the previous years, and he gives me the info about where to send the money and how much to send. I agree that they probably won't take his property, but he won't be able to sell it without them getting their payment with penalty. So, it is better to pay sooner to avoid the fees. Further, with the dollar relatively stronger against the peso than in previous years, this might be a good year for him to catch up. 48169	12	Dry House	Re: curious	I started hanging with Canadians in Mexico in 1987, most from Dawson City,Yukon. Back in those days, Canada was taxing beer,booze and cigs hard. They would come down and go nuts. In the 80's cigs were $4 in Canada, .75 cents in the states. Same with beer. And in Mexico it was even cheaper. And the farmacia's were open for business. Now it seems as if the tide is changing, us Americans are working our butts off and the Canucks are lounging on the beach for 6 weeks like Europeans. But when all is said and done ,I would rather see Puerto filled with Canadians than Americans, French, Germans or Italians.	1046

They overloaded the transformer on the street, by approving two illegal connections (one line to two houses, one house 100 meters away from the meter, the other an estimated 400 meters distant. The legal distance is 30 meters, as admitted to me by two CFE techs, and only one house per line is allowed.) Once the line was so overloaded (with these two illegal connections) my lightbulbs were burning brown whenever my pump kicked in and my refrigerator was barely functional, so I popped for a new transformer (25k replacing the old 10k) and was required to re-wire the street to accommodate the higher voltage. I think for somethings local doctors are best because they know local conditions - what diseases are going around. But if you needed a specialist or a second opinion, I'd go to Oaxaca or Puebla or Mexico City. Also when buying prescription medicine here (you don't actually need a prescription for antibiotics), be sure to look up the drug on the What also happens is that there are "diablos" illegal hookups and they make the resistance in your line incorrect. This will make your meter read several hundred dollars or thousands of pesos higher. You need to get CFE as it is probably not them because they have no direct receipt of the funds....have them check and find the culprit, check all the lines on the same legs coming from the tranformer. Its very easy to find. Then when you find them you contact profeco and a good attorney and make the neighbors pay. Screw the police because they are Turning off the electricity will not work unless they are directly hooked into your side of your meter. You have to have some draw of electricity and the bad resistance throws off the actual reading of the meter. Hey a little news, how bout looks like the 46k fish was the winner! 48365	12	Howard	Re: Can you believe	You are bang on with your timing. The last 2 weeks of January and most of February are the times when the present generation of Monarchs are active and leave their nests, usually around noon each day when the sun warms them up. Be prepared for quite an uphill hike but using well designed trails. The altitude requires all but the locals to stop often and catch their breath so resting stations are frequent. 				I have been asked to explain what CAM is. For those that don't know, CAM is the Centro de Atencion Multiple Cihuatlan and is the only special needs school in the municipality. They attend to children from as far away as Emiliano Zapata (1hr north of Melaque) and with a diverse range of disabilities. The money raised from this event goes towards improvements in the school and for projects they are wishing to carry out. 48426	12	Seashell	Spay/neuter clinic photo's day	Mexican Traditions for Christmas Christmas for Mexicans, in traditional homes and rural areas, is a religious holiday. It is a celebration of the Nativity. This means the birthday of Our Lord Jesus. In order to prepare for the day of symbolic commemoration, we have the "Posadas". These celebrations are a "Novena" or nine days before the 24 which is the "Noche Buena" or "Holy Night". These Posadas are an enactment of looking for lodging of St. Joseph and Virgin Mary, called The Pilgrims going to Bethlehem for the Census according to the Scriptures. In Spanish we called them: "Los Peregrinos, San José y la Virgen María". Beny at the Salamander Restaurant usually has a delicious New Year Eve's Dinner and entertainment to go along with it and just across the street on the Hi Sue: I recently purchased an entry level new Nokia cell phone that came with $100 pesos of airtime. The package including activation of the chip, a local (315) number, the phone with instructions in English and charger and the airtime was $299 Pesos. The service I selected is TelCel as the availability of various denomination airtime cards is pretty much unlimited while Movistar cards are only available at a few outlets here in Melaque. This package was purchased Thanks Richard I was going to purchase in P/V, but would rather support the Melaque economy, so thanks for the information - I will purchase upon my arrival Location?	464
48468	15	wineguy	We are open for Coffee	Just a reminder to come check us out on Thursday for your unique Thanksgiving We are located on Blvd. Miguel de la Madrid across the street from the Cinco de Mayo Sports Complex. We are about half-way between Toscano's and Portofinos' restaurants and right next door to Bigotes Restaurant # 1. We are in the large white house/building with a green awning in front. Hopefully today, we will get some signs up advertising the Talervera Pottery and Tile we sell - and Good to know that Peter is open again. His pizzas are excellent! For our last pizza fix we went to Ambar in Barra, and we definitely won't be visiting that sorry to all, when the people reserve me a table and said I don't want to be next to a table that smokes, i can say to the people if you smoke please seat on the other end for don't disturb my client, but people need to tell me. Fred and Betty ask me for a table in a place with non smoke (for thanksgiving) and i all ready put them on one. if you like a non smoke table tell me and a will put you on spot the menu for thanksgiving day will be buffett: spanish pumpking cream soup salad bar mash potatoe sweet mash potatoe cranberry sauce turkey gravy steam veggies. roasted turkey traditional stuffing plus live music with a group of	4496

				the fun is just starting if you signed up for "mexicana go"...did they happen to mention there are NO credit cards yet in canada or the states as far as i know that are in the "go" program..so this means you cant add miles or points to this program as i stands now....now how stupid is that?..i cant even put my points from my american express into it without losing 50% of the value of my Cafe Barra in the same block as Sea to Sierra but behind us on Mazatlan Street (see map) http://www.seatosierra.com/where/mp_barra_1280.html are now open for the winter season providing quality fresh baked goods to the Costalegre. For I would like to inform people coming to Huatulco in the next week or so that they should be prepared to use lots of repellent. The Mosquitos are exceptionally bad this year. Hopfully, as it dries up, so will they. Bring your deet with you. I am also interested in this....but no one has answered if the Telcel or the Movistar phones can be used to call Canada and the U.S.....and what are the rates?.....that is the big question.....pay as you go amigo for how much?...and Well, my good foreign neighbours, the Ambulance's update is that we receive today the official plates from the Secretaria de Salud Jalisco, so we just need to compleate the funds to pay the insurance and then we are ready to operate the Ambulance , We think probably in 10 days,we need volunteers, drivers and Have not seen 1 mosquitoe for the past 3 weeks but the no seems are thick They both have USA and Canada plans. Movistar is cheaper than Telcel. i'm not reassured...you have para medics for this truck 24 hours per day? Movistar has a plan where you use a 200 peso card and you get calls to the US and Canada for 5.75 pesos for a block of 30 minutes. That is very cheap. You must get better instructions on how to maintain the rate from someone else/from the company. I don't have Movistar. You also need to check out the coverage in I agree Wayne ... the noseums are a pain in the ... you know. Not too many mosquitos though - pretty good actually for end of rainy season. I am so sorry to learn of Canitos passing. Both Cynthia and I are way over the top when it comes to the love and protection we give our dogs. Over the years when loosing a family pet the mourning and recover time has never been quick for us. Many say we are loony, but we do care for, and love our dogs as much as our children. I called yesterday and only had to wait for about 45 min. I talked to a guy that knew what he was doing and actually cared. I told him the situation and he rebooked all my flights (7 of us) to Calgary and then also booked us connecting flights from Edmonton to Calgary and back. There was no extra charge for these 2 flights and on the E-Ticket he e-mailed me we are also allowed 2 pieces of checked luggage of 50.5 lbs. each suit case for each person as well as 1 carry on and 1 personal such as back pack, purse, I doubt that the ambulance will run with Paramedics. There are lots of services in the states that run with just EMT's and provide BLS (basic life support) There is nothing wrong with that, but when you upgrade to ALS (advanced life support) you are talking about Class A drugs, expensive equipment and LOTS of training. A well run BLS service would be a real asset to the area, gringo and local alike.	861

'A snake.' It was not the usual start to a holiday with an ecotourism slant. Most people interested in ecotourism are also interested in wildlife and therefore driving over one of its prime specimens was probably not going to be popular. 'It's okay. It's a Tommy Goff.' Tommy Goffs, also known as Jumping Tommy Goffs are one of the most aggressive and I had the dog put down this morning due to her injuries and the fact that I couldn't adequately care for her. Thanks to those of you that expressed your Calgary Herald this morning was saying there has been a run on watermelons for the game on sunday. Hard to find any in the city. 				Now and then, some of us let out a little yelp about the lack of cultural events in our small fishing village by the sea. Well, put down the bullhorns. A friend of mine works with a charity that is bringing classical concerts, ballets, operas to Manzanillo. The first offering is this December. Here is her email to me. Maybe we could put together a Melaque-Barra contingent. I know I am going. Just to let you know that this coming Monday, we will be at the Cafe Risa (in front of the jardin) selling tickets from 2-5pm for the Nutcracker Ballet (with world renowned Russian ballet company) that will be held on Dec 13 here in Manzanillo. We researched the netting quite extensively and found an Australian manufacturer that provided us with an adequate weave. With regard to the interaction between Deet and sun block, we have heard that sun block can increase the body's absorption of Deet (that not good!), but we had not heard OK, I found this pair up the river valley from Mismaloya. They were mad at something in the next tree (which I could not see) and screaming at "it" which gave their position away. Otherwise they are very hard to see in the foliage.	4884

They sell a very fine weave canopy style netting for 140 or 150 pesos (I forget what I paid exactly) each configured with a 22" circular top with hanging loop and over six feet in length. I have used them over hammocks with great success. As for the diameter of the weaving pattern holes, what I purchased locally has worked great for the bugs around here.
